Morehouse Quarantined For Anthrax

Movement Of Livestock Is Restricted

"Morehouse Parish is now under full quarantine against any movement of livestock within the parish whatsoever until the anthrax epidemic is broken," Raymond McDuff, county agent said in a letter to all Morehouse farmers yesterday.

The quarantine was invoked by Dr. F. B. Wheeler, chief veterinarian of the Louisiana Livestock Sanitation Board, after consultation with parish authorities yesterday.

The dreaded animal disease was first reported last week near Perryville, across the parish line in Morehouse. It was throught that the disease could be contained in the infected areas, but rapid spreading has caused the quarantine.

Over 200 animals were reported burned or buried in Morehouse Parish since the outbreak of the epidemic. Agent McDuff said, "We have over 30,000 cattle and 4,000 horses and mules in this parish with about 60 or 65 per cent of them vaccinated against anthrax since January 1."

Not As Bad

In Ouachita Parish, the disease has not been as crippling as in Morehouse, since only about 35 animals have been affected, according to W. B. Aycock associate county agent for Monroe and Ouachita Parish.

Both Aycock and McDuff urged all cattle owners to report immediately to their office in any case where the disease may be suspected. The two men cautioned against any attempt to handle a dead or diseased animal since the blood of a "carrier" animal could infect the human with the disease. It is contagious in all warm blooded animals.

The Morehouse Police Jury will meet tomorrow at 4 p.m. to approve methods for spraying or dusting infected areas to kill all insects which could carry the disease. Informed sources said there is a possibility airplanes would be used to spray the contaminated places.

Agent McDuff said all farmers who wanted to report dead animals should call Bastrop 411, the county agent's office which will be open today.

2 Sailors Die As 5 Trapped In Compartment

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Five sailors were trapped in a destroyer compartment amid carbon dioxide fumes Friday night, and two died.

The victims pounded frantically on the door for rescue, the survivors said Saturday, but could not be heard by other sailors just outside because the latter were watching fights on TV.

Asphyxiated when carbon dioxide from the destroyer Cogswell's fire-smothering system was inexplicably released into the closed compartment, were:

Richard G. Bishop, 20, electrician's mate, 3C., of Morristown, N.J., where his mother, Mrs. Edith Bishop, resides.

Samuel Van Horn, 22, electrician's mate 2C., Winston-Salem, N.C., the home also of his mother, Mrs. Elsie M. Harris.

The survivors were reported in satisfactory condition after treatment at the Navy Hospital for carbon dioxide poisoning. They are Patrick C. Grinnell, 21, electrician's mate 3.C., Port Angeles, Wash.; La Virne Berry, 21, interior communication electrician 2.C. Salida, Calif.; and Gerald Jan Stark, 18, fireman, Comfrey, Minn.

Rear Adm. Frank Fenno, commander of the Pacific Destroyer-Cruiser Force, said the five men had been playing cards in the emergency diesel generator room, one deck below the main deck.

The security watch made a routine check of the room at 7 p.m., then returned at 7:20 and found that the door had been fastened from the outside with a link of chain over a hasp, Fenno reported. The door wes opened and the trapped men found.

Heavy rains and high winds pounded Tampico.

3-Day Hunt For Airman Ends In Tex.

DALLAS (AP)—Donald Keeton, the airman whose suicide note and erratic plane flight from Mississippi set off a two-state search, walked into his mother's home Saturday and later into his girl friend's arms.

Thus ended a three-day hunt for the 19 - year - old airman during which searching authorities were dogged by the feat he would crash the plane deliberately and kill himself.

"The only reason I did it was just to come and see Lynn," he said in an interview at Hensley Field, Dallas, where air police took him after city police had arrested him. He said:

"I knew I couldn't make it in a car, and I knew I could in a plane. The only way

3 In Crash Escape From Area Bayou

Three West Monroe boys kicked out the windows of their car and swam to safety at 8:45 last night, after the vehicle went into the Bayou D'Arbonne and submerged.

Jeff Walker, 16, driver of the two-door hardtop, suffered a broken arm and cut leg in the mishap. He was brought to the shoreline by Jewell McBroom, about 14, of 202 Plum St., and Billy Doerner, 14, of 2417 N. Eighth St.

"We had to bring Jeff out - he couldn't swim with a broken arm and the water was too deep to wade out," revealed Doerner.

The boys were riding toward West Monroe on the White's Ferry Road, when they felt a tire blow out on a curve by the D'Arbonne bridge.

Out Of Control

The car went out of control and off into the Bayou, where it sunk below the surface of the water.

"The car was almost under water when we got out," related Doerner, only one of the three who was not hospitalized.

"We tried to get the doors open and couldn't. Then Jewell started to roll down the back window, and Jeff kicked out the front window. That's how he cut his leg," Doerner revealed at his home.

The youths went to the highway, flagged down a passing car driven by Joe Baughtman of Farmerville and were given a ride to a nearby Skelly gas station, where the

Everybody Ducking On Adams Issue

But White House Sticks By Him; 2 Cite 'Liability'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House stuck by Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams Saturday, but two Republican senators seeking re-election this fall said he may have become a political liability.

Adams himself evaded newsmen, leaving unanswered newspaper reports that he accepted a $2,400 oriental rug and a $700 vicuna wool coat from millionaire New England textile manufacturer Bernard Goldfine.

Democrats added to the political furor With an eye to this fall's elections, some likened the Adams - Goldfine relationship to the deep freeze-mink coat "mess in Washington" which the Republicans made a major issue in 1952.

Staff members of the congressional subcommittee that stirred up the tempest promised more charges of alleged influence-seeking by Adams' friend when hearings on the case open Monday.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty gave a curt "no comment" to a suggestion by Sen. Charles F. Potter (Mich.), a member of the Senate Republican policy committee, that Adams may have "lost his usefulness to the administration."

Hagerty Ducks Questions

Hagerty also said he knew nothing about a report by the New York Herald Tribune that the Justice Department was investigating the case. A Justice Department spokesman also said he had no such information.

Hagerty ducked most questions, called down one newsman for asking an "impertinent question," and referred repeatedly to his earlier statements defending Adams on behalf of the President

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), who like Potter must run for re-election this year, said if the top presidential aide accepted all the reported favors, "then I think Adams becomes a definite liability just as Harry Vaughn (White House military aide) was in the Truman administration."

"I have no way in the world of defending Republican activities like this any more than Democratic activities," Goldwater said.

A Democratic senator, Ralph Yarborough of Texas, used stronger language. In a Senate speech Yarborough said Adams' acceptance of favors from the rich industrialist was the "highest placed impropriety since the Teapot Dome" scandals of the early 1920's.

Adams, sometimes called "the second president," has denied any

Indiana Flood Tapering Off

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) —Rampaging rain-swollen rivers and streams poured relentlessly through north central Indiana farmlands Saturday, with the White River reaching its second highest stage in 45 years at Anderson, Ind.

Sunshine and fair skies, however, granted flood-weary workers a brief reprieve Saturday. There was hope one of the worst weather pummelings in Indiana history was tapering off and, although showers and thunderstorms were predicted Sunday, the Monday outlook indicated no rain.

State Solons Resume Grind This Evening

By SAM HANNA

BATON ROUGE—Confronted with a rare combination of segregation and wine, the Louisiana Legislature returns to work tonight, by no means confident that its chief problems are solved.

Still faced with a lack of teacher funds, the legislature now has taken on a much more serious issue, that of segregation spurned by an investigation of LSU.

With five weeks behind them, the legislators, despite the passage of the gas gathering tax, have not produced a means of retaining the teachers at their present pay schedule. But another phase of that problem is expected to be answered by a $3-million wine tax scheduled as the special order of the day when the house convenes Monday.

Even if the wine tax passes and even if $20-million from the increased gas gathering tax is allocated to the teachers, the legislature's biggest headache will continue to throb with $20-million from the gas tax and $3-million from an increased wine tax, another almost $20-million will be needed just to pay the teachers what they're making today. A solution to unfolding that $20-million has not been presented, except in the form of a sales tax, which Gov. Earl K. Long, ever mindful of the little man, opposes. So some believe the lawmakers

Police Jury Officials In La. Convicted

CHALMETTE, La. (UPI) — St. Bernard parish police jury president Celestine Melerine and vice president James Licciardi were convicted Friday of malfeasance in office in accepting kickback payments for purchases of oyster shells.

Presiding district judge J. Bernard Cocke did not set a date for sentencing. The two, plus a third defendant, face charges of malfeasance in another trial scheduled to begin next-week.

Melerine and Licciardi were accused of taking kickback payments of $51.20, $359.50 and $288 from oyster canner John B. Lopez last year and early this year.

Defense attorneys John P. Dowling and F. Irvin Dymond said they would announce plans of a possible appeal after sentence was pronounced. Malfeasance in office is punishable by a maximum fine of $500, a maximum prison sentence of six months, or both.

Both officials maintained the charges were brought against them because they would not go along with St. Bernard parish district attorney Leander Perez' political commitments. The two maintained the charges against them were politically motivated.

The prosecution's case hinged on testimony of George Humble, a former road superintendent who was taken into Perez' employ after the police jury was reorganized last year.

Humble spent 10 hours on the stand Thursday telling of negotiations with contractor John B. Lopez, which he had taped on a recording device hidden on his person.

Lopez, testifying with the assurance he would not be prosecuted for taking part in the kickback system, said he paid back some $700 last December to the two police jurors on shell purchases made by the jury for road repairs.

Hot, Humid Day Is Prediction

Hot and humid today in Monroe is the weatherman's furnace forecast, with the chance of cooling thundershowers this afternoon and evening. The skies will be partly cloudy.

Much the same prediction stands for Arkansas with widely scattered thundershowers in the extreme North section. Not much change in temperature with the high predicted to range between 90 and 98 degrees.

Savage Day-Long Battle Shakes Beirut, Lebanon

Attempts To Seize Palace Are Repelled

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A savage day-long battle between government forces and rebels swept Beirut Saturday. It was the biggest outbreak of the month-old rebellion here.

Casualties were reported heavy in the fighting that brought artillery and tanks into action. No figures were available.

The rebels apparently launched the drive in a showdown effort to overthrow the pro-Western government of Premier Camille Chamoun. Attempts to seize the presidential palace and the government house were repelled.

The fighting dwindled into sporadic small arms fire and mortar explosions late Saturday night.

Heavy fighting was also reported in Tripoli, the northern port, where antigovernment forces opened their drive by burning the U.S. Information Agency Library May 10.

Filter Out

The rebels filtered out of their stronghold in the Moslem quarter here early in the day and launched a series of attacks.

The first was an attempt to seize Ramel Prison, in the capital's outskirts. Unconfirmed reports said the rebels captured the prison.

The fighting then developed in three main battles, all swirling through the Zarif district, on the edge of the Moslem quarter.

The worst fighting took place around the Basta a Moslem fortress located in the center of the capital, about 300 yards northeast of the Associated Press office.

The presidential palace is 300 yards west. About 150 feet south a similar battle went on intermittently during the day.

It was not known whether Chamoun was inside the heavily fortified presidential palace.

Dulles Claims Situation Is Not 'Alarming'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles said Saturday night — after a telephone report from the U. S. ambassador at Beirut—that the situation in Lebanon is "serious but not alarming."

Dispatches from Beirut told of day long fighting between government forces and rebels—the biggest outbreak of the month - old rebellion there.

Dulles cut short his participation in a class reunion at Princeton University to fly back to Washington midafternoon. He conferred with Undersecretary of State Christian Herter, Asst. Secretary William Rountree and other officials on the Lebanese crisis. Another participant reportedly was the secretary's brother, Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Secretary Dulles said: "The reports are that the situation is serious but not alarming. It is being watched very carefully."

Asked about the safety of Americans in the strife-torn Middle Eastern country, Dulles said, "Indications at the moment are there is no particular danger."

There are about 3,000 Americans, possibly less, in Lebanon. About 285 of them are official personnel and dependents. The State Department press office said there were no reports of any injuries to any of them and no knowledge here of any plans for evacuation.

ADMITS CROSBY KIDNAP PLOT — Wilburn E. Davidson sits in County jail where Sheriff's Lt. W. H. Salyers quoted him on an asserted plot to kidnap Mrs. Kathy Crosby, (AP Wirephoto)

BING'S WIFE

Man Considered Crosby Kidnap

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ex-convict Wilburn Davison admitted Saturday he considered kidnaping Mrs. Bing Crosby, 24, because her millionaire husband is "old, she's young, he's got plenty of money and wouldn't miss $100,000."

Davison, 48, a three-time loser in several states, made the admission at a news conference in Los Angeles County jail. He said he and his "partner" wanted the ransom money to go into a "legitimate business."

"It never got beyond the talking stage," said Davison, a tall, slim man who wears horn-rimmed glasses and is termed "dangerous" by law officers. "The idea was dropped when I read in a magazine that she was pregnant.

"I thought of Crosby because he's old, she's young, he's got plenty of money and wouldn't miss $100,000. I also thought about kidnaping that guy who gave all the furs to those movie gals."

Reporters at the conference agreed the soft - spoken former Oklahoman was referring to Lt. Gen. Raphael Trujillo Jr., the Dominican Republic's giver of expensive presents to stars like Zsa Zsa Gabor and Kim Novak.

Mrs. Crosby Unperturbed

Mrs. Crosby was in Reno, Nev., and seemed unperturbed by disclosure of the plot.

Regarding his "legitimate business" statement, Davison said, "we had talked about a restaurant but hadn't come up with anything tangible yet."

Davison, held here on his admission of 11 robberies in the Los Angeles area, said he and his "partner" planned to kidnap the former Kathy Grant, hold her and then notify Crosby.

"After I thought of it the first thing I did was start looking around for a woman to stay with her after we kidnaped her. I asked my 19-year-old niece, Nicky Snow, and she said she'd do it—and then she went right straight home."

Later, Davison said his niece told him she wouldn't do it. He identified her as the one who first disclosed the kidnap plot to Oklahoma authorities, saying she and his partner were the only ones who knew about it.

Davison's niece disclosed the kidnap plan to Seminole county Sheriff Bill Nicholson in Wewoka, Okla. Before she was identified here by Davidson, Nicholson had refused to release her name for fear that Davison's partner, still sought, would harm her. The

KNOWLAND SPONSOR OF BILL

U.S. Senate Rejects Secret Labor Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Saturday night rejected a proposal to permit 20 per cent of a union's members to force a secret vote on removing their officers or revising a union constitution or by-laws.

Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif) was sponsor of this amendment to the pending labor control bill. It was defeated 52-31.

Knowland said his amendment was needed to prevent hoodlums and "unscrupulous union bosses" from remaining in control of unions and their big funds without proper accounting.

But Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), the bill's chief sponsor, and Irving M. Ives (R-NY) joined in fighting the Knowland amendment.

Kennedy said the proposal would be "a great mistake for those who believe in stability in union matters."

Sen. John O. Pastore (D-RI) shouted, "Its whole intent is to destroy organized labor."

Forty Democrats and 12 Republicans voted against the Knowland amendment while 25 Republicans and 6 Democrats supported it.

Earlier, the Senate defeated an administration proposal to retain a Taft-Hartley Act penalty against unions failing to file required financial reports.

Its rejection by a 53-30 vote was the third major setback for administration supporters trying to bring the labor control bill more in line with recommendations of President Eisenhower and Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

However, seven lesser administration amendments were approved by voice vote. Democrats dismissed them as of little importance and their Republican sponsor, Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ), agreed that some of them weren't of any great consequence.

Shreveport Family Of 5 Meets Death

Two north Louisiana auto wrecks claimed eight lives within a span of less than 20 hours.

Five persons, all members of a Shreveport family, were killed and five others injured in a shattering head-on collision of a flatbed truck and an automobile near Greenwood yesterday afternoon.

Three persons met death and three were injured—two of them critically — late Friday night near Choudrant in a two car collision.

Dead in the accident on U. S. Highway 80 near Greenwood were identified by state police as Howell D. Slade, 44; his wife, Mrs. Coy Slade, 40; their daughter, Lewanna, 11; their son, Randy, 3; and Slade's mother, Mrs. Carrie Slade, 64.

Those killed in the two-car smash-up on Highway 80, two miles east of Choudrant at 10:35 p.m. Friday were identified as Ronnie Webb Fullilove, 10, Beuford Caldwell of Shreveport, and Henderson Jordan of Arcadia, formerly a Bienville parish sheriff, prominent in the capture of two desperados, Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, in the 1930's.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Fullilove of Shreveport remained in critical condition last night in the Ruston hospital, following the head-on collision which killed their 10-year-old son, a family friend and the driver of the other car.

Dorothy Jean Fullilove, the couple's seven - year old daughter, was in satisfactory condition. She was the least injured and was asleep in the back seat at the time of the crash.

Sheriff's Report

According to the Lincoln Parish Sheriff's Department, who investigated the crash along with State Police, Jordan was driving his late model Chevrolet west. Both cars' speeds were esti-

Reds Refuse To Deal With U.S. For Nine Airmen

BERLIN (UPI) — The United States Saturday sent an emissary to Communist East Germany for the first time to negotiate for the release of nine "kidnaped" American airmen. But the German Reds flatly refused to deal with him.

The Communists demanded that American negotiators must have formal "authorization" from the State Department. The demand bore out Western belief the Reds were holding the airmen as hostages in an attempt to force U.S. recognition.

The American action broke a decade of precedent. It was forced by the Soviet refusal to live up to four-power agreements and secure the release of the airmen captured when their helicopter strayed across the Iron Curtain last Saturday.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Tuesday the United States would deal with the East Germans as one must with "kidnapers" but that it would not imply recognition of the puppet Communist regime.

The Soviets—for the third time in a week—Saturday disclaimed any responsibility for the release of the airmen. The rejections were made in replies to two notes from the U.S. State Department and a verbal appeal from Gen. M.K. Hodes, American commander in Europe.

'ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN'?

Strange Creature Is Slain In Nepal

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI)--A strange creature with a bear-like face and human feet—believed to be a close relative of the "Abominable Snowman" — was tracked down and killed by huntsmen in a rugged 1,000 - foot altitude mountain pass in northwestern Nepal, it was reported Saturday.

There was speculation that the beast possibly was the fabulous and elusive Yeti—or "Snowman"—itself.

The Raja of Mustang, whose riflemen slew the creature, is sending the skull and hide to Katmandu for examination by scientists, according to the reports.

Man-Beast

The man-beast was described as about 4½ feet tall and incredibly strong. It was said to have run nearly a mile on its two hind legs carrying a Yak the size of a full-grown steer in its arms.

The creature was spotted about three months ago when it seized one of the Raja's Yaks and carried it off. The Raja sent a squad of riflemen in pursuit in the area near the border of northwestern Nepal and Tibet.

The Nepalese huntsman who led the party said they followed "what looked like a human footprint" into a craggy pass walled in by 50-foot boulders.

"The animal was cornered with its prey," the huntsman said. "We tried to crush it by throwing down boulders but we only injured him. He made a strange, whistling sound when hurt. He tried to get away but we finally shot it down."

The huntsman said he was shocked when he got his first real close look at the beast.

"It's face was like a bear's. But its feet were human. The creature also was covered with long, fine hair, less coarse than a bear's" he said.

Nepalese mountaineers said they had never seen anything like the beast before. They were definite that while it looked like a bear, it was some other kind of a beast.

Hagerty ducked most questions, called down one newsman for asking an "impertinent question," and referred repeatedly to his earlier statements defending Adams on behalf of the President

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), who like Potter must run for re-election this year, said if the top presidential aide accepted all the reported favors, "then I think Adams becomes a definite liability just as Harry Vaughn (White House military aide) was in the Truman administration."

"I have no way in the world of defending Republican activities like this any more than Democratic activities," Goldwater said.

A Democratic senator, Ralph Yarborough of Texas, used stronger language. In a Senate speech Yarborough said Adams' acceptance of favors from the rich industrialist was the "highest placed impropriety since the Teapot Dome" scandals of the early 1920's.

Adams, sometimes called "the second president," has denied any

Indiana Flood Tapering Off

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) —Rampaging rain-swollen rivers and streams poured relentlessly through north central Indiana farmlands Saturday, with the White River reaching its second highest stage in 45 years at Anderson, Ind.

Sunshine and fair skies, however, granted flood-weary workers a brief reprieve Saturday. There was hope one of the worst weather pummelings in Indiana history was tapering off and, although showers and thunderstorms were predicted Sunday, the Monday outlook indicated no rain.

State Solons Resume Grind This Evening

By SAM HANNA

BATON ROUGE——Confronted with a rare combination of segregation and wine, the Louisiana Legislature returns to work tonight, by no means confident that its chief problems are solved.

Still faced with a lack of teacher funds, the legislature now has taken on a much more serious issue, that of segregation spurned by an investigation of LSU.

With five weeks behind them, the legislators, despite the passage of the gas gathering tax, have not produced a means of retaining the teachers at their present pay schedule. But another phase of that problem is expected to be answered by a $3-million wine tax scheduled as the special order of the day when the house convenes Monday.

Even if the wine tax passes and even if $20-million from the increased gas gathering tax is allocated to the teachers, the legislature's biggest headache will continue to throb with $20-million from the gas tax and $3-million from an increased wine tax, another almost $20-million will be needed just to pay the teachers what they're making today. A solution to unfolding that $20-million has not been presented, except in the form of a sales tax, which Gov. Earl K. Long, ever mindful of the little man, opposes. So some believe the lawmakers

Police Jury Officials In La. Convicted

CHALMETTE, La. (UPI) — St. Bernard parish police jury president Celestine Melerine and vice president James Licciardi were convicted Friday of malfeasance in office in accepting kickback payments for purchases of oyster shells.

Presiding district judge J. Bernard Cocke did not set a date for sentencing. The two, plus a third defendant, face charges of malfeasance in another trial scheduled to begin next week.

Melerine and Licciardi were accused of taking kickback payments of $51.20, $359.50 and $283 from oyster canner John B. Lopez last year and early this year.

Defense attorneys John P. Dowling and F. Irvin Dymond said they would announce plans of a possible appeal after sentence was pronounced. Malfeasance in office is punishable by a maximum fine of $500, a maximum prison sentence of six months, or both.

Both officials maintained the charges were brought against them because they would not go along with St. Bernard parish district attorney Leander Perez' political commitments. The two maintained the charges against them were politically motivated.

The prosecution's case hinged on testimony of George Humble, a former road superintendent who was taken into Perez' employ after the police jury was reorganized last year.

Humble spent 10 hours on the stand Thursday telling of negotiations with contractor John B. Lopez, which he had taped on a recording device hidden on his person.

Lopez, testifying with the assurance he would not be prosecuted for taking part in the kickback system, said he paid back some $700 last December to the two police jurors on shell purchases made by the jury for road repairs.

Hot, Humid Day Is Prediction

Hot and humid today in Monroe is the weatherman's furnace forecast, with the chance of cooling thundershowers this afternoon and evening. The skies will be partly cloudy.

Much the same prediction stands for Arkansas with widely scattered thundershowers in the extreme North section. Not much change in temperature with the high predicted to range between 90 and 98 degrees.

'ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN' ?

Strange Creature Is Slain In Nepal

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI)--A strange creature with a bear-like face and human feet—believed to be a close relative of the "Abominable Snowman" — was tracked down and killed by huntsmen in a rugged 1,000 - foot altitude mountain pass in northwestern Nepal, it was reported Saturday.

There was speculation that the beast possibly was the fabulous and elusive Yeti—or "Snowman" —itself.

The Raja of Mustang, whose riflemen slew the creature, is sending the skull and hide to Katmandu for examination by scientists, according to the reports.

Man-Beast

The man-beast was described as about 4½ feet tall and incredibly strong. It was said to have run nearly a mile on its two hind legs carrying a Yak the size of a full-grown steer in its arms.

The creature was spotted about three months ago when it seized one of the Raja's Yaks and carried it off. The Raja sent a squad of riflemen in pursuit in the area near the border of northwestern Nepal and Tibet.

The Nepalese huntsman who led the party said they followed "what looked like a human footprint" into a craggy pass walled in by 50-foot boulders.

"The animal was cornered with its prey," the huntsman said. "We tried to crush it by throwing down boulders but we only injured him. He made a strange, whistling sound when hurt. He tried to get away but we finally shot it down."

The huntsman said he was shocked when he got his first real close look at the beast.

"It's face was like a bear's. But its feet were human. The creature also was covered with long, fine hair, less coarse than a bear's" he said.

Nepalese mountaineers said they had never seen anything like the beast before. They were definite that while it looked like a bear, it was some other kind of a beast.

Savage Day-Long Battle Shakes Beirut, Lebanon

Attempts To Seize Palace Are Repelled

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A savage day-long battle between government forces and rebels swept Beirut Saturday. It was the biggest outbreak of the month-old rebellion here.

Casualties were reported heavy in the fighting that brought artillery and tanks into action. No figures were available.

The rebels apparently launched the drive in a showdown effort to overthrow the pro-Western government of Premier Camille Chamoun. Attempts to seize the presidential palace and the government house were repelled.

The fighting dwindled into sporadic small arms fire and mortar explosions late Saturday night.

Heavy fighting was also reported in Tripoli, the northern port, where antigovernment forces opened their drive by burning the U.S. Information Agency Library May 10.

Filter Out

The rebels filtered out of their stronghold in the Moslem quarter here early in the day and launched a series of attacks.

The first was an attempt to seize Ramel Prison, in the capital's outskirts. Unconfirmed reports said the rebels captured the prison.

The fighting then developed in three main battles, all swirling through the Zarif district, on the edge of the Moslem quarter.

The worst fighting took place around the Basta a Moslem fortress located in the center of the capital, about 300 yards northeast of the Associated Press office.

The presidential palace is 300 yards west. About 150 feet south a similar battle went on intermittently during the day.

It was not known whether Chamoun was inside the heavily fortified presidential palace.

Dulles Claims Situation Is Not 'Alarming'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles said Saturday night — after a telephone report from the U. S. ambassador at Beirut—that the situation in Lebanon is "serious but not alarming."

Dispatches from Beirut told of day long fighting between government forces and rebels—the biggest outbreak of the month - old rebellion there.

Dulles cut short his participation in a class reunion at Princeton University to fly back to Washington midafternoon. He conferred with Undersecretary of State Christian Herter, Asst. Secretary William Rountree and other officials on the Lebanese crisis. Another participant reportedly was the secretary's brother, Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Secretary Dulles said: "The reports are that the situation is serious but not alarming. It is being watched very carefully."

Asked about the safety of Americans in the strife-torn Middle Eastern country, Dulles said, "Indications at the moment are there is no particular danger."

There are about 3,000 Americans, possibly less, in Lebanon. About 285 of them are official personnel and dependents. The State Department press office said there were no reports of any injuries to any of them and no knowledge here of any plans for evacuation.

ADMITS CROSBY KIDNAP PLOT — Wilburn E. Davidson sits in County jail where Sheriff's Lt. W. H. Salyers quoted him on an asserted plot to kidnap Mrs. Kathy Crosby, (AP Wirephoto)

BING'S WIFE

Man Considered Crosby Kidnap

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ex-convict Wilburn Davison admitted Saturday he considered kidnaping Mrs. Bing Crosby, 24, because her millionaire husband is "old, she's young, he's got plenty of money and wouldn't miss $100,000."

Davison, 48, a three-time loser in several states, made the admission at a news conference in Los Angeles County jail. He said he and his "partner" wanted the ransom money to go into a "legitimate business."

"It never got beyond the talking stage," said Davison, a tall, slim man who wears horn-rimmed glasses and is termed "dangerous" by law officers. "The idea was dropped when I read in a magazine that she was pregnant.

"I thought of Crosby because he's old, she's young, he's got plenty of money and wouldn't miss $100,000. I also thought about kidnaping that guy who gave all the furs to those movie gals."

Reporters at the conference agreed the soft - spoken former Oklahoman was referring to Lt. Gen. Raphael Trujillo Jr., the Dominican Republic's giver of expensive presents to stars like Zsa Zsa Gabor and Kim Novak.

Mrs. Crosby Unperturbed

Mrs. Crosby was in Reno, Nev., and seemed unperturbed by disclosure of the plot.

Regarding his "legitimate business" statement, Davison said, "we had talked about a restaurant but hadn't come up with anything tangible yet."

Davison, held here on his admission of 11 robberies in the Los Angeles area, said he and his "partner" planned to kidnap the former Kathy Grant, hold her and then notify Crosby.

"After I thought of it the first thing I did was start looking around for a woman to stay with her after we kidnaped her. I asked my 19-year-old niece, Nicky Snow, and she said she'd do it—and then she went right straight home."

Later, Davison said his niece told him she wouldn't do it. He identified her as the one who first disclosed the kidnap plot to Oklahoma authorities, saying she and his partner were the only ones who knew about it.

Davison's niece disclosed the kidnap plan to Seminole county Sheriff Bill Nicholson in Wewoka, Okla. Before she was identified here by Davidson, Nicholson had refused to release her name for fear that Davison's partner, still sought, would harm her. The

U.S. Senate Rejects Secret Labor Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Saturday night rejected a proposal to permit 20 per cent of a union's members to force a secret vote on removing their officers or revising a union constitution or by-laws.

Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif) was sponsor of this amendment to the pending labor control bill. It was defeated 52-31.

Knowland said his amendment was needed to prevent hoodlums and "unscrupulous union bosses" from remaining in control of unions and their big funds without proper accounting.

But Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), the bill's chief sponsor, and Irving M. Ives (R-NY) joined in fighting the Knowland amendment.

Kennedy said the proposal would be "a great mistake for those who believe in stability in union matters."

Sen. John O. Pastore (D-RI) shouted, "Its whole intent is to destroy organized labor."

Forty Democrats and 12 Republicans voted against the Knowland amendment while 25 Republicans and 6 Democrats supported it.

Earlier, the Senate defeated an administration proposal to retain a Taft-Hartley Act penalty against unions failing to file required financial reports.

Its rejection by a 53-30 vote was the third major setback for administration supporters trying to bring the labor control bill more in line with recommendations of President Eisenhower and Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

However, seven lesser administration amendments were approved by voice vote. Democrats dismissed them as of little importance and their Republican sponsor, Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ), agreed that some of them weren't of any great consequence.

Shreveport Family Of 5 Meets Death

Two north Louisiana auto wrecks claimed eight lives within a span of less than 20 hours.

Five persons, all members of a Shreveport family, were killed and five others injured in a shattering head-on collision of a flatbed truck and an automobile near Greenwood yesterday afternoon.

Three persons met death and three were injured—two of them critically — late Friday night near Choudrant in a two car collision.

Dead in the accident on U. S. Highway 80 near Greenwood were identified by state police as Howell D. Slade, 44; his wife, Mrs. Coy Slade, 40; their daughter, Lewanna, 11; their son, Randy, 3; and Slade's mother, Mrs. Carrie Slade, 64.

Those killed in the two-car smash-up on Highway 80, two miles east of Choudrant at 10:35 p.m. Friday were identified as Ronnie Webb Fullilove, 10, Beuford Caldwell of Shreveport, and Henderson Jordan of Arcadia, formerly a Bienville parish sheriff, prominent in the capture of two desperados, Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, in the 1930's.

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Fullilove of Shreveport remained in critical condition last night in the Ruston hospital, following the head-on collision which killed their 10-year-old son, a family friend and the driver of the other car.

Dorothy Jean Fullilove, the couple's seven - year old daughter, was in satisfactory condition. She was the least injured and was asleep in the back seat at the time of the crash.

Sheriff's Report

According to the Lincoln Parish Sheriff's Department, who investigated the crash along with State Police, Jordan was driving his late model Chevrolet west.

Both cars' speeds were esti-

Reds Refuse To Deal With U.S. For Nine Airmen

BERLIN (UPI) — The United States Saturday sent an emissary to Communist East Germany for the first time to negotiate for the release of nine "kidnaped" American airmen. But the German Reds flatly refused to deal with him.

The Communists demanded that American negotiators must have formal "authorization" from the State Department. The demand bore out Western belief the Reds were holding the airmen as hostages in an attempt to force U.S. recognition.

The American action broke a decade of precedent. It was forced by the Soviet refusal to live up to four-power agreements and secure the release of the airmen captured when their helicopter strayed across the Iron Curtain last Saturday.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said Tuesday the United States would deal with the East Germans as one must with "kidnapers" but that it would not imply recognition of the puppet Communist regime.

The Soviets—for the third time in a week—Saturday disclaimed any responsibility for the release of the airmen. The rejections were made in replies to two notes from the U.S. State Department and a verbal appeal from Gen. M.K. Hodes, American commander in Europe.

3 Northeast Students In High Rating

Three Northeast State students receiving their bachelor of science degrees with a major in physics at spring graduation all rated in the upper quarter at the national testing level.

Hobson Norris, Jr., West monroe and Alton McCready and Donald Allen, both of Monroe, were the high ranking students on the tests, Clifford L. Adams, chairman of the physics faculty, announced.

Scores on the Graduate Record Examination prepared by Princeton University and taken by college seniors placed Norris, McCready and Allen in the upper 25 per cent in the physics portion of all students ever having taken the test.

Other phases of the examination included social studies, humanities and natural sciences.

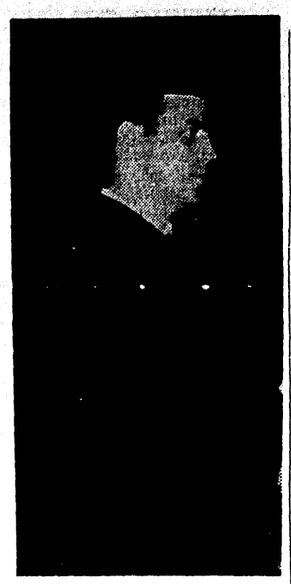

Adams pointed out Norris ranked in the top six per cent in physics, the top two per cent in social studies, the top one per cent in natural sciences and the top 12 per cent in humanities.

"Only about once in a generation does an area the size of Northeast Louisiana produce a student with such capabilities as those shown by Hobson Norris," Adams declared.

Norris, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hobson Norris, Sr., West Monroe, graduated from Ouachita Parish High School and received training at Capitol Radio Engineering Institute, Washington, D. C. before entering Northeast.

His studies were interrupted by army duty, which included service in Korea.

Norris is married and the father of a five-month-old daughter.

walls, working their way toward the presidential palace.

The U.N. Security Council ordered the team here earlier in the week in an effort to prevent arms and men from slipping into Lebanon from outside its borders. Lebanon has charged the United Arab Republic with interference in Lebanese internal affairs.

The rebel move had been expected to follow the U.N. step.

The rebels have used Ex-Premier Seab Salam's home as their headquarters for the last 36 days. Salam is the acknowledged leader of the political opposition to Chamoun. Three opposition political parties were declared outlawed Friday in a government drive to crush its foes.

(In Washington, U.S. Secretary of State Dulles said the Middle East situation "looked a little rocky and disturbed" and in answer to a question said the rocky reference applied to Lebanon. Dulles cut short a class reunion visit to Princeton University to return to Washington to confer on the situation.)

mated at between 50-60 miles per hour. They were welded together by the impact, and were a total loss.

Caldwell,. driving a 1958 Plymouth two door registered to Samuel D. Lucius, 1729 Madison Dr., Shreveport, was heading east with the Fullilloves as passengers.

Roadmaps, cookies and pillows scattered around the wreck scene indicated they were vacation-bound. Fullilove is a Civil Service employee at Barksdale Field near Shreveport.

Died Instantly

Jordan died instantly; he was alone in his car. Caldwell succumbed minutes after he arrived at the emergency room of the hospital. He suffered a crushed chest and a shattered face, when he took the full impact of the steering wheel and broken windshield.

Ronnie died at midnight, from internal bleeding. His pelvis was fractured and main arteries and veins next to it were severed.

"Still in critical condition but holding their own" last night according to their physician were Mr. and Mrs. Fullilove. He received multiple fractures of the left leg - two above the knee and two below - a fractured left arm, multiple lacerations of the face where he was cut by the windshield, and a head injury.

Mrs. Myrtle Fullilove received severe injuries to her face and mouth, and all her front teeth were knocked out. She also suffered an injury to her left eye, a fractured right arm and back injury.

Dorothy was in good condition, recuperating from minor bruises and shock.

Four ambulances from Kilpatrick and Darby funeral homes were summoned to the crash scene.

Five others were injured in the crash on U. S. Highway 80 near Greenwood, La.

Critically injured were Glenn H. Harris, 40, Shreveport, a brother of Mrs. Coy Slade, and another of the Slade children, 5-year-old Judy. Released after treatment was another passenger in the car, Charlotte Miller, 8, of Waskom.

Slightly injured, given treatment and then jailed were two Negroes in the truck. State trooper Harold Porter identified them as Jesse Field, 56, driver of the truck, and Otis Davis, 39, passenger, both of Mooringsport. Porter said Field was booked for investigation of negligent homicide and driving while intoxicated. Davis was held as a material witness.

Witnesses said the Slade auto was hit at an angle. Horace Alvord of Shreveport, who was following the death car, said apparently Slate attempted to avoid the crash. The vehicles were traveling toward Shreveport.

The Slades had been to Waskom to pick up his mother.

girl is the mother of two children.

Nicholson, an ex - FBI agent, said details of her story had held up in retelling and she said the plot had been worked out to plans for chaining Mrs. Crosby in a bathroom in a Los Angeles apartment.

The girl said Davison took her to Las Vegas, Nev., in April, promising to get her a job as a waitress in a cocktail lounge.

She said Gene Thorne Kling, 42, visited them shortly after they reached Las Vegas, April 16. The two men, she said, started talking about various crimes while they consumed 36 extra - sized cans of beer.

"Then they got to talking about a snatch," she said. "They checked me over and decided I was the right person to work with them. They said the person they had in mind to kidnap was Kathy Crosby.

"They had rented an apartment in Los Angeles and said it would take a long time—maybe several weeks—because they wanted to do it right."

She said Kling told her he had been trailing Mrs. Crosby for "several" weeks, to familiarize himself with her habits.

"They even talked about how many dry runs they were going to make on the thing," she said. "They started synchronizing their watches, so they would stay together all the time."

They were supposed to kidnap Mrs. Crosby and take her to an apartment in Los Angeles, where she would be waiting.

He said the suicide note he had left before taking off Thursday from Gulfport, Miss. was a hoax, designed to delay pursuit, after he could not obtain leave from his station, Keesler Air Force Base, Miss.

"I know I'll never marry him. He knew that before this."

Excitement Of Game Sets Stage For Leg Injury

It was 6-6 ... somebody hit a triple ... the crowd jumped up and down in excitement ... and as Bobby Panzico yelled he jumped against a protruding nail.

The 11-year-old youth, who lives at 124 Vernon St. and is a Little League ballplayer, was cheering on another team from the sidelines last night, at the Southside park.

The nail inflicted a gash in his leg, and he was treated at St. Francis, then released.

Ike Backs Adams

Rep. Peter F. Mack (D-Ill.), a member of the committee who Friday demanded the President fire Adams, called Saturday for a Justice Department investigation of Goldfine. He said the textile tycoon's activities "offer a lucrative field" for inquiry.

President Eisenhower, through Hagerty, has declared his complete support of Adams.

Harris, in open hearings starting Monday, will question former and present Federal Trade Commission officials on how the FTC handled its complaint against Goldfine's Northfield textile mills.

The FTC charged Northfield with violating the wool labeling act by using cheaper goods than its labels specified. The mill filed a report agreeing to stop the practice. The subcommittee staff has accused Northfield of continuing the violation.

The story of Goldfine's largesse toward influential friends continued to develop. Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R-Maine) said Goldfine had given him a vicuna coat which was "ideal for the cold Maine winters."

He said Goldfine weaves vicuna cloth, from the wool of a llama-like South American animal, in his New England Mills, and has the coats made elsewhere.

State Solons Resume Grind This Evening

are headed for a special session to be called this fall.

More Fuel

Meanwhile, adding more fuel to the fire, Fiery Sen. Willie Rainach, the Homer segregationist, has shifted the state's attention away from taxes, pointing a finger at 66 LSU faculty members.

The Rainach-led legislature pounced on the University after two professors testified against his segregation bills at a house education committee hearing early last week.

"A preliminary investigative hearing failed to produce concrete evidence that LSU has faculty members who teach anti-segregation views, even though 6 6of them signed a petition against Rainach's bills.

Night hearings are expected this week, the first coming Monday night when the legislature's newly appointed joint committee launches its second probe of the University. The investigation will walk hand-in-hand with Rep. T. T. Fields' proposals to reduce the terms of members of the LSU Board of Supervisors and provide a system of selecting two from each congressional district.

Term Proposal

The Farmerville representative proposes a nine-year term for each board member. They serve 14 years now. Strangely enough developments in the current session of the legislature have centered around one particular group. With the now-weakened "34 club" fighting the proposed one-cent increase in the gas gathering tax, Rep. John Garrett switched to favor the tax after several years of leading the anti-tax lawmakers.

Garrett's switch came while Rainach, a close colleague to the Claiborne legislator, joined Long's leaders in fighting for the tax on the house floor. At the same time, F. F. Wimberly the LTA legislative committee chairman, continued to play his lobbying role for the tax.

Days later, Rainach and Garrett joined up in the LSU investigations while Wimberly went to bat for the segregation bills and opposed Rep. Edgar Lancaster's teacher tenure law amendments.

LYC Reports Juvenile Book Well Received

Mrs. A. Dent Tisdale of Monroe, vice chairman of the Louisiana Youth Commission today said that "The response we are receiving from the publication of 'Juvenile Laws of Louisiana" by the Louisiana Youth Commission has been extremely gratifying. This publication which has been recently released is the result of three years of intensive work in analyzing juvenile laws, court decisions and is filling a great need in Louisiana."

Mrs. Tisdale said that the suggestion for such a compilation first came from Chief Justice Fournet of the Louisiana Supreme Court in 1953 when he addressed the annual conference of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges meeting in New Orleans and said, "Iwas appalled to find that among the thousands of volumes in our state law library, where my preparation of this speech began, there was not one single book telling of the juvenile—his delinquency, his court and his judge."

The Louisiana Youth Commission undertook the task of compiling these laws and a special appropriation from the legislature enabled the commission to proceed with the publication and distribution of the completed book.

As far as can be determined Mrs. Tisdale said, "This is the first attempt to place in one volume all the laws and citations of the courts of this state on juvenile matters. The book is being sent to all judges, district attorneys and others working with juveniles."

Mrs. G. W. Pomeroy of Monroe is also a member of the Louisiana Youth Commission of which Dr. C. H. Webb of Shreveport is chairman.

President Eisenhower, through Hagerty, has declared his complete support of Adams.

Harris, in open hearings starting Monday, will question former and present Federal Trade Commission officials on how the FTC handled its complaint against Goldfine's Northfield textile mills.

The FTC charged Northfield with violating the wool labeling act by using cheaper goods than its labels specified. The mill filed a report agreeing to stop the practice. The subcommittee staff has accused Northfield of continuing the violation.

The story of Goldfine's largesse toward influential friends continued to develop. Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R-Maine) said Goldfine had given him a vicuna coat which was "ideal for the cold Maine winters."

He said Goldfine weaves vicuna cloth, from the wool of a llama-like South American animal, in his New England Mills, and has the coats made elsewhere.

are headed for a special session to be called this fall.

More Fuel

Meanwhile, adding more fuel to the fire, Fiery Sen. Willie Rainach, the Homer segregationist, has shifted the state's attention away from taxes, pointing a finger at 66 LSU faculty members.

The Rainach-led legislature pounced on the University after two professors testified against his segregation bills at a house education committee hearing early last week.

"A preliminary investigative hearing failed to produce concrete evidence that LSU has faculty members who teach anti-segregation views, even though 6 6of them signed a petition against Rainach's bills.

Night hearings are expected this week, the first coming Monday night when the legislature's newly appointed joint committee launches its second probe of the University. The investigation will walk hand-in-hand with Rep. T. T. Fields' proposals to reduce the terms of members of the LSU Board of Supervisors and provide a system of selecting two from each congressional district.

Term Proposal

The Farmerville representative proposes a nine-year term for each board member. They serve 14 years now. Strangely enough developments in the current session of the legislature have centered around one particular group. With the now-weakened "34 club" fighting the proposed one-cent increase in the gas gathering tax, Rep. John Garrett switched to favor the tax after several years of leading the anti-tax lawmakers.

Garrett's switch came while Rainach, a close colleague to the Claiborne legislator, joined Long's leaders in fighting for the tax on the house floor. At the same time, F. F. Wimberly the LTA legislative committee chairman, continued to play his lobbying role for the tax.

Days later, Rainach and Garrett joined up in the LSU investigations while Wimberly went to bat for the segregation bills and opposed Rep. Edgar Lancaster's teacher tenure law amendments.

LYC Reports Juvenile Book Well Received

Mrs. A. Dent Tisdale of Monroe, vice chairman of the Louisiana Youth Commission today said that "The response we are receiving from the publication of 'Juvenile Laws of Louisiana" by the Louisiana Youth Commission has been extremely gratifying. This publication which has been recently released is the result of three years of intensive work in analyzing juvenile laws, court decisions and is filling a great need in Louisiana."

Mrs. Tisdale said that the suggestion for such a compilation first came from Chief Justice Fournet of the Louisiana Supreme Court in 1953 when he addressed the annual conference of the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges meeting in New Orleans and said, "Iwas appalled to find that among the thousands of volumes in our state law library, where my preparation of this speech began, there was not one single book telling of the juvenile —his delinquency, his court and his judge."

The Louisiana Youth Commission undertook the task of compiling these laws and a special appropriation from the legislature enabled the commission to proceed with the publication and distribution of the completed book.

As far as can be determined Mrs. Tisdale said, "This is the first attempt to place in one volume all the laws and citations of the courts of this state on juvenile matters. The book is being sent to all judges, district attorneys and others working with juveniles."

Mrs. G. W. Pomeroy of Monroe is also a member of the Louisiana Youth Commission of which Dr. C. H. Webb of Shreveport is chairman.

No Witch Hunt

The Louisiana house of representatives has wisely decided to conduct investigations in the various colleges of the state, starting with Louisiana State University, to determine whether or not staff members of these institutions are advocating and teaching racial integration. The lawmakers want to know whether or not students have been encouraged to advocate integration. They also want to know if faculty members have gone too far in promoting their private views.

Each person's own right to express his personal views is well recognized in the United States. A faculty member or anyone else can say practically anything he pleases so long as he does not advocate treason or the forceful overthrow of the federal government. This is a cherished American tradition and one that we would not want to see changed.

Another right the people of Louisiana, as well as those of other states, enjoy is that of choosing those who serve in public institutions. While a person has the right to express his own views, he faces the likelihood of being discharged if he openly advocates a course deemed to be against public policy.

This is the crux of the investigation now being conducted by the house of representatives. The lawmakers must decide who, if anyone, has been guilty of open advocacy of a policy contrary to the public good. It is not the duty, and probably not the right, of the legislators to censor the thinking of any of the faculty members, which is certainly a matter beyond anyone's control.

The mere fact that anyone has said he does not believe the public schools of Louisiana should be closed should not be a cause for dismissal. This is not a matter on which we should operate with closed minds. Members of the Louisiana senate and house should examine their own minds to determine whether or not they think such a step would be a wise course. It is never, under any circumstances, a good policy to accept blindly a situation that has been declared by some one else to be good. It is not wise to be stampeded into a closed-mind conclusion.

Those of us who look upon closing of the Louisiana schools as being preferable to racial integration should and must be willing to hear the arguments on the other side or we shall not be able to reach a conclusion based upon all of the facts.

There is a great difference between this argument and the open advocacy and teaching of the theory of integration in a public institution. This difference should be recognized by the legislators and they should make it the basis on which they reach their decisions. The investigations must not be carried to the point of witch-hunting, which would lead to an endless waste of time, would add to confusion, would bring injustices and would in no way help in the solution of the problem in which the legislators are concerned—the maintenance of racial segregation.

Most of the members of the legislature and most of the people of Louisiana are convinced that the legislation now being enacted will be successful and that it will provide a way to allow this state to maintain its cherished tradition of separation of the races in public institutions. Whether this is true or not remains to be seen and in the long run it does not seem that we have much to lose—and we may have a great deal to gain—by trying it.

We know that under our present laws the state of Louisiana is defenseless against the federal government's determination to intrude itself into the affairs of the state. The purpose of the new laws is to find a way to block that intrusion. It may be the only step now available that will have a reasonable chance with the United States supreme court.

Virginia is now proceeding with plans for closing schools next fall in Arlington county, across the Potomac from Washington, when integration attempts are made. This area was the scene of mass immigration from Washington when the District of Columbia instituted integration. Norfolk and Charlotte are expected to begin making plans for school closing as soon as current school terms are ended. Richmond may soon have to follow.

Proposed school-closing laws in Louisiana are patterned after those in Virginia. There is no proposal for a general closing of schools in a town, city, county or district because Negroes are ordered admitted to one. State funds are denied to one school if integration becomes effective. The provisions apply to Negro schools as well as to white schools. Virginia has made provision to make every child a separate legal case and that is what Louisiana contemplates.

Each child displaced by the closing of a school would receive the same amount of money per month that had been allotted to his school for him. He could use this money to pay tuition in any school that would accept him. The proposal is built on the principals of the GI bill of rights, which gave money to the veteran and let him choose his own school.

Since this recourse has been left open to opponents of integration and since Louisiana is one of the states in which most of the legislators and most of the people prefer such a system to integration, it will be put into effect.

Advocacy of integration by a few faculty members of Louisiana State University and other colleges of the state will not stop the contemplated action but the lawmakers have it within their power to stop an instructor from such advocacy or to provide for his dismissal. Advocating integration is already a cause for dismissal of a teacher in the public school system and it could be made to apply as well to any instructor in our colleges.

It is hoped that the legislators will draw a correct line of demarcation between the right to one's own opinion and the teaching of a policy deemed contrary to the public good.

Moon Shot Fuss

Official air force reproval of Lt. Gen. S. E. Anderson for announcing planning dates for shooting rockets at the moon was equivalent to making a mountain out of a molehill. No one doubts that Gen. Anderson was approximately right and that the dates he mentioned are about the ones contemplated. The reprimand by James H. Douglas, secretary of the air force, looks more like an effort to put Gen. Anderson "in his place" than a denial that the dates were correct.

The magazine "Flying" had previously announced that the United States expects to launch a manned satellite some time during the last part of this year.

Latest reports are that the United States will attempt, probably by September, to place a satellite in orbit around the moon, rather than to make an attempt to hit the moon.

In the days when the mighty "Babe" Ruth was at the height of his glory in baseball—a height never achieved before nor since by any player—the "Babe" liked to call his shots. He would point to a spot over the right field, center field or left field fence and flamboyantly announced to his thousands of fans that there was where he would place his home run at that time at bat. He usually fulfilled his boast and the crowd would roar. It was largely because of the anticipation that had been created that the crowd went wild with enthusiasm. Because he had boasted, the "Babe" always felt not only obliged but inspired him to "come through."

Our air force and research development branch could well afford to generate more public enthusiasm. It could do so if it would show one-half the confidence by pointing at the moon and saying, "There is where we are going to knock our next home run."

Willis And Colmer Push Bills To Assist South

WASHINGTON — Any time the South scores a legislative victory in the House, it's a good bet that a strategy - wise pair from Louisiana and Mississippi helped maneuver it.

The sight of Rep. Edwin E. Willis of Louisiana and Rep. William M. Colmer of Mississippi in a huddle in the House cloak room is a familiar one to newsmen and to other members of the House.

This is particularly true when a civil rights fight is underway — as during the last two sessions of Congress — or during the present consideration of legislation designed to correct recent Supreme Court decisions.

From their vantage points on the two committees most concerned, Willis and Colmer are able to help block or else to expedite action, depending on whether they oppose or support the pending bills.

Willis is high on the House judiciary committee, which considers measures having to do with civil rights, affecting the judiciary system and other related matters, and he is chairman of a subcommittee charged with studying recent rulings by the high tribunal.

Colmer is ranking Democrat on the House's most powerful committee, the rules committee. All legislation must clear this body before reaching the House for consideration.

Furthermore, he is a very close friend of Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, chairman of the rules committee.

The close teamwork between the Louisianan and the Mississippian springs from the fact that they come from neighboring states, from the deep interest each has in the Constitution, and also from their association in the unofficial Southern strategy group. Colmer has served as chairman since Southerners from 11 states first organized during the days when former President Harry Truman's civil rights drive was underway. Willis is a key member of the group.

The occasional meetings of these southerners have frequently resulted in their joining with the conservative element of the Republican party on important issues. Many members from below the Mason - Dixon line are frankly resentful of the fact that the "new Republicans" of the present administration are not cooperating.

Conferring almost daily Willis and Colmer helped map out the Southern plan for delaying the civil rights bill at the last session. They, together with other opponents, won an estimated six months delay.

The Louisianan can claim credit for spearheading the successful drive to bring the so - called Smith bill out of the Judiciary committee, despite the objection of Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem., N. Y.).

This measure makes it clear that even though Congress has legislated in a field, a state law in the same field is not invalidated unless the federal act contains a specific provision to that effect.

The proposal grew out of the Steve Nelson case in which the Supreme Court set aside Nelson's conviction under a Pennsylvania anti-subversive law on the ground that the Smith Act (authored by Chairman Smith of the rules committee) had given jurisdiction to the federal government only.

Smith was one of the strongest objectors to the decision. At once he introduced the present bill "to bar such misinterpretations and misapplications of the theory of preemption."

Colmer described the measure as "the most far - reaching bill that it is practicable for us to enact. It is based on the Tenth Amendment, which says plainly that all powers not specifically delegated to the federal government are reserved to the states."

"Passage of this bill will be the greatest victory we Southerners and believers in the Constitution can hope to get. It would correct a large number of Supreme Court decisions," he added.

Colmer said the rules committee will take action on the bill immediately after the judiciary committee's accompanying report is received. Willis is now preparing the report.

Therefore, the full House will take the bill under consideration within the next few days.

This is merely one of numerous important instances where the Willis - Colmer teamwork is paying off.

Tame Rats Are Wiser Than Wild

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Look to the rat. Early in World War II Dr. Curt Richter, professor of psychobiology at the Johns Hopkins Medical School and Director of the Psychobiological Laboratory there, was called upon to block a putative enemy plot.

Fearing that the Nazis would attack our cities and farms by germ warfare with rat-borne bacteria, the Office of Scientific Research and Development assigned Dr. Richter, a noted researcher, to learn all he could about poisoning wild rats.

Although the doctor had worked with domesticated rats for medical experiments, he says that he had seen no more than the average man of the wild variety. But he went to work capturing, killing, studying and operating upon thousands of the wild so-called Norway rats.

And now, something less than two decades later, the doctor who combines single-eyed scientific devotion with a quiet sense of objective humor about the human race, has concluded that people and rats are remarkably alike. He tells me that those of us who write about people should look to the rat for parallel studies.

Does this idea offend our human vanity? Well, the wild Norway rat migrated from Europe to North America as we did. Today, in this country as universally, the Norway wild rat lives close to man, eats the same foods, establishes similar colonies and maintains about the same birth rate.

A visit to Dr. Richter's laboratory at the Phipps Clinic, Johns Hopkins Hospital, is not a bad place to study contemporary history. Our 20th Century dream of abolishing war? Well, Dr. Richter has a fighting chamber which is an oblong, glass-windowed box with alternate floor-bars that are electrically charged. Two wild rats stimulated by an electrical shock will instantly leap into a death battle. They blame the nearest creature — "Yankee, Go Home!" — for the pricks and prods of environmental misfortune. But two domesticated rats (more than 50 generations in captivity or "civilization") do not fight. Instead, they first try to escape; then they learn to avoid the shocks by standing on their hind legs on one or two neutral bars. Is there human hope for world peace in this example?

The most characteristic difference between wild and domesticated rats is in the proficiency of the adrenals and the gonads. In layman's language, the wild rats are better equipped by nature for fighting and the civilized rats for breeding. The human race, of course, is not as neatly divided into laboratory cages. Some peoples on all the continents are under-civilized and some over-civilized, and some of the latter are reverting to their former wild state. Moreover, the introduction of preventive medicine in the semi civilized lands of Asia, Africa and South America has caused a man-made change in the birth rate, and not for the good of the world.

Still, in general, it would seem that the advance of culture takes the hate, fear, fight and suspicion out of people. While the stability of culture makes for loving, family-building and what psychiatrists call "the well-adjusted person."

But civilization, although relatively comfortable, has its indigenous perils. Rat-study shows that a protected environment makes its creatures become milder, weaker, easier to handle, and less concerned with personal liberty. A certain amount of savagery is needed for a people to keep its freedom. The mutation that a protected environment — a welfare state — performs upon our bodies is a tendency toward rot. The 12 million American sufferers from hypertension, rheumatism, arthritis and the like may be the victims of adrenal (fighting) deficiency. Many sufferers from neoplastic (cancer) diseases are victims of overstimulated gonads (reproductive glands), a tendency of stabilized community life.

Daily Devotions

And the Lord met Balaam, and put a word in his mouth, and said, go again unto Balak. — Numbers 23:16.

Balak was a doubter and the word that the Lord put in Baalam's mouth was really many words that can be summed up in the one word "dependability." After his conference with the Lord Baalam went back to Balak to assure him that the Almighty is not mortal and guilty of human sinfulness and deception. In this day and age are we also doubting Balaks, unwilling to accept at face value the promises and assurances of God and Christ? If this were not the case, our religious meetings would be crowded.

Gracious Father, help us to revive and retain the faith expressed in the old hymn, "Standing on the promises of God." In Christ's name we ask. Amen.

VIEWS OF OUR READERS

GARRETT DEFENDED

Editor, Morning World:

I am very disappointed in your editorials on John Garrett. I grant you the right to your opinion but when you use your paper editorially to cast aspersions on the integrity of one of our representatives, I can but protest your action.

Please grant Mr. Garrett the right to his own integrity as I have heretofore granted you yours in your support of the anti-gas tax. Your interest is apparent in their advertisements placed in your papers. May I believe that economics does both affect your support or non-support?

I heartily endorse Mr. Garrett for placing the education of the children of the state of Louisiana over and above any one segment of the economy of the state. Please believe me when I say that I think to save anything for the gas people, for the state, for the nation or for the world at the expense of the education of the future citizens is a most short-sighted action. For what and whom are you saving it if an uneducation citizenry abdicates the free enterprise system?

Thank you for your kind consideration of my plea for the kids to come.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Very truly yours,
JACK L. HARPER.

LAUDS JAWORSKY

Monroe, La.

Editor, News-Star—World.

A million cheers to Dr. Sas-Jaworsky for starting the ball rolling against our very naive and gullible senior senator! And as for an apology — of all the nerve! Ellender is the one who owes us an apology.

As a loyal American who is surfeited by Ellender's many summer junkets into Russia and the accompanying praise of all things Russian on his return, I'd like to add my two cents' worth on the side with Dr. Sas, sans apology. It irks me to think we constituents not only pay for these summer jaunts but also for his propaganda trips around the state.

Only now Ellender claims those vapid utterances on Soviet education were made not because he admired it, but because it "poses a great threat to our own industrial and technological supremacy." It did not sound that way back in the winter when he made a round of TV stations and colleges showing his films of Russia and expounding his propaganda—at the taxpayers' expense. A telecast from KNOE (a public service, of course!), in Monroe, Louisiana, gave a quite different impression to me. Ellender apparently enjoyed himself then as a fond grandfather showing pictures of his grandchildren. Never has such bunkum poured forth. I could hardly bear his eulogies and enthusiasm about the Soviet system. He "encountered no difficulties" in Russia. (Other Americans report a feeling of being watched.) Apparently he swallowed most of the propaganda unquestioningly. Since he speaks no Russian and was unable to conduct his own interviews with the Russian people, it is obvious that his conclusions could have been implanted in him in no other way than by the direct suggestion of the Reds.

His dialogue of scenes interpolated "tea like a kiss," "food most appetizingly served," and "no flies in the market"! Imagine using such phrases about a country bent on world revolution.

He could believe "child delinquency not a problem in practically all parts of Russia — children so well-behaved." He reiterated "The Russians are people just like us — very little difference in our lives — better educational program, proscribed (sic) courses, chemistry and physics in sixth grade." (He sat idly by in Congress when the Social Planners and Educationists raped our education system; why couldn't he have evinced some interest in education then?)

His commentary included "In Russia we have sixteen republics." His audience wondered just what the use of the first person portended.

He had the unmitigated gall to urge us to eliminate propaganda from the world information program — to give factual reporting. And he never once disparaged the system presently in effect in the Soviet Union.

Ellender was proud to show off Red modern auto plants — every idea of which came from Detroit, no doubt. He praised the co-operative farms calling them "Big State Farms" instead of the prison farms they are. And their cattle should be fine; our lawmakers let those Russian spy-farmers come in and see and get all our farm and cattle ideas. He admitted the Russian goal was to surpass the USA in meat and dairy products in 1960 with the aplomb of a Tulane coach saying they were to beat LSU then.

How proudly he showed off dams. "Just like ours in the U. S.!" Certainly, since we built and paid for both!

He stated emphasitcally that he "never saw a slave camp in Siberia." Can't he realize he saw only what they wanted him to see? And after praising people, crops, towns, and products, stated, "all state-owned, of course." The ideal way, according to Ellender!

He remarked at the end "to carry films into Russia would be quite expensive." Only we are to have the propaganda. Russia wouldn't tolerate a politician whooping up another country two minutes. But he wanted his films shown to the school children of the state!

At our local college he preached the fallacious doctrine of co-existence and exchange programs. Even the juvenile mind realizes that the result of these is to relax American vigilance — just what the Reds want. Ellender's every utterance smacks of that pusillanimous slogan, "If you can't lick 'em join 'em." Most of the free world realizes since Hungary that that tired allegation "peaceful coexistence" is as dead as "agrarian reformers."

Any good American would realize that Ellender was lured into propaganda booby traps. He was deliberately used to further deep-laid Red objectives. He received a sugar-coated indoctrination in the virtues and achievements of Communism. Do we want lawmakers so gullible? Perhaps he was not aware of the implications of his visit, that he was being steered to pro-Soviet conclusions, and that visitors are exposed to all the favorable aspects of Marxism. But he came home to join the deluded band of appeasers. If he is still so fatuously unaware he has been manipulated by the Reds, let's give him a permanent visa to Russia.

Ellender was in Congress when all our agencies were packed with Commies and fellow travelers during the New Deal. He was right there when our government gave Russia every American industrial discovery, every secret weapon, every resource of our fabulous American economy including more than $12 billion in direct lend-lease shipment. He was in Congress when Red spies, unhindered by New Deal policy, penetrated every industrial research laboratory, drained us of every accomplishment and advantage of our bountiful American technology. Now he praises their advances! Oh, the price we shall have to pay for the folly of our political leaders.

Isn't there some loyal, patriotic citizen of Louisiana who will oppose Ellender when he stands for re-election? This is a clarion call for some one who will put first things first and try to right some of the stupidities of the Congress. Betrayed constituents who are financing our own downfall demand a more dedicated caliber of lawmaker. Our country faces bankruptcy, brought on by traitors. We have no more national time left for double talk.

CREDIT: Henry Ford's first taste of success came after Barney Oldfield drove one of his new model cars in a race. Oldfield drove the car at such breakneck speed (60 miles an hour) that overnight the names of both men became well known.

Some years later, when Ford was a multimillionaire, the two met again at the giant Ford plant.

"You know, Barney," reminisced the motor magnate, "that race was the beginning for both of us. You made me and I made you."

Oldfield looked out of the window at the sprawling assembly lines that stretched as far as the eye could see.

"Henry," he said, "you must admit I did a better job."

SURRENDER: A society matron noted for her wearisome parties was trying to snare humorist Oliver Herford as a dinner guest.

"Will you come Monday night?" she asked him.

"I can't," pleaded Herford. "I must finish some illustrations for a magazine."

'Let's make it Tuesday," she suggested.

"No, not Tuesday. I have an appointment with my publisher."

"Then why not make it Wednesday?" she persisted.

"I'm sorry, I have tickets for the theatre."

"I do not discourage easily, Mr. Herford," she warned him. "How about Thursday?"

"Oh well," sighed Herford, "let's make it Monday."

We know that under our present laws the state of Louisiana is defenseless against the federal government's determination to intrude itself into the affairs of the state. The purpose of the new laws is to find a way to block that intrusion. It may be the only step now available that will have a reasonable chance with the United States supreme court.

Virginia is now proceeding with plans for closing schools next fall in Arlington county, across the Potomac from Washington, when integration attempts are made. This area was the scene of mass immigration from Washington when the District of Columbia instituted integration. Norfolk and Charlotte are expected to begin making plans for school closing as soon as current school terms are ended. Richmond may soon have to follow.

Proposed school-closing laws in Louisiana are patterned after those in Virginia. There is no proposal for a general closing of schools in a town, city, county or district because Negroes are ordered admitted to one. State funds are denied to one school if integration becomes effective. The provisions apply to Negro schools as well as to white schools. Virginia has made provision to make every child a separate legal case and that is what Louisiana contemplates.

Each child displaced by the closing of a school would receive the same amount of money per month that had been allotted to his school for him. He could use this money to pay tuition in any school that would accept him. The proposal is built on the principals of the GI bill of rights, which gave money to the veteran and let him choose his own school.

Since this recourse has been left open to opponents of integration and since Louisiana is one of the states in which most of the legislators and most of the people prefer such a system to integration, it will be put into effect.

Advocacy of integration by a few faculty members of Louisiana State University and other colleges of the state will not stop the contemplated action but the lawmakers have it within their power to stop an instructor from such advocacy or to provide for his dismissal. Advocating integration is already a cause for dismissal of a teacher in the public school system and it could be made to apply as well to any instructor in our colleges.

It is hoped that the legislators will draw a correct line of demarcation between the right to one's own opinion and the teaching of a policy deemed contrary to the public good.

Moon Shot Fuss

Official air force reproval of Lt. Gen. S. E. Anderson for announcing planning dates for shooting rockets at the moon was equivalent to making a mountain out of a molehill. No one doubts that Gen. Anderson was approximately right and that the dates he mentioned are about the ones contemplated. The reprimand by James H. Douglas, secretary of the air force, looks more like an effort to put Gen. Anderson "in his place" than a denial that the dates were correct.

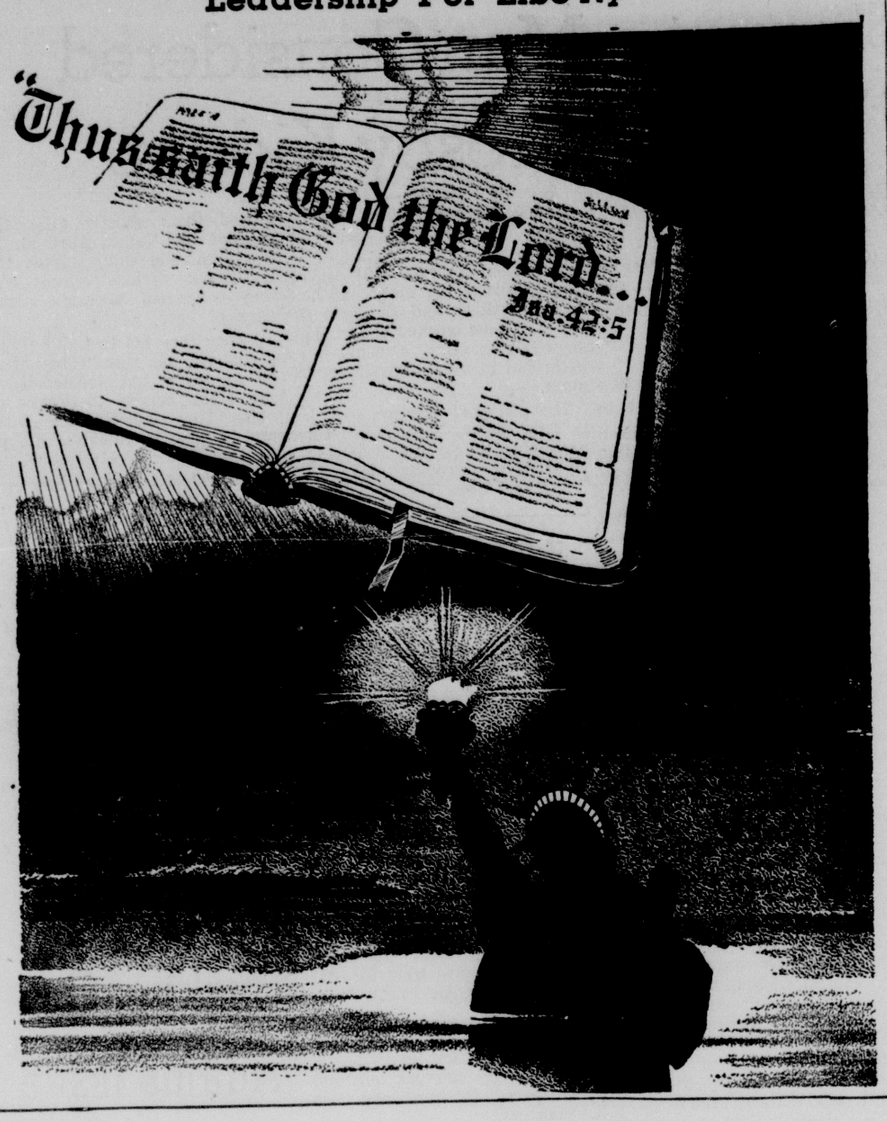

The magazine "Flying" had previously announced that the United States expects to launch a manned satellite some time during the last part of this year.

Latest reports are that the United States will attempt, probably by September, to place a satellite in orbit around the moon, rather than to make an attempt to hit the moon.

In the days when the mighty "Babe" Ruth was at the height of his glory in baseball—a height never achieved before nor since by any player—the "Babe" liked to call his shots. He would point to a spot over the right field, center field or left field fence and flamboyantly announced to his thousands of fans that there was where he would place his home run at that time at bat. He usually fulfilled his boast and the crowd would roar. It was largely because of the anticipation that had been created that the crowd went wild with enthusiasm. Because he had boasted, the "Babe" always felt not only obliged but inspired him to "come through."

Our air force and research development branch could well afford to generate more public enthusiasm. It could do so if it would show one-half the confidence by pointing at the moon and saying, "There is where we are going to knock our next home run."

Willis And Colmer Push Bills To Assist South

WASHINGTON — Any time the South scores a legislative victory in the House, it's a good bet that a strategy - wise pair from Louisiana and Mississippi helped maneuver it.

The sight of Rep. Edwin E. Willis of Louisiana and Rep. William M. Colmer of Mississippi in a huddle in the House cloak room is a familiar one to newsmen and to other members of the House.

This is particularly true when a civil rights fight is underway — as during the last two sessions of Congress — or during the present consideration of legislation designed to correct recent Supreme Court decisions.

From their vantage points on the two committees most concerned, Willis and Colmer are able to help block or else to expedite action, depending on whether they oppose or support the pending bills.

Willis is high on the House judiciary committee, which considers measures having to do with civil rights, affecting the judiciary system and other related matters, and he is chairman of a subcommittee charged with studying recent rulings by the high tribunal.

Colmer is ranking Democrat on the House's most powerful committee, the rules committee. All legislation must clear this body before reaching the House for consideration.

Furthermore, he is a very close friend of Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, chairman of the rules committee.

The close teamwork between the Louisianan and the Mississippian springs from the fact that they come from neighboring states, from the deep interest each has in the Constitution, and also from their association in the unofficial Southern strategy group. Colmer has served as chairman since Southerners from 11 states first organized during the days when former President Harry Truman's civil rights drive was underway. Willis is a key member of the group.

The occasional meetings of these southerners have frequently resulted in their joining with the conservative element of the Republican party on important issues. Many members from below the Mason - Dixon line are frankly resentful of the fact that the "new Republicans" of the present administration are not cooperating.

Conferring almost daily Willis and Colmer helped map out the Southern plan for delaying the civil rights bill at the last session. They, together with other opponents, won an estimated six months delay.

The Louisianan can claim credit for spearheading the successful drive to bring the so - called Smith bill out of the Judiciary committee, despite the objection of Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem., N. Y.).

This measure makes it clear that even though Congress has legislated in a field, a state law in the same field is not invalidated unless the federal act contains a specific provision to that effect.

The proposal grew out of the Steve Nelson case in which the Supreme Court set aside Nelson's conviction under a Pennsylvania anti-subversive law on the ground that the Smith Act (authored by Chairman Smith of the rules committee) had given jurisdiction to the federal government only.

Smith was one of the strongest objectors to the decision. At once he introduced the present bill "to bar such misinterpretations and misapplications of the theory of preemption."

Colmer described the measure as "the most far - reaching bill that it is practicable for us to enact. It is based on the Tenth Amendment, which says plainly that all powers not specifically delegated to the federal government are reserved to the states."

"Passage of this bill will be the greatest victory we Southerners and believers in the Constitution can hope to get. It would correct a large number of Supreme Court decisions," he added.

Colmer said the rules committee will take action on the bill immediately after the judiciary committee's accompanying report is received. Willis is now preparing the report.

Therefore, the full House will take the bill under consideration within the next few days.

This is merely one of numerous important instances where the Willis - Colmer teamwork is paying off.

HOLMES ALEXANDER

Tame Rats Are Wiser Than Wild

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Look to the rat. Early in World War II Dr. Curt Richter, professor of psychobiology at the Johns Hopkins Medical School and Director of the Psychobiological Laboratory there, was called upon to block a putative enemy plot.

Fearing that the Nazis would attack our cities and farms by germ warfare with rat-borne bacteria, the Office of Scientific Research and Development assigned Dr. Richter, a noted researcher, to learn all he could about poisoning wild rats.

Although the doctor had worked with domesticated rats for medical experiments, he says that he had seen no more than the average man of the wild variety. But he went to work capturing, killing, studying and operating upon thousands of the wild so-called Norway rats.

And now, something less than two decades later, the doctor who combines single-eyed scientific devotion with a quiet sense of objective humor about the human race, has concluded that people and rats are remarkably alike. He tells me that those of us who write about people should look to the rat for parallel studies.

Does this idea offend our human vanity? Well, the wild Norway rat migrated from Europe to North America as we did. Today, in this country as universally, the Norway wild rat lives close to man, eats the same foods, establishes similar colonies and maintains about the same birth rate.

A visit to Dr. Richter's laboratory at the Phipps Clinic, Johns Hopkins Hospital, is not a bad place to study contemporary history. Our 20th Century dream of abolishing war? Well, Dr. Richter has a fighting chamber which is an oblong, glass-windowed box with alternate floor-bars that are electrically charged. Two wild rats stimulated by an electrical shock will instantly leap into a death battle. They blame the nearest creature — "Yankee, Go Home!" — for the pricks and prods of environmental misfortune. But two domesticated rats (more than 50 generations in captivity or "civilization") do not fight. Instead, they first try to escape; then they learn to avoid the shocks by standing on their hind legs on one or two neutral bars. Is there human hope for world peace in this example?

The most characteristic difference between wild and domesticated rats is in the proficiency of the adrenals and the gonads. In layman's language, the wild rats are better equipped by nature for fighting and the civilized rats for breeding. The human race, of course, is not as neatly divided into laboratory cages. Some peoples on all the continents are under-civilized and some over-civilized, and some of the latter are reverting to their former wild state. Moreover, the introduction of preventive medicine in the semi civilized lands of Asia, Africa and South America has caused a man-made change in the birth rate, and not for the good of the world.

Still, in general, it would seem that the advance of culture takes the hate, fear, fight and suspicion out of people. While the stability of culture makes for loving, family-building and what psychiatrists call "the well-adjusted person."

But civilization, although relatively comfortable, has its indigenous perils. Rat-study shows that a protected environment makes its creatures become milder, weaker, easier to handle, and less concerned with personal liberty. A certain amount of savagery is needed for a people to keep its freedom. The mutation that a protected environment — a welfare state — performs upon our bodies is a tendency toward rot. The 12 million American sufferers from hypertension, rheumatism, arthritis and the like may be the victims of adrenal (fighting) deficiency. Many sufferers from neoplastic (cancer) diseases are victims of overstimulated gonads (reproductive glands), a tendency of stabilized community life.

Daily Devotions

And the Lord met Balaam, and put a word in his mouth, and said, go again unto Balak. — Numbers 23:16.

Balak was a doubter and the word that the Lord put in Baalam's mouth was really many words that can be summed up in the one word "dependability." After his conference with the Lord Baalam went back to Balak to assure him that the Almighty is not mortal and guilty of human sinfulness and deception. In this day and age are we also doubting Balaks, unwilling to accept at face value the promises and assurances of God and Christ? If this were not the case, our religious meetings would be crowded.

Gracious Father, help us to revive and retain the faith expressed in the old hymn, "Standing on the promises of God." In Christ's name we ask. Amen.

VIEWS OF OUR READERS

GARRETT DEFENDED

Editor, Morning World:

I am very disappointed in your editorials on John Garrett. I grant you the right to your opinion but when you use your paper editorially to cast aspersions on the integrity of one of our representatives, I can but protest your action.

Please grant Mr. Garrett the right to his own integrity as I have heretofore granted you yours in your support of the anti-gas tax. Your interest is apparent in their advertisements placed in your papers. May I believe that economics does both affect your support or non-support?

I heartily endorse Mr. Garrett for placing the education of the children of the state of Louisiana over and above any one segment of the economy of the state. Please believe me when I say that I think to save anything for the gas people, for the state, for the nation or for the world at the expense of the education of the future citizens is a most short-sighted action. For what and whom are you saving it if an uneducation citizenry abdicates the free enterprise system?

Thank you for your kind consideration of my plea for the kids to come.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Very truly yours,
JACK L. HARPER.

LAUDS JAWORSKY

Monroe, La.

Editor, News-Star—World,

A million cheers to Dr. Sas-Jaworsky for starting the ball rolling against our very naive and gullible senior senator! And as for an apology — of all the nerve! Ellender is the one who owes us an apology.

As a loyal American who is surfeited by Ellender's many summer junkets into Russia and the accompanying praise of all things Russian on his return, I'd like to add my two cents' worth on the side with Dr. Sas, sans apology. It irks me to think we constituents not only pay for these summer jaunts but also for his propaganda trips around the state.

Only now Ellender claims those vapid utterances on Soviet education were made not because he admired it, but because it "poses a great threat to our own industrial and technological supremacy." It did not sound that way back in the winter when he made a round of TV stations and colleges showing his films of Russia and expounding his propaganda—at the taxpayers' expense. A telecast from KNOE (a public service, of course!), in Monroe, Louisiana, gave a quite different impression to me. Ellender apparently enjoyed himself then as a fond grandfather showing pictures of his grandchildren. Never has such bunkum poured forth. I could hardly bear his eulogies and enthusiasm about the Soviet system. He "encountered no difficulties" in Russia. (Other Americans report a feeling of being watched.) Apparently he swallowed most of the propaganda unquestioningly. Since he speaks no Russian and was unable to conduct his own interviews with the Russian people, it is obvious that his conclusions could have been implanted in him in no other way than by the direct suggestion of the Reds.

His dialogue of scenes interpolated "tea like a kiss," "food most appetizingly served," and "no flies in the market"! Imagine using such phrases about a country bent on world revolution.

He could believe "child delinquency not a problem in practically all parts of Russia — children so well-behaved." He reiterated "The Russians are people just like us — very little difference in our lives — better educational program, proscribed (sic) courses, chemistry and physics in sixth grade." (He sat idly by in Congress when the Social Planners and Educationists raped our education system; why couldn't he have evinced some interest in education then?)

His commentary included "In Russia we have sixteen republics." His audience wondered just what the use of the first person portended.

He had the unmitigated gall to urge us to eliminate propaganda from the world information program — to give factual reporting. And he never once disparaged the system presently in effect in the Soviet Union.

Ellender was proud to show off Red modern auto plants — every idea of which came from Detroit, no doubt. He praised the co-operative farms calling them "Big State Farms" instead of the prison farms they are. And their cattle should be fine; our lawmakers let those Russian spy-farmers come in and see and get all our farm and cattle ideas. He admitted the Russian goal was to surpass the USA in meat and dairy products in 1960 with the aplomb of a Tulane coach saying they were to beat LSU then.

How proudly he showed off dams. "Just like ours in the U. S.!" Certainly, since we built and paid for both!

He stated emphasitcally that he "never saw a slave camp in Siberia." Can't he realize he saw only what they wanted him to see? And after praising people, crops, towns, and products, stated, "all state-owned, of course." The ideal way, according to Ellender!

He remarked at the end "to carry films into Russia would be quite expensive." Only we are to have the propaganda. Russia wouldn't tolerate a politician whooping up another country two minutes. But he wanted his films shown to the school children of the state!

At our local college he preached the fallacious doctrine of co-existence and exchange programs. Even the juvenile mind realizes that the result of these is to relax American vigilance — just what the Reds want. Ellender's every utterance smacks of that pusillanimous slogan, "If you can't lick 'em join 'em." Most of the free world realizes since Hungary that that tired allegation "peaceful coexistence" is as dead as "agrarian reformers."

Any good American would realize that Ellender was lured into propaganda booby traps. He was deliberately used to further deep-laid Red objectives. He received a sugar-coated indoctrination in the virtues and achievements of Communism. Do we want lawmakers so gullible? Perhaps he was not aware of the implications of his visit, that he was being steered to pro-Soviet conclusions, and that visitors are exposed to all the favorable aspects of Marxism. But he came home to join the deluded band of appeasers. If he is still so fatuously unaware he has been manipulated by the Reds, let's give him a permanent visa to Russia.

Ellender was in Congress when all our agencies were packed with Commies and fellow travelers during the New Deal. He was right there when our government gave Russia every American industrial discovery, every secret weapon, every resource of our fabulous American economy including more than $12 billion in direct lend-lease shipment. He was in Congress when Red spies, unhindered by New Deal policy, penetrated every industrial research laboratory, drained us of every accomplishment and advantage of our bountiful American technology. Now he praises their advances! Oh, the price we shall have to pay for the folly of our political leaders.

Isn't there some loyal, patriotic citizen of Louisiana who will oppose Ellender when he stands for re-election? This is a clarion call for some one who will put first things first and try to right some of the stupidities of the Congress. Betrayed constituents who are financing our own downfall demand a more dedicated caliber of lawmaker. Our country faces bankruptcy, brought on by traitors. We have no more national time left for double talk.

Famous Fables

CREDIT: Henry Ford's first taste of success came after Barney Oldfield drove one of his new model cars in a race. Oldfield drove the car at such breakneck speed (60 miles an hour) that overnight the names of both men became well known.

Some years later, when Ford was a multimillionaire, the two met again at the giant Ford plant.

"You know, Barney," reminisced the motor magnate, "that race was the beginning for both of us. You made me and I made you."

Oldfield looked out of the window at the sprawling assembly lines that stretched as far as the eye could see.

"Henry," he said, "you must admit I did a better job."

SURRENDER: A society matron noted for her wearisome parties was trying to snare huromist Oliver Herford as a dinner guest.

"Will you come Monday night?" she asked him.

"I can't," pleaded Herford. "I must finish some illustrations for a magazine."

'Let's make it Tuesday," she suggested.

"No, not Tuesday. I have an appointment with my publisher."

"Then why not make it Wednesday?" she persisted.

"I'm sorry, I have tickets for the theatre."

"I do not discourage easily, Mr. Herford," she warned him. "How about Thursday?"

"Oh well," sighed Herford, "let's make it Monday."

Sees Need For Better Grad Schools

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A Louisiana State University dean said Saturday the present need is for better graduate schools.

Richard J. Russell, dean of the LSU graduate school and professor of geography, said opening new graduate schools will not solve most pressing education problem.

"We need more vigorously trained individuals, not greater numbers who possess inferior degrees," he said.

He said 100 new graduate schools a year "means almost nothing" in solving the problem. "There are not enough competent faculty members to staff the better schools, and the poor ones are pure sham."

Russell said training of leaders is needed for the nation's progress and survival, pointing out "the atom wasn't cracked by the ant like efforts of a multitude."

The reputation of a graduate school must be earned through years of creditable performance, he said, listing prime essentials of a competent faculty, a cosmopolitan student body of adequate size, and enough library and laboratory facilities and financial support.

He said LSU graduate schools in 1957 ranked 12th in enrollment among the nation's land - grant colleges and third among all southern universities.

He said LSU's current output of 500 master's and 50 doctor's degrees a year is too low.

But, he pointed out LSU has the "people and facilities to play a decisive role in meeting Louisiana's needs during the scientific revolution," to insure quality a wise citizenry must demand necessary financial support, he said.

SEN. DAVIS

Right To Work Move Is Told

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Sen. Jackson Davis said Saturday he would abandon his legislative act and push a constitutional version of right to work in a bid to dodge a veto by Gov. Earl Long.

If the 1958 Legislature should pass the labor-hated law banning compulsory union membership—unlikely since the same lawmakers repealed right to work in 1956—it must be signed by the same governor who signed the repeal act.

A constitutional amendment doesn't come before the governor. It would be subject to popular vote in the November election.

Right to work pops into the spotlight for a brief stay when the Louisiana Legislature comes back Sunday night to open the sixth week of its 60-day session.

The Senate Industrial Relations Committee—the same group that okayed repeal 6-3 in 1956—holds a hearing at 2 p.m. Monday on Davis' two bills.

Crowding Right to Work for attention next week will be taxes, segregation and Louisiana State University.

Ready for action Monday will be three tax bills:

1. Rep. Marvin Roberts' three million dollar hike in the wine tax, backed by the governor. It is set as special order of the day.

2. Rep. Ben Holt's constitutional two cent natural gas gathering tax, a companion to the one cent legislative act voted final passage by the Senate last Wednesday. Both are designed to pay a 1956 teacher salary increase.

3. The Louisiana Municipal Assn. bill increasing the whisky tax 40 cents per gallon to raise $1,500,000 in new revenues for cities.

A vote could be called Sunday night on Sen. Rex McCullough's plan to establish a single board of higher education to govern LSU and the nine state colleges. LSU strongly opposes this.

Over in the House, two bills trimming the 14-year terms of members of the LSU board of Supervisors to eight and seven years respectively will be on the calendar for action. LSU also opposes these.

A 10-man joint legislative committee meets Monday night to decide how it will pursue its investigation into a Louisiana Civil Liberties Union petition signed by some 10 per cent of the LSU faculty. The petition opposed segregation bills to close public schools.

President Troy Middleton and five LSU deans appeared before the committee last Wednesday and questionnaries have been mailed to all faculty members whose names were on the petition.

Two LSU professors appeared at the committee hearing in opposition to the program to close public schools threatned with racial integration.

The eight bills passed easily in the House last Wednesday and are set for a hearing next Wednesday by the Senate Education Committee.

President L. L. Lovell of the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation sounded the keynote for the 1958 right to work fight when he commented, "we're not spearheading it this time because we like to win. We believe the best chances for restoring right to work will come in the next governor's race."

The federation led the successful 1954 drive for enactment of the law, then fought repeal bitterly in 1956.

Even though constitutional proposals require two thirds rather than a simple majority, Davis said he felt more lawmakers would vote to "let the people decide whether they want right to work."

Also, he added, "the governor has expressed his probable decision to other lawmakers not to sign the act."

Publicly, Long has expressed his sympathetic concern for labor but kept quiet as to whether he would sign or veto right to work.

The Shreveport senator said, "this is the kickoff. We want to put as many legislators on the spot as we can so the people will know how they stand when they come up for re-election.

"We're going to ask candidates for the Legislature to commit themselves to let the people decide in 1960. If we can ever get it to the people and the people say no, they'll never hear from me again on right to work."

Davis explained he was not opposed to unions, just forcing workers to join unions before they could get a job.

Privately, right to work backers will tell you they're effort this year is primarily a public relations drive to keep the issue alive.

Sen. John O'Connor of New Orleans, industrial relations chairman, has allotted three hours for the hearing to be divided equally.

This contrasts with five days in 1954 and two days in 1956.

There has been only one change in the membership of the committee. Sen. Daniel McGovern III of New Orleans was elected to succeed Chairman Ted Hickey when Hickey was elected to the New Orleans city council.

However, McGovern was elected with labor backing and is expected to vote as Hickey did against right to work.

Sens. W. M. Rainach of Summerfield and B. H. Rogers of Grand Cane are counted sure votes for the measure.

Sens. J. D. Deblieux of Baton Rouge, Farrell Blanchard of Donaldsonville, Olaf Fink of New Orleans, John S. Nelson of Port Allen, B. B. Rayburn of Bogalusa and O'Connor voted for repeal in 1956.

The only likely switch is Sen. Sylvan Friedman of Natchez. Friedman voted against repeal in committee in 1956, then voted for the bill when it passed the Senate 21-18.

In 1954, Friedman voted to get the right to work bill out of committee, then voted against it on the Senate floor.

Traditionally, both House and Senate uphold decisions of their committees.

However, Davis said Rogers would bring the bill out of committee on a minority report, probably with Rainach's support. To upset the committee would require enough votes to pass the bill, since no one is likely to be absent for such an important test.

Right to work upset a house committee report in 1954 as it moved toward enactment.

Loopholes Pop Up In Miss. Laws

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—No matter how tightly Mississippi's Legislature screws down a law, a loophole always seems to pop up somewhere.

And there's no telling how many new laws are needed to plug the new loopholes or how many even newer loopholes are created when the ole ones are plugged.

The latest loophole came when the 1958 Legislature sought to plug another loophole in the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Act that seeks to remove from the highways those motorists who are not financially responsible for their actions.

Before this year, if a motorist became involved in an accident and was unable to meet his financial obligations, one of two things happened: He would surrender his license tag and drivers license, thereby removing both himself and his vehicle from the highways, or he would transfer title of the car to another person and continue to enjoy its use.

In that way, he could become involved in two, three or more accidents without being financially responsible.

The Legislature tried to close this gate but apparently has left it ajar.

Commissioner of Public Safety Tom Scarbrough says under the new law, a motorist still can transfer title to his car and continue to use it.

But there's one hitch. The person to whom he transfers title must show financial responsibility before assuming title.

This transfer saves the use of the automobile but not the owner's drivers license. He must surrender it until he can meet the obligations of the accident.

Scarbrough says the law is "about as close to a compulsory liability insurance law as possible without actually being one."

He says a driver involved in an accident and who is not financially responsible can have his driving privileges suspended forever.

Under the law, he says, "as long as an injured party holds a judgment against the violating driver, that person's drivers license must be retained by the department of public safety."

Liability insurance or a cash bond are two of the means of proving financial responsibility.

GATHERING MOSS

MADISON, Wis. (UP) — Moss growing, an industry over 100 years old, has become an annual $480,000 business for central Wisconsin farmers who raised 300,000 bales last year. The growers raise sphagnum moss, used principally in holding water to roots of plants, trees and shrubs in shipment.

LIFE TENURE

SHARON, Mass. (UP) — Charles E. Collins won't have to run for election any more. Townsfolk granted him life tenure as town clerk and accountant. Collins, who has a wife and 11-year-old son, is a cripple but handles both his jobs effectively from his wheelchair.

Single Anthrax Case Reported In Caldwell

COLUMBIA (Special) — A Caldwell Parish cow that died suddenly last week was examined by a veterinarian and tenatively diagnosed as anthrax. A blood sample was taken and sent to the State laboratory for testing, but results will not be available for several days.

According to Caldwell health officials, there has been a definite determination that an out break of the disease is going through cattle in Ouachita and Morehouse parishes.

Any livestock, especially cows and horses, dying suddenly should be burned to prevent further spread of this disease, authorities pointed out.

Tungsten carbide is second only to the diamond in hardness.

Lithographs On Display At Columbia

COLUMBIA (Special) — An exhibit of colored lithographs by Caroline Durieux is now at the Caldwell Parish Library and will be shown until June 28. These pictures are loaned to the library by the Louisiana Art Commission as a part of their statewide art program.

In the seventeen lithographs and drawings in this exhibition give striking evidence of Mrs. Durieux's claim to rank as one of America's outstanding women artists. Satire is her major channel or expression.

"She is," says Carl Zigrosser, curator of "Prints of the Year," exhibitions, Museum of Fine Arts, "a master of her instrument, and it is a subtle yet expressive instrument. It is like an epigram delivered in a dead-pan manner; the meaning sinks in casually; when all of a sudden the full import dawns upon one, it haunts one for days. Her work has that haunting quality because its roots are deep, its vision profound."

Caroline Durieux is now a member of the fine arts faculty of Louisiana State University. Her work has been exhibited in leading museums and galleries and is in the permanent collections of the Museum of Modern Art, the Philadelphia Museum of Fine Arts, the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, the Library of Congress, and the New York Public Library, as well as in important private collection.

Local Colonial Dames Honors Gunston Hall

The Monroe Committee of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in the State of Louisiana joined the past week in commemorating the 200th anniversary of Gunston Hall, home of George Mason, American Revolutionary patriot and author of Virginia's Declaration of Rights.

Gunston Hall is featured on a light green new three-cent stamp. The first sheet of the stamps were sold in Lorton, Va., June 12, the anniversary date. Lorton is the location of Gunston Hall.

First stamps of the new series were sold in Monroe June 13 and were purchased by Mrs. Thomas Leigh of Monroe, chairman of the Monroe Committee of the Colonial Dames.

"We are extremely glad to participate in a program honoring such a great American," Mrs. Leigh said.

The National Society of Colonial Dames is custodians of Gunston Hall.

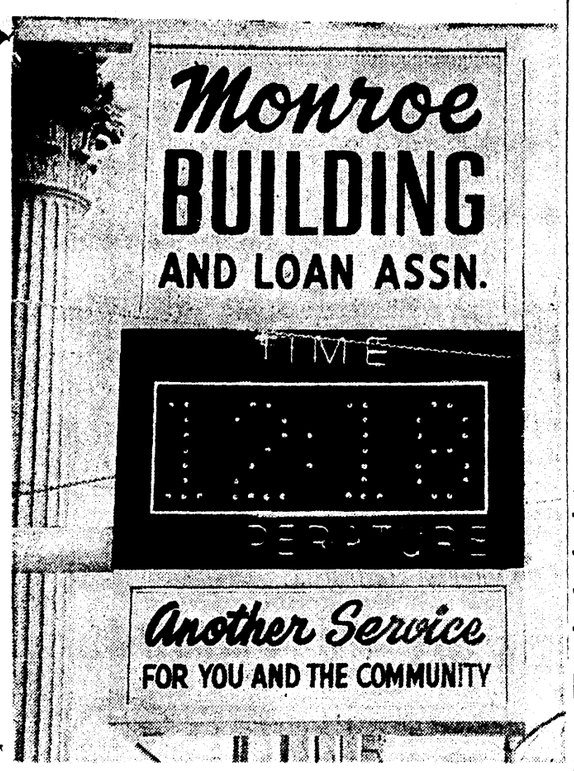

According to the postoffice department, there will be 120 million stamps of this design by Rene Clark.

Single Anthrax Case Reported In Caldwell

COLUMBIA (Special) — A Caldwell Parish cow that died suddenly last week was examined by a veterinarian and tenatively diagnosed as anthrax. A blood sample was taken and sent to the State laboratory for testing, but results will not be available for several days.

According to Caldwell health officials, there has been a definite determination that an out break of the disease is going through cattle in Ouachita and Morehouse parishes.

Any livestock, especially cows and horses, dying suddenly should be burned to prevent further spread of this disease, authorities pointed out.

Tungsten carbide is second only to the diamond in hardness.

Lithographs On Display At Columbia

COLUMBIA (Special) — An exhibit of colored lithographs by Caroline Durieux is now at the Caldwell Parish Library and will be shown until June 28. These pictures are loaned to the library by the Louisiana Art Commission as a part of their statewide art program.

In the seventeen lithographs and drawings in this exhibition give striking evidence of Mrs. Durieux's claim to rank as one of America's outstanding women artists. Satire is her major channel or expression.

"She is," says Carl Zigrosser, curator of "Prints of the Year," exhibitions, Museum of Fine Arts, "a master of her instrument, and it is a subtle yet expressive instrument. It is like an epigram delivered in a dead-pan manner; the meaning sinks in casually; when all of a sudden the full import dawns upon one, it haunts one for days. Her work has that haunting quality because its roots are deep, its vision profound."

Caroline Durieux is now a member of the fine arts faculty of Louisiana State University. Her work has been exhibited in leading museums and galleries and is in the permanent collections of the Museum of Modern Art, the Philadelphia Museum of Fine Arts, the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, the Library of Congress, and the New York Public Library, as well as in important private collection.

Local Colonial Dames Honors Gunston Hall

The Monroe Committee of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in the State of Louisiana joined the past week in commemorating the 200th anniversary of Gunston Hall, home of George Mason, American Revolutionary patriot and author of Virginia's Declaration of Rights.

Gunston Hall is featured on a light green new three-cent stamp. The first sheet of the stamps were sold in Lorton, Va., June 12, the anniversary date. Lorton is the location of Gunston Hall.

First stamps of the new series were sold in Monroe June 13 and were purchased by Mrs. Thomas Leigh of Monroe, chairman of the Monroe Committee of the Colonial Dames.

"We are extremely glad to participate in a program honoring such a great American," Mrs. Leigh said.

The National Society of Colonial Dames is custodians of Gunston Hall.

According to the postoffice department, there will be 120 million stamps of this design by Rene Clark.

NUFF SAID

BURLINGTON, Vt. —(UPI) — Prof. Robert S. Babcock of the political science department at the University of Vermont turned to his former students for help in his campaign for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor. New Record Flight Is Announced

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE Mass. (AP)—A new, unofficial record flight three hours, 42 minutes, 45 seconds, for a transport-type aircraft from Los Angeles to New York was announced Friday at Eighth Air Force headquarters here.

The craft was a KC135 jet tanker, the military version of a B707 jet aircraft, on a routine training mission from Castle Air Force Base. Continuing to Boston, it established a further unofficial record of four hours and two minutes from Los Angeles.

The Boeing-built craft, assigned to the Eighth Air Force Forty-Fiftieth Air Fuelling Wing, flying at more than 40,000 feet — far above the weather and above civilian aircraft, picked up a favorable west-to-east jet stream and rode it all the way to the East Coast.

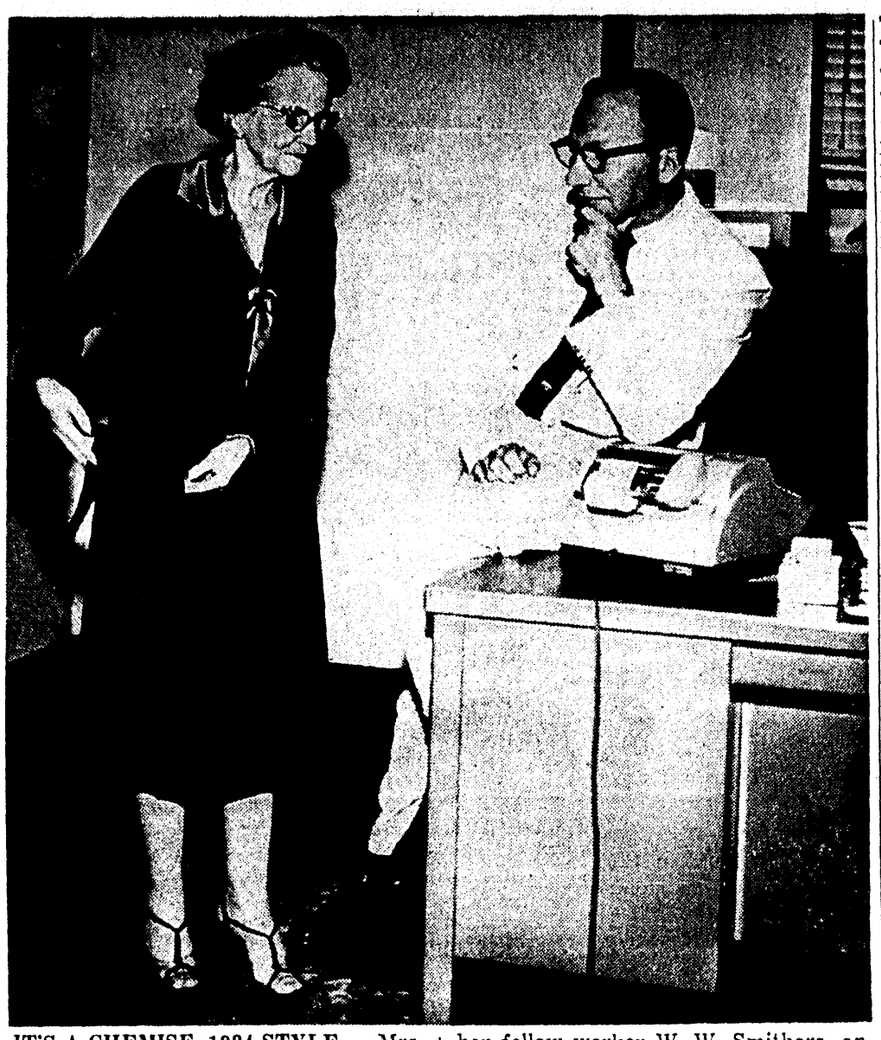

The unofficial time compares with the existing record of three hours, 44 minutes, set in 1955 from Los Angeles international airport to Floyd Bennett field, N. Y. by an F84F jet fighter.

The average ground speed in yesterday's flight was placed at 670 miles per hour.

The four-man crew receiving training included 1st Lt. Donald E. Holloway, navigator, Smithville, Miss.

IN FARM BELT

GOP Is Given New Optimism

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (UPI)—An upsurge in cattle and hog prices and the prospect of a bumper wheat crop has brought cautious new optimism to farm belt Republicans.

Both Republicans and Democrats in key farm districts of Kansas and Iowa are modifying their political forecasts with a sizable "if."

If the wheat crop lives up to its rich promise and if cattle and hog prices continue at profitable levels—Republicans will count on gaining ground in Kansas and Iowa.

Under these circumstances, they even hope to win back one or both of the two congressional seats held by Democrats in those states.

Democrats count on some gains in a recent special election in Minnesota's solidly-Republican 1st District.

Growing Labor Vote

Farm issues and feelings do not necessarily tell the full story of election prospects in rural areas. Local issues like taxes play an important part in some sections. And there is a growing labor vote in many areas still considered as "farm districts."

A poll of farmers and men close to them in four districts of Minnesota, Iowa, and Kansas gave this picture of the probable effect of current farm economics on the political outlook.

"You give our people 30-bushel-an-acre wheat out here and they'll vote the Republican ticket," said Lester McCoy, a GOP leader at Garden City, Kan.

(Prospects around Garden City were bright for a crop that would beat the area's all-time record of 23.7 bushels per acre.)

But the improved crop outlook has not made Benson an overnight hero in the Kansas wheatlands.

Says Parity Needed

Fred Hurst, in charge of grain operations for Garden City's big cooperative elevator added "I don't believe he has too many friends around here."

But Hurst, like others who live on close terms with farmers in the area, agreed that open criticism of the agriculture secretary has been subsiding as the wheat outlook improved.

To challenge Rep. J. Floyd Breeding, Kansas' only Democratic congressman, Republicans in the district will put up 34-year-old Garden City attorney Clifford Hope Jr. Breeding, serving his freshman term, succeeded young Hope's father after the elder Hope retired as senior GOP member of the House Agriculture Committee.

Both sides expect a "close race."

At Fort Dodge, Iowa, a livestock producer and a dairyman said GOP congressional prospects would perk up this fall if livestock prices stay up.

Doesn't Like Benson

Fort Dodge, center of a cash grain and livestock farming community, lies in the 6th Iowa District represented by freshman congressman Merwin Coad, Iowa's only Democrat on Capitol Hill.

Walter Neubaum, who uses his 80 acres of corn to feed cattle, hogs, and chickens for market, said he "never did personally like" Benson. But he said improved farm prices usually improve Republicans prospects. Lauren Secor, a 160-acre dairyman, agreed.

There was more solid optimism among Republicans further east in the richer hog and cattle feeding area around Cedar Rapids.

"The political situation here depends pretty much on the price of hogs—and meat prices are very satisfactory," smiled B.D. Silliman, an attorney and Republican chairman for Linn County.

"When a candidate gets up in the morning here, he's not interested in what Gen. De Gaulle said, he checks the hog market," Silliman added.

In the 1st Minnesota District, a prominent Democrat who did not want his name used was "afraid we're going to get beat" unless the party comes up with a new, stronger candidate.

This Democrat said that Eugene Foley, who came within a whisker of taking the seat in a special election earlier this year, will not be stronger in a second race this fall in spite of farm complaints against Benson's cut in dairy price supports.

"The farmers will vote Democratic this fall. You take their money away from them and they don't like it," insisted dairyman Pat Conway near Rochester, Minn.

Dates Set For 9th Miss La. Contest

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —The ninth annual "Miss Louisiana Beauty Pageant," slated to open here July 3, will see one lucky girl emerge as the state's representative to the national competition for the Miss America title in Atlantic City.

President of the Junior local Chamber of Commerce, Tom Davis, whose organization is sponsoring the pageant, said 30 contracts had already been sent out and it is expected between 26 and 30 girls would enter. Competition in various phases will continue through July 5.

The first pageant that the Jaycees put on in Lake Providence in 1951 had only nine contestants entered. Last year a total of 26 girls entered the contest and were judged on beauty, talent and personality. Davis said that this year's pageant promises to be bigger and better than ever.

Guest star this year will be Miss Marilyn Van Derbur, the 1958 "Miss America," who will crown the new "Miss Louisiana."

The winner of the state contest will receive a number of prizes, among them being a scholarship to the school of her choice. This award amounts to $1,000.00 with a $500.00 scholarship going to "Miss Louisiana," a $300.00 scholarship to the first runner-up and a $200 scholarship presented to the second runner up. In addition the winner of this year's beauty pageant will receive a four-year scholarship to Louisiana Tech, a four-year scholarship to Northeast State College, a Miss America Bulova watch, a free wardrobe from the host Jaycee chapter and an all-expense paid trip to Atlantic City to participate in the "Miss America" contest.

Broken Love Affair Cause Of Fatal Crash

LONDON (UPI) — Newspapers have speculated today that A2C Vernon L. Morgan's fatal "joyride" in a B45 bomber may have been the result of a broken romance.

The Conservative tabloid Daily Sketch and the Laborite Daily Herald printed essentially similar stories, saying that 16 year-old Yvonne Talbot broke off her "engagement" to Morgan—who had a wife and an 18-month-old son in the United States—a few hours before he crashed to his death.

Miss Talbot told newsmen that Morgan, who said he was divorced, "swept me off my feet" when they met nine weeks ago. They became engaged two weeks later.

She said the engagement was broken off by mutual agreement because they decided that she was too young to marry. She doubted that their parting drove him to suicide.

"I don't think he intended to kill himself, although he was very moody," she told the Daily Sketch. "We parted very friendly."

She said the 21-year-old airman, a crew chief who had had no flight training, remarked while watching an Air Force movie Monday night that "I wish I could fly one of those planes."

He managed to get an obsolescent B45 off the ground Friday, but seconds after take off it veered to one side and crashed, killing him instantly.

The plane was one of two parked at Alconbury airbase waiting to be scrapped.

Ten minutes before Morgan took off on his ill-fated joyride, two American and two British airmen were killed a few miles away in the collision of a U.S. T33 jet trainer and a British Canberra jet bomber. There was no connection between the two accidents.

Strange Creature Killed In Pass In Katmandu

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI)—A strange creature—possibly a close relative of the elusive abominable snowman—has been killed in a rugged, 14,000-foot mountain pass near the wild border of north western Nepal and Tibet, it was reported today.

There was speculation that the creature, described as four-and-a-half feet tall, bear-like and incredibly strong, might even be the fabled yeti itself.

The creature was said to have run nearly a mile on its two legs, carrying a yak the size of a fully-grown cow in its arms.

The Nepalese hunter who led the party said he followed "what looked like a human footprint" into a craggy pass walled in by 50-foot boulders.

"The animal was cornered in the pass with its prey," the hunter said. "We tried to crush him by throwing down boulders, but we only injured him. He made a strange, whistling sound when he was hurt. He tried to get away, but we finally shot him down."

The hunter was in for a shock when he took a close look at the beast. "Its face was like a bear's," he said, "but its feet were human." The creature also was covered with long, fine hair, less coarse than a bear's.

Ohio is one of the few states that has completely liberalized its fishing laws. There are no restrictions on the number or size of fish taken, and no closed season on any species.

Woman Raped In Her Sleep

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — A 37-year old woman told police she suddenly realized the man in bed with her was not her husband.

She screamed, and her husband —sleeping in another bed in the room—jumped up and chased his wife's "attacker" into the street.

Robert Whitaker, 23, is in jail today booked with simple rape. He roomed at the house, and the woman was his landlady.

She told officers she had taken a sedative and was in a "semi-conscious state at the time.

Police stressed there was no force or threats involved in the "rape."

State law calls for the "simple rape" charge when the "victim" of the attack is under the "mistaken impression" the attacker is her husband, officers said.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Its natural to assume that athletics in the nation's institutions of higher learning are confined to varsity competition. After all its the varsity football, basketball, or baseball teams that get the publicity.

So, it can come as a surprise to many that there were no less than 75 football teams with 1,375 participants in 186 games at Louisiana State University during the school year just ended; 72 teams in 152 basketball games with 989 players, 73 teams in 140 games for 973 softball players; and so on through volley ball, track, swimming, tennis, boxing, ping pong, handball, and badminton.

All is part of L.S.U.'s interamural sports program, according to James J. Corbett, director of athletics at the Ole War Skule, who writes us:

"All too often collegiate sports are criticized for being reserved for the select few. This criticism would certainly be justified if intercollegiate athletics were the only form of athletic program offered by institutions.

"Fortunately, however, most major institutions have developed intramural programs wherein no one who desires to participate in a sport is excluded.

"Here at L.S.U. we are very proud of our intramural sports program. We feel that the program, capably administered by Harry "Red" Taylor, is one of the finest in the country.

"Each year, a report is prepared which reflects participation in intramural sports, and that report is what prompted me to pass some of the figures on to you.

"There are three major sports on the L.S.U. intramural program—football, basketball and softball. There are nine other sports which offer participation in almost any athletic category.

"During the athletic year 1957-58 there were 75 teams in three supervised 7-Man Football leagues encompassing 1,375 students. Basketball boasted 72 teams in league play with 989 individuals taking part. Softball's three leagues had 73 teams and 973 players participating. Excluding boxing there were 515 organized teams engaged in various intramural sports th past year.

"At L.S.U., league play is divided into three categories. There are leagues representing members of the Interfraternity Athletic Council, the ROTC and the campus. No individual is restricted to play in one league and it is not uncommon to have one individual being a member of teams in all three leagues.

"Other sports offered on the L.S.U. intramural program included volley ball, track, swimming, tennis (singles and doubles), boxing, ping-pong (singles and doubles). In addition, two fraternities annually engage in a tackle football game for charity.

"The total participation may reflect the genuine interest of the L.S.U. student in athletics. With one participation recorded each time an individual participated in any activity, the total participation for 1957-58 was 9,280. This means that there was an average of almost two participations per male in the student body during the year, since the average male enrollment was 5,366.

"The L.S.U. Athletic Department administers this program, and we are working toward an even more expansive and progressive operation which will afford every male student on our campus an opportunity to utiliz excellent facilities and participate competetively in a program designed for wholesome and well organized physical activity."

BOSOX WIN, 7-1

Ted Socks 7th Homer Of Year

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams crashed his first homer in nearly three weeks and No. 7 of the season Saturday as the Boston Red Sox belted the Kansas City A's 7-1.

Williams picked on the first delivery of relief hurler Tom Gorman and sent a towering drive some 20 rows into the right field stands, scoring two runners ahead of him.

The 39-year-old slugger's blast capped a four-run rally in the second inning which enabled Boston's Frank Sullivan to coast to his fourth victory in five decisions.

Sullivan settled down after a shaky start for a six hitter. He didn't allow a hit after the fourth inning but was given tremendous support in the field.

The Red Sox infield pulled off four double plays while Jimmy Piersall turned in another of his patented gems in center field.

Piersall, who connected for his fifth homer in the second before Williams' drive, made a one-handed running stab of Bob Cerv's long drive just before bumping the bullpen fence in the sixth.

Jack Urban was wild and was hit hard before giving way to Gorman with two out in the sixth. Gorman's first pitch to Williams was decisive.

The Red Sox picked up two runs in the first when with two out Urban walked Williams and Dick Gernert. Frank Malzone then hoisted a long triple to the 420-foot mark in center.

After the A's got their run on a double by Frank House and a single by Woody Held in the second, the Sox scored again.

Piersall got a ground rule home run when his high drive caromed off the wall above the 379 - foot mark into the center field bleachers and then bounced back on the field. Piersall easily made third and was waved around by the umpires.

Don Buddin's single and a walk to Pete Runnels set up Williams.

Bostn added its final run in the sixth as Piersall beat out an infield hit, was sacrificed to second and scored on Runnels' double to left.

Vic Power of the A's had a single to extend his hitting streak to 20 games.

Speedway Has Facelifting To Eliminate Dust

The Twin City Speedway, still in the process of renovations that will improve the track and reduce dust, will remain closed to racing today as work is not yet finished on the West Monroe racing strip, it was announced yesterday.

The track was also closed last Sunday as hundreds of loads of clay have been hauled onto the track, graded, banked, and packed. The work is continuing. The turns at the north and south ends of the half mile oval are bowled up with higher embankments, graded to permit faster speeds at the turns.

At the same time, the clay surface, when packed, should eliminate the dust that has plagued many of the track's customers. A track spokesman yesterday said "after this job is finished you can see the races in your white sports coat and go home with it clean."

It's possible the track will be ready for action from the stock car crowd again next Sunday.

Seattle Boat Takes Detroit Memorial Run

DETROIT (AP) — Miss Thriftway, a late entry from Seattle won the Detroit Memorial Regatta for unlimited powerboats Saturday as Gale VI was disqualified for jumping the starting gun.

Miss Thriftway showed up late after officials of the unlimited hydroplane race had given up on her taking part in the event.

Gale VI had engine trouble on the fourth heat of the long afternoon and that boat was not expected to be able to make the 30-mile final run over the three-mile Detroit River course.

Race officials said Gale VI — which finished comfortably ahead of the others at the end of 10 regulation laps—was just one second ahead of the starting gun. That forced Gale VI to make an extra turn around the course.

Miss Thriftway was driven by Bill Muncey, a former Detroiter.

Despite the handicap of an extra lap Gale VI finished second. Miss Supertest of London, Ont., was third and Wildroot Charlie of Buffalo was fourth. Miss U.S. I, winner of two preliminary heats, had engine difficulties early and finally conked out on the eighth lap.

The final heat was interrupted after five laps when Short Circuit damaged its right sponson and pulled off the course. A Coast Guard boat fired a warning flare stopping the race.

Fred Alter drove the Detroit boat Miss U.S. I to victories in both the second and third heats. Alter finished first in the second heat ahead of Gale VI averaging 106.55 miles an hour over the 15-mile run. He came back to take the third heat with an average of 103.946 m.p.h. finishing in front of Short Circuit, and Miss Thriftway of Seattle.

Short Circuit, driven by Chuck Thompson, won the opening heat over the Canadian boat Miss Supertest and Seattle's Miss Thrift away. Thompson's speed was 103.-47 m.p.h.

Wildroot Charlie, a Buffalo boat driven by Bob Schroeder, captured the fourth heat with an average speed of 97.172 m.p.h.

Nadir Winner By Nose Over Strong Ruler

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP) — Claiborne Farm's Nadir Saturday captured his first stakes of 1958 by defeating the 8-5 favorite Strong Ruler by a nose in the $24,250 Select Handicap at Monmouth Park.

A crowd of 24,433 awaited the outcome of an objection by Howard Grant, rider of Ada L. Rice's Strong Ruler, against Jim Nichols, pilot of Nadir. The stewards disallowed the objection and Nadir rewarded his backers $11.20, $4.80 and $3.80. Nadir carried top weight of 126 pounds and ran the six furlongs in 1:12 4-5 over a "slow" track.

Third in the field of 13 3-year-olds was Elkcan Stable's Hubcap, six lengths back of Strong Ruler and a neck in advance of Mrs. William E. Snell's My Warrior, coupled in the betting with C. Mahlon Kline's Galley Hill.

Bolt Fires Rounds Of 69, 72 To Claim U. S. Open

By WILL GRIMSLEY

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tommy Bolt, a tough ex-Army sergeant and man of alternating peace and violent emotions, won the 58th National Open golf championship with a remarkable self and shot control Saturday. He shot rounds of 69 and 72 for a 72-hole score of 283.

The jut - jawed southwesterner, 39, born in Oklahoma and reared in Louisiana, crushed the hopes of South Africa's young Gary Player with a staggering streak of birdies in the morning and then snuffed out the late-coming challenge of Gene Littler.

Player, the 22-year-old precisionist from Johannesburg, finished four strokes back of the new champion with rounds of 73 and 71 for 287.

Littler, the comeback kid from El Cajon, Calif., surged out of nowhere with a brilliant 3 - under-par 67 in the morning to move within three strokes of the pacesetter, but his bid died in a graveyard of bogeys in the sweltering afternoon sun as Bolt surged home like Whirlaway.

Other bids faded one by one through a day when temperatures reached 100 and Southern Hills' 6,907-yard course and 35-35—70 par took on a nightmarish hue in the latter stages of the gruelling 36-hole windup.

Ben Hogan, seeking a record fifth with an aching left wrist, fell out of contention early and he was followed by Frank Stranahan, Julius Boros, Charles Coe and Labron Harris, who were in pressing position entering the final day.

Jimmy Demaret, playing in his 15th Open, found conditions so tough he withdrew after shooting an 81 in the morning round.

Bolt led each of the four rounds, becoming the first since Ben Hogan at Oakmont in 1953 to make every pole a winning one.

The man who has been called "the terrible tempered Mister Bolt" and who has accused galleries of being against him, got a tremendous ovation from the wall of people around him when he sank a four-foot putt for his par on the final hole. The crowd was estimated at close to 20,000.

Tommy doffed his brown straw hat and waved gaily to the crowd. He chattered away with newsmen as he strode to the clubhouse where an $8,000 first prize check awaited him.

Bolt in one breath said, "I am a man of peace" and in the next has bitterly attacked newsmen. Over a period of years — during which there were failures and frustrations—he has built up a reputation as a club thrower.

But Tommy says recently he acquired an inner peace which has steadied his game and turned him from a great golfer with an inclination towards playoffs into a steady champion.

Bolt won the championship with a relentless surge in the morning round which saw him play six of seven holes in a row in 3s, mainly on the strength of some phenomenal putting.

Starting at the ninth, where he sank a 15-foot putt, he went 3-3-3-5-3-3. He sank one from six feet on the 10th, four feet on the 12th and eight feet on the 14th and 15th

MORE

Littler, 27, National Amateur champion in 1953 and runner-up to lame-armed Ed Furgol for the Open crown in 1954, made a powerful move at the championship in the morning round, but wariness and pressure finally brought him down.

On his morning round, the best of the tournament, he had only 27 putts—nine under regulation—and sank assignments from 10 to 25 feet. The 25-footer came on the 378-yard 10th hole.

Bolt thus becomes one of the most controversial and colorful of our golf champions, a throwback to the Twenties and Thirties when the game had less inhibitions. He probably is the most colorful since the flamboyant Walter Hagen.

Bolt overcame privation, heartbreaking reversals and an ungovernable temper to reach golf's highest pinnacle.

Throughout his career Tommy has been plagued by a trigger temper which frequently reflected itself in explosions on the golf course. He got a reputation for breaking clubs and cracking them against trees.

Once a golf announcer blared over the speaker that "Bolt has hit the pin." At the clubhouse his wife asked tartly: 'What with—the caddie or the club."

"I used to get so mad when I made a bad shot I wanted to wreck the place," Tommy explained. "But at the Greensboro Open this year I decided this was getting me nowhere. So I decided to control myself."

Bolling's 2-Run Single In Ninth Beats Yankees

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Bolling looped a Ryne Duren fast ball into center for a two-run single with two out in the ninth Saturday as Detroit rallied for a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

All the drama of this one was packed into the last two innings as the Yankees first took the lead 4-3 on Yogi Berra's three-run homer in the eighth, then watched Duren—their rookie relief ace—blow one for the first time since the opening week of the season.

The 220-pound Duren took over after Bob Grim walked pinch hitter Bob Hazle, the first batter in the ninth, on four pitches. Duren retired Johnny Groth and Ossie Virgil on pop-ups but Al Kaline's fourth hit, an infield single, and a walk to Charlie Maxwell on a full count loaded the bases.

The count went to 3-2 on Bolling before the lithe infielder blooped his game-winner to center that fell at the feet of the charging Mickey Mantle, scoring Hazle and Kaline.

It was revived Detroit's second straight victory in the four-game Yankee set which ends with a doubleheader at the Stadium Sunday.

Hank Aguirre, who saved Friday night's triumph for Billy Hoeft, picked up the victory for a 3-1 record with a hitless ninth. Duren, who has won three games and saved 10 others, lost his second.

Detroit starter George Susce pitched and batted the Tigers into a 3-1 lead until he weakened in the eighth. The only run scored against him until then was unearned and he had chipped in with a double to drive in the first two Detroit runs. Kaline, who also had two singles and a double, accounted for the third Tiger run with his fifth homer in the fifth inning.

BRIGGS, HENRY

2 New Pitchers Win For Bruins

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs used two new pitchers, starter Johnny Briggs and Bill Henry, who worked in relief, on Cincinnati Saturday and their combined efforts turned back the Redlegs, 4-3, before a ladies' day turnout of 22,552.

Briggs, who exited in the fifth after the Redlegs rose to a 3-3 tie, yielded five hits. The 30-year-old left-handed Henry gave up only two in the final 4 2-3 innings to gain his first National League triumph.

Briggs was recalled from Fort Worth of the Texas League during this week. Henry was purchased from Portland of the Pacific Coast League.

Victim of the Cubs' 10-hit offensive was Bob Purkey, an eight time winner who suffered his second loss. Purkey also had a five game winning streak snapped.

Chicago outfielder Lee Walls climaxed a perfect 4-for-4 day by scoring the winning run in the eighth. Walls, who doubled in the first, got his third straight single. Ernie Banks sacrificed, sending Walls to second.

After Moose Moryn, who homered in the first, flied for the second out, Dale Long singled sharply to center to score Walls with the payoff run.

The Cubs got to Purkey for a 3-0 lead in the first. Tony Taylor singled and stole second—his ninth theft in 10 attempts. Al Dark's infield out moved him to third, and he scored on Walls' double.

After Banks supplied the second out, Moryn hit a line drive into the right field bleachers for his No. 13 homer, scoring behind Walls.

Briggs had a three-hitter going when he developed control trouble in the fifth. Purkey and Johnny Temple drew successive walks before Jerry Lynch flied for the first out. Frank Robinson also walked, filling the bases.

George Crowe fanned. Don Hoak followed with a dribbler that squirted off Dark's glove for a two-run single as Purkey and Temple scored.

Tony Taylor knocked down Ed Bailey's bouncer, but too late for a play and Robinson got across with the tying run of a 3-3 standoff.

Winston-Salem Gets McDaniel

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) —Von McDaniel, 19-year-old pitching whiz with the St. Louis Cards last season, will join the Winston-Salem Redbirds of the Class B Carolina League next week.

McDaniel, who received a $50,-000 bonus to sign with the Cards right out of high school, won seven and lost five with St. Louis last season.

The 6-3, Hollis, Okla., farm boy was sent to Houston of the Class AA Texas League last month to correct what Redbird Manager Fred Hutchinson called a hitch in his pitching delivery. He had a 1-3 record at Houston.

At Winston-Salem, a St. Louis farm club, officials hope McDaniel will lick his problem.

Bee Captures Citation Run, Pays $46.40

CHICAGO (AP)—Better Bee, a 22-1 shot, scored a resounding upset in the $55,900 Citation Handicap Saturday, as the even money favorite Swoon's Son finished fourth in the mile event in Washington Park.

Better Bee, a 4-year-old dark bay colt owned by W.S. Miller, member of the Illinois Racing Board, returned his backers in a crowd of 20,787 a fat price of $46.40, $17.80 and $8.20.

Better Bee, ridden by Richard Barnett, won by 1½ lengths over Hasty House Farm's Solution, while Reverie Knoll Farm's Jet Colonel took third. Finishing fourth, almost three lengths behind Jet Colonel, was E. Gay Drake's Swoon's Son, apparently overburdened by his top weight of 131 pounds on a slow track.

Swoon's Son had been shooting at the $32,850 winner's net which would have moved him ahead of Armed for sixth place among Turfdom's all-time money winners Swoon's Son, taking $5,000 for fourth, still holds seventh place with $792,395. Armed earned $817,-475.

Fifth in the field of nine was Ekaba, followed by 1957 Kentucky Derby winner Iron Liege, Shan Pac, Clermont and Ezgo.

Better Bee was timed in 1:38 2-5 while scoring his third and best victory of the year.

The son of Triplicate-S. Bee won three races last year, the best being the $50,000 added Chicagoan during the Balmoral meeting.

Solution paid $9 and $5.60 and Jet Colonel returned $6.20.

The day's mutuel handle of $1,-543,050 raised to $28,811,747 the 30-day total for a new Balmoral meeting high. The previous mark of $28,714,606 was set in 1956. The meeting's attendance of 362,605 also beat the previous mark of 361,694 in 1955.

Colorado State Beats Lafayette In NCAA Series

OMAHA (AP)—Colorado State outlasted Lafayette 10-5 Saturday in a first-round NCAA College World Series game.

Ron Herbel scattered six Lafayette hits and struck out 12, including the side in the second and two men in the ninth.

A five-run sixth inning which included only two singles iced it for Colorado State.

Al Caeser's 400-foot triple in the third with two men on sparked a three-run Lafayette inning. It was the first extra base hit of the series.

Baylor Gives Up College, Signs With Pro Lakers

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — All-America Elgin Baylor junked his final year of eligibility at Seattle University Saturday and signed with the pro Minneapolis Lakers for one of the highest prices ever offered a college basketball player.

The Lakers laid out a sum estimated between $17,000 and $20,-000 for the 6-6 Negro star from Washington, D.C. in what they said was a now-or-never move to keep a National Basketball Assn. franchise in the city.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Its natural to assume that athletics in the nation's institutions of higher learning are confined to varsity competition. After all its the varsity football, basketball, or baseball teams that get the publicity.

So, it can come as a surprise to many that there were no less than 75 football teams with 1,375 participants in 186 games at Louisiana State University during the school year just ended; 72 teams in 152 basketball games with 989 players, 73 teams in 140 games for 973 softball players; and so on through volley ball, track, swimming, tennis, boxing, ping pong, handball, and badminton.

All is part of L.S.U.'s interamural sports program, according to James J. Corbett, director of athletics at the Ole War Skule, who writes us:

"All too often collegiate sports are criticized for being reserved for the select few. This criticism would certainly be justified if intercollegiate athletics were the only form of athletic program offered by institutions.

"Fortunately, however, most major institutions have developed intramural programs wherein no one who desires to participate in a sport is excluded.

"Here at L.S.U. we are very proud of our intramural sports program. We feel that the program, capably administered by Harry "Red" Taylor, is one of the finest in the country.

"Each year, a report is prepared which reflects participation in intramural sports, and that report is what prompted me to pass some of the figures on to you.

"There are three major sports on the L.S.U. intramural program—football, basketball and softball. There are nine other sports which offer participation in almost any athletic category.

"During the athletic year 1957-58 there were 75 teams in three supervised 7-Man Football leagues encompassing 1,375 students. Basketball boasted 72 teams in league play with 989 individuals taking part. Softball's three leagues had 73 teams and 973 players participating. Excluding boxing there were 515 organized teams engaged in various intramural sports th past year.

"At L.S.U., league play is divided into three categories. There are leagues representing members of the Interfraternity Athletic Council, the ROTC and the campus. No individual is restricted to play in one league and it is not uncommon to have one individual being a member of teams in all three leagues.

"Other sports offered on the L.S.U. intramural program included volley ball, track, swimming, tennis (singles and doubles), boxing, ping-pong (singles and doubles). In addition, two fraternities annually engage in a tackle football game for charity.

"The total participation may reflect the genuine interest of the L.S.U. student in athletics. With one participation recorded each time an individual participated in any activity, the total participation for 1957-58 was 9,280. This means that there was an average of almost two participations per male in the student body during the year, since the average male enrollment was 5,366.

"The L.S.U. Athletic Department administers this program, and we are working toward an even more expansive and progressive operation which will afford every male student on our campus an opportunity to utiliz excellent facilities and participate competetively in a program designed for wholesome and well organized physical activity."

BOSOX WIN, 7-1

Ted Socks 7th Homer Of Year

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams crashed his first homer in nearly three weeks and No. 7 of the season Saturday as the Boston Red Sox belted the Kansas City A's 7-1.

Williams picked on the first delivery of relief hurler Tom Gorman and sent a towering drive some 20 rows into the right field stands, scoring two runners ahead of him.

The 39-year-old slugger's blast capped a four-run rally in the second inning which enabled Boston's Frank Sullivan to coast to his fourth victory in five decisions.

Sullivan settled down after a shaky start for a six hitter. He didn't allow a hit after the fourth inning but was given tremendous support in the field.

The Red Sox infield pulled off four double plays while Jimmy Piersall turned in another of his patented gems in center field.

Piersall, who connected for his fifth homer in the second before Williams' drive, made a one-handed running stab of Bob Cerv's long drive just before bumping the bullpen fence in the sixth.

Jack Urban was wild and was hit hard before giving way to Gorman with two out in the sixth. Gorman's first pitch to Williams was decisive.

The Red Sox picked up two runs in the first when with two out Urban walked Williams and Dick Gernert. Frank Malzone then hoisted a long triple to the 420-foot mark in center.

After the A's got their run on a double by Frank House and a single by Woody Held in the second, the Sox scored again.

Piersall got a ground rule home run when his high drive caromed off the wall above the 379 - foot mark into the center field bleachers and then bounced back on the field. Piersall easily made third and was waved around by the umpires.

Don Buddin's single and a walk to Pete Runnels set up Williams.

Bostn added its final run in the sixth as Piersall beat out an infield hit, was sacrificed to second and scored on Runnels' double to left.

Vic Power of the A's had a single to extend his hitting streak to 20 games.

Speedway Has Facelifting To Eliminate Dust

The Twin City Speedway, still in the process of renovations that will improve the track and reduce dust, will remain closed to racing today as work is not yet finished on the West Monroe racing strip, it was announced yesterday.

The track was also closed last Sunday as hundreds of loads of clay have been hauled onto the track, graded, banked, and packed. The work is continuing. The turns at the north and south ends of the half mile oval are bowled up with higher embankments, graded to permit faster speeds at the turns.

At the same time, the clay surface, when packed, should eliminate the dust that has plagued many of the track's customers. A track spokesman yesterday said "after this job is finished you can see the races in your white sports coat and go home with it clean."

It's possible the track will be ready for action from the stock car crowd again next Sunday.

Seattle Boat Takes Detroit Memorial Run

DETROIT (AP) — Miss Thriftway, a late entry from Seattle won the Detroit Memorial Regatta for unlimited powerboats Saturday as Gale VI was disqualified for jumping the starting gun.

Miss Thriftway showed up late after officials of the unlimited hydroplane race had given up on her taking part in the event.

Gale VI had engine trouble on the fourth heat of the long afternoon and that boat was not expected to be able to make the 30-mile final run over the three-mile Detroit River course.

Race officials said Gale VI — which finished comfortably ahead of the others at the end of 10 regulation laps—was just one second ahead of the starting gun. That forced Gale VI to make an extra turn around the course.

Miss Thriftway was driven by Bill Muncey, a former Detroiter.

Despite the handicap of an extra lap Gale VI finished second. Miss Supertest of London, Ont., was third and Wildroot Charlie of Buffalo was fourth. Miss U.S. I, winner of two preliminary heats, had engine difficulties early and finally conked out on the eighth lap.

The final heat was interrupted after five laps when Short Circuit damaged its right sponson and pulled off the course. A Coast Guard boat fired a warning flare stopping the race.

Fred Alter drove the Detroit boat Miss U.S. I to victories in both the second and third heats. Alter finished first in the second heat ahead of Gale VI averaging 106.55 miles an hour over the 15-mile run. He came back to take the third heat with an average of 103.946 m.p.h. finishing in front of Short Circuit, and Miss Thriftway of Seattle.

Short Circuit, driven by Chuck Thompson, won the opening heat over the Canadian boat Miss Supertest and Seattle's Miss Thrift away. Thompson's speed was 103.-47 m.p.h.

Wildroot Charlie, a Buffalo boat driven by Bob Schroeder, captured the fourth heat with an average speed of 97.172 m.p.h.

Nadir Winner By Nose Over Strong Ruler

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP) — Claiborne Farm's Nadir Saturday captured his first stakes of 1958 by defeating the 8-5 favorite Strong Ruler by a nose in the $24,250 Select Handicap at Monmouth Park.

A crowd of 24,433 awaited the outcome of an objection by Howard Grant, rider of Ada L. Rice's Strong Ruler, against Jim Nichols, pilot of Nadir. The stewards disallowed the objection and Nadir rewarded his backers $11.20, $4.80 and $3.80. Nadir carried top weight of 126 pounds and ran the six furlongs in 1:12 4-5 over a "slow" track.

Third in the field of 13 3-year-olds was Elkcan Stable's Hubcap, six lengths back of Strong Ruler and a neck in advance of Mrs. William E. Snell's My Warrior, coupled in the betting with C. Mahlon Kline's Galley Hill.

Bolt Fires Rounds Of 69, 72 To Claim U. S. Open

By WILL GRIMSLEY

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tommy Bolt, a tough ex-Army sergeant and man of alternating peace and violent emotions, won the 58th National Open golf championship with a remarkable self and shot control Saturday. He shot rounds of 69 and 72 for a 72-hole score of 283.

The jut - jawed southwesterner, 39, born in Oklahoma and reared in Louisiana, crushed the hopes of South Africa's young Gary Player with a staggering streak of birdies in the morning and then snuffed out the late-coming challenge of Gene Littler.

Player, the 22-year-old precisionist from Johannesburg, finished four strokes back of the new champion with rounds of 73 and 71 for 287.

Littler, the comeback kid from El Cajon, Calif., surged out of nowhere with a brilliant 3 - under-par 67 in the morning to move within three strokes of the pacesetter, but his bid died in a graveyard of bogeys in the sweltering afternoon sun as Bolt surged home like Whirlaway.

Other bids faded one by one through a day when temperatures reached 100 and Southern Hills' 6,907-yard course and 35-35—70 par took on a nightmarish hue in the latter stages of the gruelling 36-hole windup.

Ben Hogan, seeking a record fifth with an aching left wrist, fell out of contention early and he was followed by Frank Stranahan, Julius Boros, Charles Coe and Labron Harris, who were in pressing position entering the final day.

Jimmy Demaret, playing in his 15th Open, found conditions so tough he withdrew after shooting an 81 in the morning round.

Bolt led each of the four rounds, becoming the first since Ben Hogan at Oakmont in 1953 to make every pole a winning one.

The man who has been called "the terrible tempered Mister Bolt" and who has accused galleries of being against him, got a tremendous ovation from the wall of people around him when he sank a four-foot putt for his par on the final hole. The crowd was estimated at close to 20,000.

Tommy doffed his brown straw hat and waved gaily to the crowd. He chattered away with newsmen as he strode to the clubhouse where an $8,000 first prize check awaited him.

Bolt in one breath said, "I am a man of peace" and in the next has bitterly attacked newsmen. Over a period of years — during which there were failures and frustrations—he has built up a reputation as a club thrower.

But Tommy says recently he acquired an inner peace which has steadied his game and turned him from a great golfer with an inclination towards playoffs into a steady champion.

Bolt won the championship with a relentless surge in the morning round which saw him play six of seven holes in a row in 3s, mainly on the strength of some phenomenal putting.

Starting at the ninth, where he sank a 15-foot putt, he went 3-3-3-5-3-3. He sank one from six feet on the 10th, four feet on the 12th and eight feet on the 14th and 15th

MORE

Littler, 27, National Amateur champion in 1953 and runner-up to lame-armed Ed Furgol for the Open crown in 1954, made a powerful move at the championship in the morning round, but wariness and pressure finally brought him down.

On his morning round, the best of the tournament, he had only 27 putts—nine under regulation—and sank assignments from 10 to 25 feet. The 25-footer came on the 378-yard 10th hole.

Bolt thus becomes one of the most controversial and colorful of our golf champions, a throwback to the Twenties and Thirties when the game had less inhibitions. He probably is the most colorful since the flamboyant Walter Hagen.

Bolt overcame privation, heartbreaking reversals and an ungovernable temper to reach golf's highest pinnacle.

Throughout his career Tommy has been plagued by a trigger temper which frequently reflected itself in explosions on the golf course. He got a reputation for breaking clubs and cracking them against trees.

Once a golf announcer blared over the speaker that "Bolt has hit the pin." At the clubhouse his wife asked tartly: 'What with—the caddie or the club."

"I used to get so mad when I made a bad shot I wanted to wreck the place," Tommy explained. "But at the Greensboro Open this year I decided this was getting me nowhere. So I decided to control myself."

IN THE HANDS OF THE LAU — Detroit Tigers' catcher Charley Lau collides with third baseman Ossie Virgil as the backstop snags a foul off the bat of New York Yankees' catcher Yogi Berra in sixth inning yesterday in New York. Virgil, also after the pop foul, was knocked down but not injured as Lau held on to the ball. Tigers won, 5-4. (AP Wirephoto)

TIGERS, 5-4

Bolling's 2-Run Single In Ninth Beats Yankees

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Bolling looped a Ryne Duren fast ball into center for a two-run single with two out in the ninth Saturday as Detroit rallied for a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

All the drama of this one was packed into the last two innings as the Yankees first took the lead 4-3 on Yogi Berra's three-run homer in the eighth, then watched Duren—their rookie relief ace—blow one for the first time since the opening week of the season.

The 220-pound Duren took over after Bob Grim walked pinch hitter Bob Hazle, the first batter in the ninth, on four pitches. Duren retired Johnny Groth and Ossie Virgil on pop-ups but Al Kaline's fourth hit, an infield single, and a walk to Charlie Maxwell on a full count loaded the bases.

The count went to 3-2 on Bolling before the lithe infielder blooped his game-winner to center that fell at the feet of the charging Mickey Mantle, scoring Hazle and Kaline.

It was revived Detroit's second straight victory in the four-game Yankee set which ends with a doubleheader at the Stadium Sunday.

Hank Aguirre, who saved Friday night's triumph for Billy Hoeft, picked up the victory for a 3-1 record with a hitless ninth. Duren, who has won three games and saved 10 others, lost his second.

Detroit starter George Susce pitched and batted the Tigers into a 3-1 lead until he weakened in the eighth. The only run scored against him until then was unearned and he had chipped in with a double to drive in the first two Detroit runs. Kaline, who also had two singles and a double, accounted for the third Tiger run with his fifth homer in the fifth inning.

Susce left after he walked Mantle and gave up a double to Gil McDougald with one out in the eighth. Tom Morgan relieved and, after Bill Skowron popped up for the second out, Berra lined the first pitch into the right field seats for his 10th homer.

BRIGGS, HENRY

2 New Pitchers Win For Bruins

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs used two new pitchers, starter Johnny Briggs and Bill Henry, who worked in relief, on Cincinnati Saturday and their combined efforts turned back the Redlegs, 4-3, before a ladies' day turnout of 22,552.

Briggs, who exited in the fifth after the Redlegs rose to a 3-3 tie, yielded five hits. The 30-year-old left-handed Henry gave up only two in the final 4 2-3 innings to gain his first National League triumph.

Briggs was recalled from Fort Worth of the Texas League during this week. Henry was purchased from Portland of the Pacific Coast League.

Victim of the Cubs' 10-hit offensive was Bob Purkey, an eight time winner who suffered his second loss. Purkey also had a five game winning streak snapped.

Chicago outfielder Lee Walls climaxed a perfect 4-for-4 day by scoring the winning run in the eighth. Walls, who doubled in the first, got his third straight single. Ernie Banks sacrificed, sending Walls to second.

After Moose Moryn, who homered in the first, flied for the second out, Dale Long singled sharply to center to score Walls with the payoff run.

The Cubs got to Purkey for a 3-0 lead in the first. Tony Taylor singled and stole second—his ninth theft in 10 attempts. Al Dark's infield out moved him to third, and he scored on Walls' double.

After Banks supplied the second out, Moryn hit a line drive into the right field bleachers for his No. 13 homer, scoring behind Walls.

Briggs had a three-hitter going when he developed control trouble in the fifth. Purkey and Johnny Temple drew successive walks before Jerry Lynch flied for the first out. Frank Robinson also walked, filling the bases.

George Crowe fanned. Don Hoak followed with a dribbler that squirted off Dark's glove for a two-run single as Purkey and Temple scored.

Winston-Salem Gets McDaniel

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) —Von McDaniel, 19-year-old pitching whiz with the St. Louis Cards last season, will join the Winston-Salem Redbirds of the Class B Carolina League next week.

McDaniel, who received a $50,000 bonus to sign with the Cards right out of high school, won seven and lost five with St. Louis last season.

The 6-3, Hollis, Okla., farm boy was sent to Houston of the Class AA Texas League last month to correct what Redbird Manager Fred Hutchinson called a hitch in his pitching delivery. He had a 1-3 record at Houston.

At Winston-Salem, a St. Louis farm club, officials hope McDaniel will lick his problem.

Bee Captures Citation Run, Pays $46.40

CHICAGO (AP)—Better Bee, a 22-1 shot, scored a resounding upset in the $55,900 Citation Handicap Saturday, as the even money favorite Swoon's Son finished fourth in the mile event in Washington Park.

Better Bee, a 4-year-old dark bay colt owned by W.S. Miller, member of the Illinois Racing Board, returned his backers in a crowd of 20,787 a fat price of $46.40, $17.80 and $8.20.

Better Bee, ridden by Richard Barnett, won by 1½ lengths over Hasty House Farm's Solution, while Reverie Knoll Farm's Jet Colonel took third. Finishing fourth, almost three lengths behind Jet Colonel, was E. Gay Drake's Swoon's Son, apparently overburdened by his top weight of 131 pounds on a slow track.

Swoon's Son had been shooting at the $32,850 winner's net which would have moved him ahead of Armed for sixth place among Turfdom's all-time money winners Swoon's Son, taking $5,000 for fourth, still holds seventh place with $792,395. Armed earned $817,-475.

Fifth in the field of nine was Ekaba, followed by 1957 Kentucky Derby winner Iron Liege, Shan Pac, Clermont and Ezgo.

Better Bee was timed in 1:38 2-5 while scoring his third and best victory of the year.

The son of Triplicate-S. Bee won three races last year, the best being the $50,000 added Chicagoan during the Balmoral meeting.

Solution paid $9 and $5.60 and Jet Colonel returned $6.20.

The day's mutuel handle of $1,-543,050 raised to $28,811,747 the 30-day total for a new Balmoral meeting high. The previous mark of $28,714,606 was set in 1956. The meeting's attendance of 362,605 also beat the previous mark of 361,694 in 1955.

Colorado State Beats Lafayette In NCAA Series

OMAHA (AP)—Colorado State outlasted Lafayette 10-5 Saturday in a first-round NCAA College World Series game.

Ron Herbel scattered six Lafayette hits and struck out 12, including the side in the second and two men in the ninth.

A five-run sixth inning which included only two singles iced it for Colorado State.

Al Caeser's 400-foot triple in the third with two men on sparked a three-run Lafayette inning. It was the first extra base hit of the series.

Baylor Gives Up College, Signs With Pro Lakers

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — All-America Elgin Baylor junked his final year of eligibility at Seattle University Saturday and signed with the pro Minneapolis Lakers for one of the highest prices ever offered a college basketball player.

The Lakers laid out a sum estimated between $17,000 and $20,-000 for the 6-6 Negro star from Washington, D.C. in what they said was a now-or-never move to keep a National Basketball Assn. franchise in the city.

Gibson Upset As British Sweep Wightman Tennis

By STERLING SLAPPEY

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP) — Christine Truman, a 17-year-old amazonian schoolgirl, overpowered tennis queen Althea Gibson in a startling upset Saturday as Britain smashed America's 28-year hold on the Wightman Cup, four matches to three.

The honor of clinching Britain's first Cup championship since 1930 went to Ann Haydon, who scored her country's fourth point in the next to last match of the seven-match, two-day competition with a 6-3, 5-7, 6-3 singles victory over Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif.

The U. S. got its last point in a meaningless, concluding doubles match as Gibson and Janet Hopps of Seattle defeated Ann Shilcock and Pat Ward, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

But the six-foot, 170-pound Miss Truman, who swept both her singles assignments and shared in a third point in doubles, triggered the upset.

Following up her brilliant play in Friday's opening program,

CHRISTINE TRUMAN

Miss Truman shrugged off a first set loss to simply overwhelm Gibson—the defending Wimbledon and U. S. champion—2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Her victory came at the crucial point in the series, veteran Dorothy Head Knode of Forest Hills, N. Y., had moments before equalled the competition at 2-2 with a surprise triumph over Shirley Bloomer in the opening singles.

Christine's shocker made it 3-2 for Britain and Miss Haydon, only 19 and better known as a table tennis star, took it from there for the clincher in a raggedly played match with Miss Arnold.

Even the clinching victory was an anticlimax for the crowd of 5,000, which roared throughout the thrilling Truman-Gibson duel.

Althea, who scored America's only first day point with a 6-3, 6-4 decision over Miss Bloomer, swept through the first set with hardly any effort. In the second set, Miss Truman abandoned the baseline tactics that worked so well in her singles and doubles matches Friday and began rushing the net.

She broke Gibson's service in the second game, held her own in the first and third and, leading 3-0, had the tall, gangling ace from New York's Harlem on the defensive.

In the third set, Christine broke Althea's service in the fifth game for a 3-2 lead but lost her serve in the sixth. Tied at 4-4, the powerful English girl scored the key break in the ninth game, then beat Gibson with a sizzling passing shot in the tenth after double faulting at her first match point.

The U. S. still holds a tidy edge, 25-5 in the two-nation series which began in 1923. Britain's other victories were in 1924, 1925, 1928 and 1930.

LOES VICTIM

Pale Sox Shell Orioles, 9 To 1

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Chicago White Sox gave bad boy Billy Loes his sixth spanking as they beat the Baltimore Orioles 9-1 Saturday.

A two-run homer by catcher Earl Battey in the fourth inning was the big blow that left Loes without a pitching victory this season. Earl Torgeson also clouted a homer in the ninth with a Sox teammate on base.

It was the first appearance for Loes since he threw a tantrum 13 days ago and drew a six-day suspension with a $200 fine.

Battey's drive into the left field stands broke a 1-1 tie and pitcher Early Wynn assured himself of his sixth victory against five defeats by driving in another run in the same inning.

Gene Woodling's home run in the third inning was the only damage the Orioles could do to Wynn's knuckle balls. Ten of them went by for third strikes.

After Loes departed for a pinch hitter in the seventh, the Sox jumped on Lou Sleater for three more runs in the eighth inning and Torgeson's double run production in the final off George Zuverink.

While Loes minded his manners this time, Manager Paul Richards provided the spice.

The Baltimore manager twice came out of the wings to yammer at Umpire Bill Summers in a fashion reminiscent of Leo Durocher, the former Dodger-Giant manager.

Summers ordered Richards out during the second debate. It was prompted when Summers reversed a decision in the fifth inning.

Al Smith was on first for the White Sox when Tito Francona bunted in front of the plate. The Orioles went through the motions of completing what they thought was a double play with approval of the umps. But at the insistence of Chicago, Summers inspected the ball and agreed it showed the mark of hitting Francon's shoe to be foul and the play was called off.

CATCHES ROD AND REEL

CENTRAL CITY, Ky. (AP)—Fisherman W. P. Hamm had one of his best catches at nearby Kentucky Lake. But it wasn't a fish. Hamm hauled in an expensive fishing rod and reel.

Hoad Trounces Hartwig In 1st Of Round Robin

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Pro tennis thumper Lew Hoad, his power game stifled by wind gusts, rallied to defeat fellow-Australian Rex Hartwig, 3-6, 6-1, 6-3, in Saturday's opening match of the Round-Robin Tournament of Champions.

Trailing 3-1 in the final set, Hoad swept the next four games with deftly placed volleys combined with errors by Hartwig, another former Aussie Davis Cupper turned professional.

2 Supporting Bouts Set For Boxing Card

Promoter Gus Kallio has lined up two supporting bouts for his June 24 welterweight feature between Irish Johnny McKoin and Al Boudreaux, one of them a lightweight clash and the other a middleweight contest.

Paul Estrada, 129, will fight Bastrop's Johnny Allen, 136, in one of 3 four - rounders on the card. In another scheduled four - round battle, popular local colored middleweight Robert Williams faces Shreveport's Lester Gilhard. Both boys weigh 160.

Estrada, a Barksdale Field airman, has appeared here before and has been impressive. Kallio reports Allen is already working out hard and is looking good.

Kallio hopes to line up another four - round match and a six-round bout to back up the 10 - round feature. He has improving Monroe and Farmerville lightheavy DeWayne Garris in mind for the six-round semi-final but hasn't signed an opponent yet. Kallio has not lined up the other four-round prelim as yet also but promises fights fans "one of the best supporting cards we've ever had." Kallio is planning on a 28-round program with the 10-round main event, the six-round semi-final and 3 four-rounders.

The veteran promoter reports one of the best advance sales on tickets in years.

"There are no more first row seats available and most of the second row is gone also," Kallio said.

Tickets are on sale at Kallio's office residence at 1101 Jackson and at Fink's Clothing on DeSiard Street here in Monroe. Bastrop fans can purchase their tickets at Arlie's Cafe.

Ringside seats are going at $2.50 each, general admission tickets at $1.50 and children under 16 can get in for $.75.

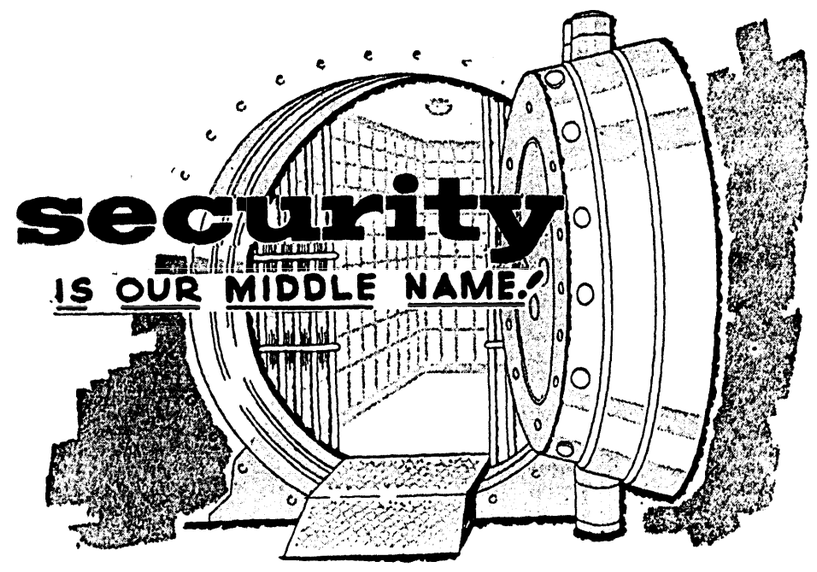

PASS MASTER

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Sammy Baugh, the former professional football star and now head coach at Hardin-Simmons University in Texas, spent the spring teaching University of Colorado backfielders his old specialty—how to pass.

In 1950, Lehigh's baseball team had a 32-0 lead over the Quantico Marines after three innings. The game was called because of darkness and declared "no contest." There was no protest.

Gibson Upset As British Sweep Wightman Tennis

By STERLING SLAPPEY

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP) — Christine Truman, a 17-year-old amazonian schoolgirl, overpowered tennis queen Althea Gibson in a startling upset Saturday as Britain smashed America's 28-year hold on the Wightman Cup, four matches to three.

The honor of clinching Britain's first Cup championship since 1930 went to Ann Haydon, who scored her country's fourth point in the next to last match of the seven-match, two-day competition with a 6-3, 5-7, 6-3 singles victory over Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif.

The U. S. got its last point in a meaningless, concluding doubles match as Gibson and Janet Hopps of Seattle defeated Ann Shilcock and Pat Ward, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

But the six-foot, 170-pound Miss Truman, who swept both her singles assignments and shared in a third point in doubles, triggered the upset.

Following up her brilliant play in Friday's opening program,

CHRISTINE TRUMAN

Miss Truman shrugged off a first set loss to simply overwhelm Gibson—the defending Wimbledon and U. S. champion—2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Her victory came at the crucial point in the series, veteran Dorothy Head Knode of Forest Hills, N. Y., had moments before equalled the competition at 2-2 with a surprise triumph over Shirley Bloomer in the opening singles.

Christine's shocker made it 3-2 for Britain and Miss Haydon, only 19 and better known as a table tennis star, took it from there for the clincher in the raggedly played match with Miss Arnold.

Even the clinching victory was an anticlimax for the crowd of 5,000, which roared throughout the thrilling Truman-Gibson duel.

Althea, who scored America's only first day point with a 6-3, 6-4 decision over Miss Bloomer, swept through the first set with hardly any effort. In the second set, Miss Truman abandoned the baseline tactics that worked so well in her singles and doubles matches Friday and began rushing the net.

She broke Gibson's service in the second game, held her own in the first and third and, leading 3-0, had the tall, gangling ace from New York's Harlem on the defensive.

In the third set, Christine broke Althea's service in the fifth game for a 3-2 lead but lost her serve in the sixth. Tied at 4-4, the powerful English girl scored the key break in the ninth game, then beat Gibson with a sizzling passing shot in the tenth after double faulting at her first match point.

The U. S. still holds a tidy edge, 25-5 in the two-nation series which began in 1923. Britain's other victories were in 1924, 1925, 1928 and 1930.

Hoad Trounces Hartwig In 1st Of Round Robin

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Pro tennis thumper Lew Hoad, his power game stifled by wind gusts, rallied to defeat fellow-Australian Rex Hartwig, 3-6, 6-1, 6-3, in Saturday's opening match of the Round-Robin Tournament of Champions.

Trailing 3-1 in the final set, Hoad swept the next four games with deftly placed volleys combined with errors by Hartwig, another former Aussie Davis Cupper turned professional.

LOES VICTIM

Pale Sox Shell Orioles, 9 To 1

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Chicago White Sox gave bad boy Billy Loes his sixth spanking as they beat the Baltimore Orioles 9-1 Saturday.

A two-run homer by catcher Earl Battey in the fourth inning was the big blow that left Loes without a pitching victory this season. Earl Torgeson also clouted a homer in the ninth with a Sox teammate on base.

It was the first appearance for Loes since he threw a tantrum 13 days ago and drew a six-day suspension with a $200 fine.

Battey's drive into the left field stands broke a 1-1 tie and pitcher Early Wynn assured himself of his sixth victory against five defeats by driving in another run in the same inning.

Gene Woodling's home run in the third inning was the only damage the Orioles could do to Wynn's knuckle balls. Ten of them went by for third strikes.

After Loes departed for a pinch hitter in the seventh, the Sox jumped on Lou Sleater for three more runs in the eighth inning and Torgeson's double run production in the final off George Zuverink.

While Loes minded his manners this time, Manager Paul Richards provided the spice.

The Baltimore manager twice came out of the wings to yammer at Umpire Bill Summers in a fashion reminiscent of Leo Durocher, the former Dodger-Giant manager.

Summers ordered Richards out during the second debate. It was prompted when Summers reversed a decision in the fifth inning.

Al Smith was on first for the White Sox when Tito Francona bunted in front of the plate. The Orioles went through the motions of completing what they thought was a double play with approval of the umps. But at the insistence of Chicago, Summers inspected the ball and agreed it showed the mark of hitting Francon's shoe to be foul and the play was called off.

Rizzo Out As Pel General Manager; Rumor Transfer

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Usually optimistic Vince Rizzo resigned Saturday as general manager of the New Orleans Pelicans amid rumblings there was dissension in the Southern Assn. team's front office.

Rizzo, who rose from a bat boy's job to the top executive post with the team, issued a statement saying he took the action because "matters have not worked out as I anticipated prior to the start of the 1958 season."

The Pelicans opened the season under a cloud of financial distress and needed a public subscription for funds to field a team. Mayor deLesseps Morrison led the fight that climaxed in the Pelicans' obtaining City Park Stadium as a home site.

Despite a working agreement with the powerful New York Yankees, the Pelicans are last, 10½ games behind Atlanta's league leaders.

Club president Jack Defee refused to comment on Rizzo's resignation, except to say that he regretted the action.

Defee said playing - manager Charley Silvera would be restored to the active list and would assist the management committee in taking over the duties of Rizzo's office.

Defee said a management committee composed of three members of the board of directors would direct the club's operations for the rest of the season. The members were not named.

Defee also refused comment on the extent Rizzo's resignation would have on the team's operation for the rest of the year, nor would be comment on the status of the club with respect to finishing the season.

The Pelicans have been plagued by poor attendance and there have been reports the team would move to Shreveport, a member of the Texas League last year. Shreveport presently has no team in organized baseball.

The latest such report came Saturday. Sports editor Zipp Newman of the Birmingham News said in his column, "The unwanted Pels, if the dope sheet is correct, are playing their last game in New Orleans against Nashville Sunday."

Newman said Birmingham would be the opponent for the first game at Shreveport on June 24. The Pels go on a road trip Monday and were scheduled to return to New Orleans June 24 to play the Barons.

Defee said there was no truth to Newman's predictions.

At Shreveport, Bonneau Peters, owner of the Texas League park and former owner of the Shreveport franchise, said he had not been contacted recently about the possible transfer of the Pels. The Shreveport ball park could be put into shape easily for Southern Assn. play.

Uniconfirmed reports also had Morrison involved in the front office dissension, but neither Defee or Rizzo had any comment on this angle.

Rizzo said he still believes baseball should be in the city and his statement said, "No one has worked harder on this than I have."

Holland Falls As De Lamaze Cops 9th Title

DEAUVILLE, France (AP) — Henri de Lamaze of Paris, defeated Tim Holland of Rocksville Centre, N. Y. and won his fifth consecutive French Amateur golf crown. It is the ninth time the dapper Frenchman has taken this championship.

Holland, a defeated semifinalist in the British Amateur a week ago, led after the morning round, 1 up. But after lunch he continued spraying his wood shots into the rough while the Lamaze, beset with putting troubles early, steadied and closed out the match on the 33rd.

They were even as late as the 29th hole. Then Holland suddenly inherited de Lamaze's putting problems and he lost the next four holes. On the 30th hole, Holland overshot the green and then missed an eight-foot putt coming back. The American missed a five footer on the 31st and needed two stabs to get down a 12-footer on the 32nd.

Holland was short with his approach on the 33rd, leaving himself a 25-foot putt. He missed by eight inches and it was all over.

De Lamaze had that kind of trouble on the morning round, missing an 18-inch tap on No. 18 to give the American his lunch time edge. Holland made the morning round in 74 strokes, two over par. De Lamaze needed 75 blows. After lunch the Frenchman calmed down and was three under for the 15 holes played. Holland, in turn, was three over.

Coach Ned Harkness of RPI has seen his lacrosse team beat his brother Bill's Yale eleven six times in 10 meetings.

NOW WE HAS JAZZ

Christy Vs. Laye For State Crown

Jerry Christy and Charley Laye will do battle for the vacant Louisiana heavyweight championship with, appropriately enough, jazz providing the background music.

The veteran Laye and young Christy, familiar opponents, were selected last week as the two most deserving challengers for the title belt last held by Bernard Hodgemyer, under suspension for missing a bout. Promotoer Gus Kallio had originally planned an 8-man elimination series for Monday night but called it off when it became apparent the series would run too long for one night.

A tag team match pitting Jack Curtis and Bill Barney versus Phil Brummett and Al Massey will have semi - final billing on the card and two 10 - minute prelims will open the program.

The music will be provided by the "Jazz Teans," a small band composed of members of the Neville High School band. The band will play before the match and between the falls.

Laye, going by his former meetings with Christy, should be a heavy favorite to win the title. The Knoxville, Tennessee villain, a former titleholder, beat Christy three straight times recently. All three of the grueling bouts were close, but justice did not triumph.

Christy has proved to be one of the best, if not the best, straight grapplers to appear locally in some time. Big, fast and agressive, Jerry evidently has all the physical equipment to beat bad Charles but Laye's experience and pier six tactics have been manly Jerry's downfall.

However, past performances have a habit of meaning little in championship affairs here and anything can happen. Everyone will be disappointed if it doesn't.

The title bout will be over the 90-minute or less route with two falls to win and the tag scrap will have an hour limit.

HAGGE FALTERS

Marblehead Lead Taken By Suggs

By BOB HOOBING

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP)—Veteran Louise Suggs, fighting fatigue and mounting pressure, took the lead from faltering Marlene Hagge Saturday in the fo' 'round of the $12,000 Round Robin Women's Invitation Golf Tournament.

In a sensational bid for contention, Mrs. Hagge's sister, Alice Bauer, skied 29 points in the double round action to reach the runner-up position.

Playing cautiously for a 3-over-par 76 on the afternoon 18 holes, Louise climbed to the head of the field as she and Patty Berg combined to chop 10 points off Marlene's score in the feature foursome.

Louise has plus 30 with the final round set for Sunday at the 6,174 yard Tedesco Country Club course. Alice has plus 28. Mrs. Hagge and Miss Berg are deadloecked at plus 24.

Kathy Cornelius reached plus 20.

The tourney involves 16 pros each playing against three rivals in roating foursomes. A player is credited with plus points for strokes under her opponents and charged with minus points for strokes over them.

Miss Suggs did nothing extraordinary but her consistent, clutch shots enabled her to move in front.

Losing the fine putting touch she exhibited in the morning tour, Marlene plunged to a 79 after lunch. She lost five points on the 15th hole with a double bogey when she trapped her second shot fell short of the green on the recovery and needed two putts.

Miss Berg picked up 10 points by firing a 74 after hanging up a double bogey on the first hole.

Mrs. Cornelius tied the women's course record of 70 and took over as low medalist with a 72-hole total of 292 but ran into tougher opposition than Alice.

The scores:

Louise Suggs	71-74-79-76—300, plus 30
Alice Bauer	72-78-73-76—299, plus 28

TOO MUCH WEIGHT

Gallant Man Beats Bold Ruler In Meet

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The weight and Gallant Man, an old rival, caught up with Bold Ruler Saturday in the $58,800 Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park.

Gallant Man rushed up from ninth place, caught the tiring Bold Ruler with less than a sixteenth of a mile to go, and drew off to win by 2 lengths. Adele L. Rand's Clem was third, a length and a half back of the Ruler in a field of 10.

Bold Ruler, owned by the Wheatley Stable of Mrs. H. C. Phipps and ridden by Eddie Arcaro, lugged 135 pounds in the one mile race being run for the 65th time. This was five more than Gallant Man packed and that was the difference as Willie Shoemaker hustled Ralph Lowe's Irish-raised colt home in a snappy 1:35 3-5 on a fast track before a crowd of 33,657.

Gallant Man thus evened the score with Bold Ruler at four apiece with his sparkling performance.

Bold Ruler was the 19-20 favorite as he was seeking his seventh straight victory.

The winner, a bay 4-year-old son of Migoli-Majideh, was second choice and returned $7.90, $3.40 and $2.70. Bold Ruler paid $2.70 and $2.20. Clem, third choice at 5-1, was $3.30 to show.

Clem, with only 114 pounds, took third by a neck from Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Promised Land at 118. The latter was fourth by another neck over Howell E. Jackson's Tick Tock, with 112.

"I stayed back because I wasn't sure what the pace would be and I didn't want to use him up early," said Shoemaker. "We found a little run to get through at the head of the stretch and then started rolling when we got outside again. He was really a big running horse at the end."

Arcaro said, "It was just what you saw—the horse went on by me. The only explanation I have is the weight."

This was the seventh stakes victory for Gallant Man and the $37,620 collected boosted his all-time winning to $348,855.

At the start, Edward Seinfeld's Admiral Vee took the lead but Arcaro had Bold Ruler leading by a length at the first quarter. Going into the far turn, with a half mile to travel, Bold Ruler, opened up 2 lengths on Tick Tock. Gallant Man was running eighth at that point.

It appeared momentarily that Bold Ruler might make it but Shoemaker sent Gallant Man to the inside entering the stretch and took him out into the middle of the track where he ate up ground.

Rizzo Out As Pel General Manager; Rumor Transfer

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Usually optimistic Vince Rizzo resigned Saturday as general manager of the New Orleans Pelicans amid rumblings there was dissension in the Southern Assn. team's front office.

Rizzo, who rose from a bat boy's job to the top executive post with the team, issued a statement saying he took the action because "matters have not worked out as I anticipated prior to the start of the 1958 season."

The Pelicans opened the season under a cloud of financial distress and needed a public subscription for funds to field a team. Mayor deLesseps Morrison led the fight that climaxed in the Pelicans' obtaining City Park Stadium as a home site.

Despite a working agreement with the powerful New York Yankees, the Pelicans are last, 10½ games behind Atlanta's league leaders.

Club president Jack Defee refused to comment on Rizzo's resignation, except to say that he regretted the action.

Defee said playing - manager Charley Silvera would be restored to the active list and would assist the management committee in taking over the duties of Rizzo's office.

Defee said a management committee composed of three members of the board of directors would direct the club's operations for the rest of the season. The members were not named.

Defee also refused comment on the extent Rizzo's resignation would have on the team's operation for the rest of the year, nor would be comment on the status of the club with respect to finishing the season.

The Pelicans have been plagued by poor attendance and there have been reports the team would move to Shreveport, a member of the Texas League last year. Shreveport presently has no team in organized baseball.

The latest such report came Saturday. Sports editor Zipp Newman of the Birmingham News said in his column, "The unwanted Pels, if the dope sheet is correct, are playing their last game in New Orleans against Nashville Sunday."

Newman said Birmingham would be the opponent for the first game at Shreveport on June 24. The Pels go on a road trip Monday and were scheduled to return to New Orleans June 24 to play the Barons.

Defee said there was no truth to Newman's predictions.

At Shreveport, Bonneau Peters, owner of the Texas League park and former owner of the Shreveport franchise, said he had not been contacted recently about the possible transfer of the Pels. The Shreveport ball park could be put into shape easily for Southern Assn. play.

Uniconfirmed reports also had Morrison involved in the front office dissension, but neither Defee or Rizzo had any comment on this angle.

Rizzo said he still believes baseball should be in the city and his statement said, "No one has worked harder on this than I have."

Holland Falls As De Lamaze Cops 9th Title

DEAUVILLE, France (AP) — Henri de Lamaze of Paris, defeated Tim Holland of Rocksville Centre, N. Y. and won his fifth consecutive French Amateur golf crown. It is the ninth time the dapper Frenchman has taken this championship.

Holland, a defeated semifinalist in the British Amateur a week ago, led after the morning round, 1 up. But after lunch he continued spraying his wood shots into the rough while the Lamaze, beset with putting troubles early, steadied and closed out the match on the 33rd.

They were even as late as the 29th hole. Then Holland suddenly inherited de Lamaze's putting problems and he lost the next four holes. On the 30th hole, Holland overshot the green and then missed an eight-foot putt coming back. The American missed a five footer on the 31st and needed two stabs to get down a 12-footer on the 32nd.

Holland was short with his approach on the 33rd, leaving himself a 25-foot putt. He missed by eight inches and it was all over.

De Lamaze had that kind of trouble on the morning round, missing an 18-inch tap on No. 18 to give the American his lunch time edge. Holland made the morning round in 74 strokes, two over par. De Lamaze needed 75 blows. After lunch the Frenchman calmed down and was three under for the 15 holes played. Holland, in turn, was three over.

Coach Ned Harkness of RPI has seen his lacrosse team beat his brother Bill's Yale eleven six times in 10 meetings.

NOW WE HAS JAZZ

Christy Vs. Laye For State Crown

Jerry Christy and Charley Laye will do battle for the vacant Louisiana heavyweight championship with, appropriately enough, jazz providing the background music.

The veteran Laye and young Christy, familiar opponents, were selected last week as the two most deserving challengers for the title belt last held by Bernard Hodgemyer, under suspension for missing a bout. Promotoer Gus Kallio had originally planned an 8-man elimination series for Monday night but called it off when it became apparent the series would run too long for one night.

A tag team match pitting Jack Curtis and Bill Barney versus Phil Brummett and Al Massey will have semi - final billing on the card and two 10 - minute prelims will open the program.

The music will be provided by the "Jazz Teans," a small band composed of members of the Neville High School band. The band will play before the match and between the falls.

Laye, going by his former meetings with Christy, should be a heavy favorite to win the title. The Knoxville, Tennessee villain, a former titleholder, beat Christy three straight times recently. All three of the grueling bouts were close, but justice did not triumph.

Christy has proved to be one of the best, if not the best, straight grapplers to appear locally in some time. Big, fast and agressive, Jerry evidently has all the physical equipment to beat bad Charles but Laye's experience and pier six tactics have been manly Jerry's downfall.

However, past performances have a habit of meaning little in championship affairs here and anything can happen. Everyone will be disappointed if it doesn't.

The title bout will be over the 90-minute or less route with two falls to win and the tag scrap will have an hour limit.

HAGGE FALTERS

Marblehead Lead Taken By Suggs

By BOB HOOBING

MARBLEHEAD, Mass. (AP)—Veteran Louise Suggs, fighting fatigue and mounting pressure, took the lead from faltering Marlene Hagge Saturday in the fo'l round of the $12,000 Round Robin Women's Invitation Golf Tournament.

In a sensational bid for contention, Mrs. Hagge's sister, Alice Bauer, skied 29 points in the double round action to reach the runner-up position.

Playing cautiously for a 3-over-par 76 on the afternoon 18 holes, Louise climbed to the head of the field as she and Patty Berg combined to chop 10 points off Marlene's score in the feature foursome.

Louise has plus 30 with the final round set for Sunday at the 6,174 yard Tedesco Country Club course. Alice has plus 28. Mrs. Hagge and Miss Berg are deadloecked at plus 24.

Kathy Cornelius reached plus 20.

The tourney involves 16 pros each playing against three rivals in roating foursomes. A player is credited with plus points for strokes under her opponents and charged with minus points for strokes over them.

Miss Suggs did nothing extraordinary but her consistent, clutch shots enabled her to move in front.

Losing the fine putting touch she exhibited in the morning tour, Marlene plunged to a 79 after lunch. She lost five points on the 15th hole with a double bogey when she trapped her second shot fell short of the green on the recovery and needed two putts.

Miss Berg picked up 10 points by firing a 74 after hanging up a double bogey on the first hole.

Mrs. Cornelius tied the women's course record of 70 and took over as low medalist with a 72-hole total of 292 but ran into tougher opposition than Alice.

The scores:

Louise Suggs	71-74-79-76—300, plus 30

Gallant Man Beats Bold Ruler In Meet

By JOHN CHANDLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The weight and Gallant Man, an old rival, caught up with Bold Ruler Saturday in the $58,800 Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park.

Gallant Man rushed up from ninth place, caught the tiring Bold Ruler with less than a sixteenth of a mile to go, and drew off to win by 2 lengths. Adele L. Rand's Clem was third, a length and a half back of the Ruler in a field of 10.

Bold Ruler, owned by the Wheatley Stable of Mrs. H. C. Phipps and ridden by Eddie Arcaro, lugged 135 pounds in the one mile race being run for the 65th time. This was five more than Gallant Man packed and that was the difference as Willie Shoemaker hustled Ralph Lowe's Irish-raised colt home in a snappy 1:35 3-5 on a fast track before a crowd of 33,657.

Gallant Man thus evened the score with Bold Ruler at four apiece with his sparkling performance.

Bold Ruler was the 19-20 favorite as he was seeking his seventh straight victory.

The winner, a bay 4-year-old son of Migoli-Majideh, was second choice and returned $7.90, $3.40 and $2.70. Bold Ruler paid $2.70 and $2.20. Clem, third choice at 5-1, was $3.30 to show.

Clem, with only 114 pounds, took third by a neck from Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Promised Land at 118. The latter was fourth by another neck over Howell E. Jackson's Tick Tock, with 112.

"I stayed back because I wasn't sure what the pace would be and I didn't want to use him up early," said Shoemaker. "We found a little run to get through at the head of the stretch and then started rolling when we got outside again. He was really a big running horse at the end."

Arcaro said, "It was just what you saw—the horse went on by me. The only explanation I have is the weight."

This was the seventh stakes victory for Gallant Man and the $37,620 collected boosted his all-time winning to $348,855.

At the start, Edward Seinfeld's Admiral Vee took the lead but Arcaro had Bold Ruler leading by a length at the first quarter. Going into the far turn, with a half mile to travel, Bold Ruler, opened up 2 lengths on Tick Tock. Gallant Man was running eighth at that point.

It appeared momentarily that Bold Ruler might make it but Shoemaker sent Gallant Man to the inside entering the stretch and took him out into the middle of the track where he ate up ground.

Cardinals Use 2 Homers To Topple Braves, 2 To 1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ken Boyer and Gene Green slammed consecutive fourth-inning home runs off Milwaukee's Warren Spahn Saturday for a 2-1 St. Louis victory over the league-leaders.

Larry Jackson, now 5-2, outlasted the veteran Spahn in a pitching duel. Spahn came away with his third loss against eight victories.

Milwaukee broke into the scoring column in the fourth inning. Billy Bruton doubled to right and took third when Green threw wildly to the infield for an error. He scored as Ed Mathews was safe at first on an infield roller—Jackson dropping Stan Musial's throw.

The Cardinals, who had loaded the bases in the second inning without scoring, went to work on Spahn in a hurry in the fourth.

Boyer pumped his 12th home run into the left field bleachers and Green a scorching hitter as a rookie, unloaded a four-bagger to match Boyer's blast. It was his 5th of the year.

The Braves loaded the bases in the seventh.

Singles by Frank Torre, Johnny Logan, a sacrifice and an intentional pass to Del Crandall soaked the sacks with only one out when the rains came. And the Braves' chances went down the drain with the rain water.

The stylish Spahn absorbed only his 26th lifetime defeat from the Cards, a team he has topped 49 times through the years.

Phils Clip Giants Behind Semproch

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Philadelphia Phils combined the seven-hit pitching of rookie Ray Semproch and home runs by Stan Lopata and Solly Hemus to clip the San Francisco Giants 3-2 Saturday.

A crowd of 16,363 on this warm sunny day brought total attendance for 32 Giant home games to 511,200. In their last year in New York the Giants for 31 dates, had drawn 261,016.

Semproch, 26-year-old control artist, struck out four and gave up only one walk. Only three men reached first after the third inning.

Hemus, veteran utility infielder, came in as a pinch hitter in the fourth inning with the score tied 2-2. The Giants' Ramon Monzant hit Hemus on the forearm in that frame. Hemus' 370-foot blast into the right field bleachers in the seventh was his third of the season and gave him a consecutive game hitting streak of 14.

Lopata, playing his first game since being beaned last Sunday in St. Louis, belted his two - run homer in the fourth into the left field bleachers. Rip Repulski, on with a single, scored ahead of Lopata. Carl Sawatski, traded Friday by Milwaukee, replaced Lopata behind the plate in the fifth.

The Giants picked up their first run in the second on a walk to Bob Schmidt and Eddie Bressoud's triple. Their only other run came in the third on a single by Jim Davenport, a sacrifice, and Orlando Cepeda's double.

Willie Mays picked up two singles in four attempts to raise his batting average to .396. He had been in a prolonged slump.

Monzant, the Puerto Rican right-hander who relieved lefty Mike McCormick and gave up the home run to Hemus, took the loss, his sixth against four victories.

St. Nick's Usual Monday Boxing Will Continue

NEW YORK (AP) — Matchmaker Teddy Brenner said Friday he would continue telecasting weekly fight shows from St. Nicholas Arena every Monday throughout the summer. There had been reports the show would be dropped.

Brenner said a new temporary scale, in operation from July 7 through Sept. 8, would pay each main event fighter a minimum of $1,000, six-round prelims a minimum of $100 and four-rounders $50. The normal scale calls for main eventers to be paid between $1,300 and $1,500 and prelim boys $150 and $75.

The telecasts by DuMont will continue to be live in some sections of the country.

The New York State Athletic Commission will co-operate by reducing the staff of officials for the Monday fights.

Winnfield Team To Battle West Monroe Boxers

The Winnfield boxing team, A.A.U.-sponsored by the Winnfield Chamber of Commerce, will meet the West Monroe Athletic Club in the Ouachita Valley Fair Grounds next Thursday night for the leadership of the Louisiana regional A.A.U. clubs.

Joe Knighten, operator of Joe's Gym and sponsor of the West Monroe club, last night said Jack Russell has promised to run a free bus service for fight fans in the Bawcomville Brownville, and Siegle addition areas to and from the fights. The special bus will leave Cross Roads store in Siegle addition at 7:15 p.m. Thursday, make the regular bus run in the area and then go directly to the fair grounds.

"The Winnfield team is composed mostly of football players from Winnfield High," Knighten said. "And they're mighty tough. I know, because we've fought them before."

SCORE IN RELIEF

Indians Plaster Solons, 10 To 2

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) Herb Score, pitching three blazing innings of relief, made his first appearance in more than six weeks, Saturday as the Cleveland Indians exploited feeble Washington hurling for a 10-2 victory.

By annihilating the Senators, the Indians jumped from sixth to fourth place in the American League.

Score, sidelined by a sore arm since April 30, looked as strong as ever as he blanked Washington over the last three innings. He struck out 5, walked 1 and allowed 1 hit.

Manager Bobby Bragan decided to give his ace southpaw some exercise after the Indians had piled up their winning margin in six innings to insure starter Cal McLish of his thir dvictory in six decisions.

Homers by Roger Maris, Preston Ward and Rocky Colavito tied in with some eccentric Washington hurling to give McLish a restful afternoon.

Score developed an inflamed ligament in his pitching arm when he last opposed the Senators here. He'd been sidelined since, but showed absolutely no ill effects when Bragan gave him the call.

Neil Chrisley poled his fifth but that was Washington's only home run of the season of McLish, noteworthy achievement.

The Indians shelled loser Hal Griggs, Ralph Lumenti and Al Cicotte for 1 hits—many more than they needed.

The Washington pitchers walked in two runs, on bases-loaded passes by Griggs and Lumenti. And the Indians added another run when Mickey Vernon tripled in the third inning and promptly scored on a wild pitch by Griggs.

Lumenti easily bettered Griggs in the wild pitch department, letting three get away.

Maris' first-inning homer, his ninth, plus three walks and a single brought the Indians three runs at the outset and they took off from there to dump the Senators from fourth to fifth place.

Yankees Sell Sal Maglie To Cardinals

NEW YORK (AP)—Sal Maglie, 41-year-old right-hander, Saturday was sold by the New York Yankees to the St. Louis Cardinals. The sale price was not disclosed.

Maglie, purchased by New York from the then Brooklyn Dodgers last Sept. 1, had a 1-1 record this year for seven appearances a 4.70 earned run average. He had started only three games and worked in relief in four others for a total of 22 1-3 innings.

Last year, the crafty curve-baller was 2-0 with New York after posting a 6-6 record with the Dodgers. Because of his late purchase, he was ineligible for the 1957 World Series against Milwaukee.

Maglie, who helped pitch the New York Giants to National League pennants in 1951 and 1954 and was the ace of the Dodgers' pennant-winning staff in 1956, has a lifetime major league record of 117 victories and 56 losses. His career ERA in 3.08.

Hemus' 370-foot blast into the right field bleachers in the seventh was his third of the season and gave him a consecutive game hitting streak of 14.

Lopata, playing his first game since being beaned last Sunday in St. Louis, belted his two - run homer in the fourth into the left field bleachers, Rip Repulski, on with a single, scored ahead of Lopata. Carl Sawatski, traded Friday by Milwaukee, replaced Lopata behind the plate in the fifth.

The Giants picked up their first run in the second on a walk to Bob Schmidt and Eddie Bressoud's triple. Their only other run came in the third on a single by Jim Davenport, a sacrifice, and Orlando Cepeda's double.

Willie Mays picked up two singles in four attempts to raise his batting average to .396. He had been in a prolonged slump.

Monzant, the Puerto Rican right-hander who relieved lefty Mike McCormick and gave up the home run to Hemus, took the loss, his sixth against four victories.

St. Nick's Usual Monday Boxing Will Continue

NEW YORK (AP) — Matchmaker Teddy Brenner said Friday he would continue telecasting weekly fight shows from St. Nicholas Arena every Monday throughout the summer. There had been reports the show would be dropped.

Brenner said a new temporary scale, in operation from July 7 through Sept. 8, would pay each main event fighter a minimum of $1,000, six-round prelims a minimum of $100 and four-rounders $50. The normal scale calls for main eventers to be paid between $1,300 and $1,500 and prelim boys $150 and $75.

The telecasts by DuMont will continue to be live in some sections of the country.

The New York State Athletic Commission will co-operate by reducing the staff of officials for the Monday fights.

Winnfield Team To Battle West Monroe Boxers

The Winnfield boxing team, A.A.U.-sponsored by the Winnfield Chamber of Commerce, will meet the West Monroe Athletic Club in the Ouachita Valley Fair Grounds next Thursday night for the leadership of the Louisiana regional A.A.U. clubs.

Joe Knighten, operator of Joe's Gym and sponsor of the West Monroe club, last night said Jack Russell has promised to run a free bus service for fight fans in the Bawcomville Brownville, and Siegle addition areas to and from the fights. The special bus will leave Cross Roads store in Siegle addition at 7:15 p.m. Thursday, make the regular bus run in the area and then go directly to the fair grounds.

"The Winnfield team is composed mostly of football players from Winnfield High," Knighten said. "And they're mighty tough. I know, because we've fought them before."

SCORE IN RELIEF

Indians Plaster Solons, 10 To 2

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) Herb Score, pitching three blazing innings of relief, made his first appearance in more than six weeks, Saturday as the Cleveland Indians exploited feeble Washington hurling for a 10-2 victory.

By annihilating the Senators, the Indians jumped from sixth to fourth place in the American League.

Score, sidelined by a sore arm since April 30, looked as strong as ever as he blanked Washington over the last three innings. He struck out 5, walked 1 and allowed 1 hit.

Manager Bobby Bragan decided to give his ace southpaw some exercise after the Indians had piled up their winning margin in six innings to insure starter Cal McLish of his thir dvictory in six decisions.

Homers by Roger Maris, Preston Ward and Rocky Colavito tied in with some eccentric Washington hurling to give McLish a restful afternoon.

Score developed an inflamed ligament in his pitching arm when he last opposed the Senators here. He'd been sidelined since, but showed absolutely no ill effects when Bragan gave him the call.

Neil Chrisley poled his fifth but that was Washington's only home run of the season of McLish, noteworthy achievement.

The Indians shelled loser Hal Griggs, Ralph Lumenti and Al Cicotte for 1 hits—many more than they needed.

The Washington pitchers walked in two runs, on bases-loaded passes by Griggs and Lumenti. And the Indians added another run when Mickey Vernon tripled in the third inning and promptly scored on a wild pitch by Griggs.

Lumenti easily bettered Griggs in the wild pitch department, letting three get away.

Maris' first-inning homer, his ninth, plus three walks and a single brought the Indians three runs at the outset and they took off from there to dump the Senators from fourth to fifth place.

Yankees Sell Sal Maglie To Cardinals

NEW YORK (AP)—Sal Maglie, 41-year-old right-hander, Saturday was sold by the New York Yankees to the St. Louis Cardinals. The sale price was not disclosed.

Maglie, purchased by New York from the then Brooklyn Dodgers last Sept. 1, had a 1-1 record this year for seven appearances a 4.70 earned run average. He had started only three games and worked in relief in four others for a total of 22 1-3 innings.

Last year, the crafty curve-baller was 2-0 with New York after posting a 6-6 record with the Dodgers. Because of his late purchase, he was ineligible for the 1957 World Series against Milwaukee.

Maglie, who helped pitch the New York Giants to National League pennants in 1951 and 1954 and was the ace of the Dodgers' pennant-winning staff in 1956, has a lifetime major league record of 117 victories and 56 losses. His career ERA in 3.08.

Long Forces Not Interested In A Longer Session

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Chances are fading for a new style in Louisiana legislative sessions after both Gov. Earl Long's leaders and independents said today they are cool to the idea.

Rep. Samuel Cashio of Iberville Parish, Long's floor whip, said the administration has no interest in two new proposals for longer meeting Legislatures.

Just as he did in 1956, Long is backing his own idea of what to do about legislative processes by attempting to toss out again the 30-day fiscal legislatures meeting in odd-numbered years.

Cashio said he will ask a hearing on the administration's constitutional repeal of the fiscal sessions in a House Judiciary B Committee session Tuesday. Cashio said he had little doubt the repeal measure would be sent to the House floor.

Rep. Richard Bertrand, Lafayette Parish, is pushing his own plans for a 90-day split session, patterned after the California style.

Another legislative blueprint, by Rep. Kenneth Deshotel, St. Landry, calls for the regular 60-day sessions every two years to be tripled in size to 180-day affairs, and Deshotel wants 60-day legislatures in the odd-numbered years.

Both Bertrand and Deshotel are offering emphasis on the need for more time to consider legislation.

Public hearings on the rival proposals will be held in Bertand's House Judiciary C Committee at 11 a.m. Monday.

Bertrand suggests eliminating the 30 day fiscal legisla'ures, substituting for the regular 60-day meetings in even-numbered years a 90-day split session. Lawmakers would meet 20 days to hand in bills, recess for 30 more days, then return for a 70-day working session.

"I realize these proposals have very little chance of passing in this Legisla'ure," Bertrand said, "and I have no hopes of administration support for my own amendment.

"But the Legislature owes it to the people to let them decide this," Bertrand commented. "I am convinced our present system is out of date. . the pace is too swift for legislators or taxpayers to really know what is going on."

In 1956, voters blocked Gov. Long's first effort to knock out the fiscal Legislatures. Taxpayers liked the ban on tax raises that governs the fiscal legislatures.

Since then, Long has taken the position the public really doesn't se the whole picture. In his words, the more often a Legislature meets the greater the spending spree.

Cashio, House administration voice, had this to say about the Bertrand and Deshotel proposals:

"If the governor has any interest in these two measures, I am sure he would have said some thing to me and to his other friends in the legislature by now."

The Bertrand and Deshotel revisions would require a two-thirds approval, a high hurdle for legislation that lacks warm support.

"Ninety days or 180 days," Cashio remarked in an interview, "won't accomplish any more. The public should realize that all we need is more work while we're in our 60-day sessions.

"If I did as little work in my law office as some legislators," the Long leader grumbled, "I'd starve to death."

Another administration leader, Rep. Tom Jewell, Pointe Coupee, chairman of Judiciary B, agreed the new designs in Legislature would accomplish little.

"Sixty days is enough for me," said Rep. I. J. Allen of Jackson. Rep. Alvin Dyson, Cameron, said things were tough enough for a lawmaker now because "I'm trying to carry on my personal business by remote control."

Another administration stalwart, Rep. Shelby Alford of St. Helena, voiced his objection by saying "we'd have to hire six secretaries just to take care of our phone calls during any recess in a split session."

Also hesitant about any new deal in legislatures, Rep. John Rau, Jefferson, said something should be done to speed introduction of bills.

Rep. George Tessier, veteran Orleans independent, said he doubts anything can be gained with the Bertrand or Deshotel plans. "Such important changes shouldn't be made until we are sure what we are doing," Tessier added.

While it is too late in this session to act, Tessier said the Legislature should think about a greater effort in the future to bring about pre-introduction of bills. There is a pre-filing system in existence, but the public doesn't get an advance peep.

Tessier suggests:

1. Pre-introduction of bills up to 30 days before meeting, with each bill required to be published by some suitable state agency such as the Secretary of State's office.

2. Continuing the present 20-day deadline for legislative acts and 30-day deadline for constitutional proposals, after the legislature convenes but with the added requirement each newly introduced bill must have been published 30 days earlier.

3. Handing in each bill with the author's brief explanation of what it does, why it is needed, what his interest is and who is backing it.

Tessier, who doesn't hesitute to battle administration forces when he thinks he is right, for once is in accord with Gov. Long on one feature. "This would eliminate many unnecessary bills when exposed to the early light of day," he said.

Several months ago Long said something should be done about the heavy load of "frivolous and insignificant bills."

Inside Demo Party Book Interesting

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jack Redding has written a good book called "Inside the Democratic Party" which also could be titled appropriately something like this:

"Through the jungle of presidential campaigning without food or water!"

Food and water, in this sense, would be money which was the Democrats' greatest lack 10 years ago when they reluctantly put up slight Harry S. Truman to run against the goliath shadow of Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican candidate, of New York.

Redding was publicity director of the Democratic National Committee during that story book campaign, and by his own account he did a superbly professional job. The book is published today at $4.50 by Bobbs Merrill. If Dewey doesn't have one by sundown, he is unaccountably disinterested in knowing more about what hit him back there in 1948 and why.

Johnson In Huddle

Money and the lack of it is the recurrent theme of Redding's book. The theme begins with a half-told account of how committee Chairman J. Howard McGrath was able at all to persuade anyone to become finance chairman for the campaign. It looked like an impossible job from which even Truman cabinet officers flinched.

Louis A. Johnson of West Virginia was in the huddle McGrath summoned to talk finance. Johnson was a former assistant secretary of war under FDR. His greatest ambition had been to be chief of that department.

"McGrath asked each man present at the meeting if he would take on a job of running the financial campaign," Redding wrote. "There were no takers. Finally he (Johnson) asked for the meeting to recess for half an hour while he went to the White House to see the President.

"When he returned, Johnson announced that he would accept the (financial) appointment from McGrath."

Johnson Named Secretary

So that seems to be how Louis A. Johnson of West Virginia realized his greatest ambition by becoming not merely secretary of war but secretary of defense. Johnson took over in March, 1949, succeeding Secretary James Forrestal, a Roosevelt administration holdover who had been conspicuously chill toward Truman's re-election effort.

Forrestal later committed suicide by leaping from a hospital window. Johnson lasted until September, 1950, as defense secretary. He was forced out by clamorous resentment against the administration policies held to have been rsponsible for bringing on the Korean war and for the unfavorable U.S. military position at that time.

Johnson's campaign fund raising, however, was impressive. Redding pinpoints how and why money spent for advertisements, TV-radio time, literature and poll watchers can and does win elections. He does not much illuminate the abrupt and urgent methods by which money must be raised when the money bags are convinced the candidates will be a loser. Could be that those methods are not pretty.

The campaign money jungle probably is about the same in similar circumstances for either major party. Most public minded citizens who know anything about campaign funds abhor the whole business but nothing much comes of that. Something might come, however, if sometime a party financial chairman would write a book.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Are Men Doomed To Lose Battle?

LONDON (AP) — Let's face it, men. Mother Nature may be conspiring to make us obsolete.

The male of the species may be supplanted by what we can only describe as nasty, sneaking, treacherous little parasites.

Women will have children with positively no help from the opposite sex. All children will be girls, who will be able to have additional children—all girls.

The male will become redundant, unnecessary, a drug on the market, and a nuisance around the house. In due course, since all babies, will be female, men will no longer exist.

For the first warning of disaster the men—while they last—are indebted to a Dutchman, A. Stolk, of the Histological Laboratory, Free University, Amsterdam.

Stolk sounded the tocsin in an article in the high-domed British science magazine "Nature." His article is called "Pathological Parthenogenesis In Viviparous Toothcarps."

Busmen's Union May End Strike

LONDON (AP)—London's Busmen's Union was reported Saturday ready to end the city's six-week bus strike, probably by Thursday.

Union sources said a meeting of the delegates from the city's bus depots had decided that it would not be in the interest of the 50,000 bus workers if the strike continued.

The delegates now will put their views to the union rank and file for a final vote. There were indications the busmen will accept their leaders recommendations to go back to work Thursday.

Long Forces Not Interested In A Longer Session

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Chances are fading for a new style in Louisiana legislative sessions after both Gov. Earl Long's leaders and independents said today they are cool to the idea.

Rep. Samuel Cashio of Iberville Parish, Long's floor whip, said the administration has no interest in two new proposals for longer meeting Legislatures.

Just as he did in 1956, Long is backing his own idea of what to do about legislative processes by attempting to toss out again the 30-day fiscal legislatures meeting in odd-numbered years.

Cashio said he will ask a hearing on the administration's constitutional repeal of the fiscal sessions in a House Judiciary B Committee session Tuesday. Cashio said he had little doubt the repeal measure would be sent to the House floor.

Rep. Richard Bertrand, Lafayette Parish, is pushing his own plans for a 90-day split session, patterned after the California style.

Another legislative blueprint, by Rep. Kenneth Deshotel, St. Landry, calls for the regular 60-day sessions every two years to be tripled in size to 180-day affairs, and Deshotel wants 60-day legislatures in the odd-numbered years.

Both Bertrand and Deshotel are offering emphasis on the need for more time to consider legislation.

Public hearings on the rival proposals will be held in Bertand's House Judiciary C Committee at 11 a.m. Monday.

Bertrand suggests eliminating the 30 day fiscal legislatures, substituting for the regular 60-day meetings in even-numbered years a 90-day split session. Lawmakers would meet 20 days to hand in bills, recess for 30 more days, then return for a 70-day working session.

"I realize these proposals have very little chance of passing in this Legislature," Bertrand said, "and I have no hopes of administration support for my own amendment.

"But the Legislature owes it to the people to let them decide this," Bertrand commented. "I am convinced our present system is out of date. . the pace is too swift for legislators or taxpayers to really know what is going on."

In 1956, voters blocked Gov. Long's first effort to knock out the fiscal Legislatures. Taxpayers liked the ban on tax raises that governs the fiscal legislatures.

Since then, Long has taken the position the public really doesn't se the whole picture. In his words, the more often a Legislature meets the greater the spending spree.

Cashio, House administration voice, had this to say about the Bertrand and Deshotel proposals:

"If the governor has any interest in these two measures, I am sure he would have said something to me and to his other friends in the legislature by now."

The Bertrand and Deshotel revisions would require a two-thirds approval, a high hurdle for legislation that lacks warm support.

"Ninety days or 180 days," Cashio remarked in an interview, "won't accomplish any more. The public should realize that all we need is more work while we're in our 60-day sessions.

"If I did as little work in my law office as some legislators," the Long leader grumbled, "I'd starve to death."

Another administration leader, Rep. Tom Jewell, Pointe Coupee, chairman of Judiciary B, agreed the new designs in Legislature would accomplish little.

"Sixty days is enough for me," said Rep I. J. Allen of Jackson. Rep. Alvin Dyson, Cameron, said things were tough enough for a lawmaker now because "I'm trying to carry on my personal business by remote control."

Another administration stalwart, Rep. Shelby Alford of St. Helena, voiced his objection by saying "we'd have to hire six secretaries just to take care of our phone calls during any recess in a split session."

Also hesitant about any new deal in legislatures, Rep. John Rau, Jefferson, said something should be done to speed introduction of bills.

Rep. George Tessier, veteran Orleans independent, said he doubts anything can be gained with the Bertrand or Deshotel plans. "Such important changes shouldn't be made until we are sure what we are doing," Tessier added.

While it is too late in this session to act, Tessier said the Legislature should think about a greater effort in the future to bring about pre-introduction of bills. There is a pre-filing system in existence, but the public doesn't get an advance peep.

Tessier suggests:

1. Pre-introduction of bills up to 30 days before meeting, with each bill required to be published by some suitable state agency such as the Secretary of State's office.

2. Continuing the present 20-day deadline for legislative acts and 30-day deadline for constitutional proposals, after the legislature convenes but with the added requirement each newly introduced bill must have been published 30 days earlier.

3. Handing in each bill with the author's brief explanation of what it does, why it is needed, what his interest is and who is backing it.

Tessier, who doesn't hesitute to battle administration forces when he thinks he is right, for once is in accord with Gov. Long on one feature. "This would eliminate many unnecessary bills when exposed to the early light of day," he said.

Several months ago Long said something should be done about the heavy load of "frivolous and insignificant bills."

Inside Demo Party Book Interesting

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jack Redding has written a good book called "Inside the Democratic Party" which also could be titled appropriately something like this: "Through the jungle of presidential campaigning without food or water!"

Food and water, in this sense, would be money which was the Democrats' greatest lack 10 years ago when they reluctantly put up slight Harry S. Truman to run against the goliath shadow of Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican candidate, of New York.

Redding was publicity director of the Democratic National Committee during that story book campaign, and by his own account he did a superbly professional job. The book is published today at $4.50 by Bobbs Merrill. If Dewey doesn't have one by sundown, he is unaccountably disinterested in knowing more about what hit him back there in 1948 and why.

Johnson In Huddle

Money and the lack of it is the recurrent theme of Redding's book. The theme begins with a half-told account of how committee Chairman J. Howard McGrath was able at all to persuade anyone to become finance chairman for the campaign. It looked like an impossible job from which even Truman cabinet officers flinched.

Louis A. Johnson of West Virginia was in the huddle McGrath summoned to talk finance. Johnson was a former assistant secretary of war under FDR. His greatest ambition had been to be chief of that department.

"McGrath asked each man present at the meeting if he would take on a job of running the financial campaign," Redding wrote. "There were no takers. Finally he (Johnson) asked for the meeting to recess for half an hour while he went to the White House to see the President.

"When he returned, Johnson announced that he would accept the (financial) appointment from McGrath."

Johnson Named Secretary

So that seems to be how Louis A. Johnson of West Virginia realized his greatest ambition by becoming not merely secretary of war but secretary of defense. Johnson took over in March, 1949, succeeding Secretary James Forrestal, a Roosevelt administration holdover who had been conspicuously chill toward Truman's re-election effort.

Forrestal later committed suicide by leaping from a hospital window. Johnson lasted until September, 1950, as defense secretary. He was forced out by clamorous resentment against the administration policies held to have been rsponsible for bringing on the Korean war and for the unfavorable U.S. military position at that time.

Johnson's campaign fund raising, however, was impressive. Redding pinpoints how and why money spent for advertisements, TV-radio time, literature and poll watchers can and does win elections. He does not much illuminate the abrupt and urgent methods by which money must be raised when the money bags are convinced the candidates will be a loser. Could be that those methods are not pretty.

The campaign money jungle probably is about the same in similar circumstances for either major party. Most public minded citizens who know anything about campaign funds abhor the whole business but nothing much comes of that. Something might come, however, if sometime a party financial chairman would write a book.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Are Men Doomed To Lose Battle?

LONDON (AP) — Let's face it, men. Mother Nature may be conspiring to make us obsolete.

The male of the species may be supplanted by what we can only describe as nasty, sneaking, treacherous little parasites.

Women will have children with positively no help from the opposite sex. All children will be girls, who will be able to have additional children—all girls.

The male will become redundant, unnecessary, a drug on the market, and a nuisance around the house. In due course, since all babies, will be female, men will no longer exist.

For the first warning of disaster the men—while they last—are indebted to a Dutchman, A. Stolk, of the Histological Laboratory, Free University, Amsterdam.

Stolk sounded the tocsin in an article in the high-domed British science magazine "Nature." His article is called "Pathological Parthenogenesis In Viviparous Toothcarps."

Quick, Mom, The Phonograph; Junior Has Another Question

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Why does a bee buzz? What makes it rain?

Parents weary of stepping up to the firing line of questions mustered each day by their inquisitive offspring will be happy to learn that the day of automation is at hand.

Instead of reaching for the encyclopedia or the hair brush, depending on the educational mood of the moment, they can flip on any of several children's records especially designed to handle kiddie quizzes.

If Junior keeps asking the same old questions, just push the reject button and the records will keep repeating the same old answers. They are guaranteed not to wear out before Junior does, although several needle changes may be required before he gets the idea that bees buzz and rain rains because such is their nature.

Among the better question and answer records for children are Columbia's "Now We Know," with Tom Glazer and Paul Tripp (TV's Mr. I. Magination), and Decca's "What Makes Rain," a weather story told with some splendid sound effects of rolling thunder and pelting rain.

Tired of reading Junior the same old story book night after night? Does he catch you trying to skip a page in a sneaky attempt to get to the end of Tillie The Tarantula's dreary adventures?

Records again may be your salvation. Capital has come up with a combination color story book and record album that should take some of the load off Dad's frayed vocal chords. Just place Junior on lap, turn the pages of the color book and the record takes over in the narration department, complete with background music and in some cases a cast of thousands. Bozo the Clown, Robin Hood and a host of other characters leap to life from both book and record. Now if they could just devise an automatic page turner, Dad could snooze right through the children's hour and not feel remiss in his duty.

These are just two examples of the wide range of entertaining materials available on children's records, a fast growing field that is attracting some of the top artists in several professions.

Poet Carl Sandburg, who 30 years ago penned the delightful "Rootabaga Stories" and other kiddie yarns, recites two new stories on Decca's "Three Nice Mice Brothers," all about a trio of rodents named Anaxagaras, Alcibiades and Anonymous.

RCA Victor offers Walt Disney's versions of "Peter Pan" and "Alice in Wonderland," completely dramatized with the original movie cast of voices, and actor James Stewart reading four Winnie the Pooh stories. Basil Rathbone narrates Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf," backed by Leopold Stokowski and the All American Orchestra, and Gary Moore heads an engaging cast through a musical adaptation of some of Rudyard Kipling's "Just So Stories," both on a Columbia label.

Best sellers at the Kiddie counter, at the moment, are records based on popular television shows. "Fun in Shariland" (RCA Victor), featuring talented Shari Lewis; "Captain Kangaroo's Songs and Dances" (Columbia); the TV version of "Hansel and Gretel" (M-G-M), with Barbara Cook and Red Buttons; "Clooney Tunes" (Columbia), some lullabies by Rosemary Clooney, and "Wyatt Earp, Cheyenne and Other TV Favorites" (RCA Victor) are among the many titles available.

Like children's books, kiddie records sell best at supermarkets, where moppets are in a strategic position to bargain for good behavior while Mommy shops. One firm, RCA Victor, estimates that 60 per cent of its kiddie line is handled by rack jobbers for supermarkets and other chain stores.

Rossini Has Fine Italian Talent

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK —(UPI) — There rarely has been a finer Italian hand than that of Gioacchino Rossini; we're still finding out how very fine it was.

Recently an "album of music" which he presented to Miss Louise Carlier in 1835 turned up. It was an album of love ballads, most of them sticky, composed for her alone. Rossini composed the first one and 16 of the leading Parisian composers of the day contributed one each.

And who was Miss Carlier? The daughter of a Parisian impressario who employed composers and had many from whom to choose. Rossini was a retired millionaire, but he loved intrigues to help his friends along.

This album of manuscripts has been committed to a record by Suzanne Danco, soprano, who gives the songs more art than most of them deserve. Trivial music but fascinating background (Epic-LC-3442).

Record - makers are never slow in getting with a popular tide, and Epic has a recording of the Russian artified folk music which the Moiseyev Dancers used in their sensational tour of the United States. The recording even has the company's conductor, Sampson Galperine, conducting. Its lively, danceable music, certainly, and without the monotony of folk dance music since it has been recomposed (Epic-LC3459).

The Philadelphia

Angel also is on the Moiseyev or Russian fringe with a complete recording of the French ballet score, "Giselle," as performed by an English orchestra — that of the Royal Opera House London. What is Russian about it is that the conductor was Yuri Fayer, principal conductor of the Bolshoi Theatre Ballet. This is not Moiseyev, of course, but close at least geographically (Angel-3583).

The Philadelphia Orchestra is making a big splash concertizing in Russia and other Iron Curtain countries right now, so Columbia has issued a potpourri record of that very elegant mass human instrument being played by its conductor, Eugene Ormandy, in such easy - to - take pieces as Smetana's "The Moldau," Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz," and three light Berlioz numbers.

Two more records recommended for unstrained summer evening listening — Fritz Reiner conducting the Chicago Symphony in Prokofieff's "Lieutenant Kije" and Stravinsky's "Song of the Nightingale (RCA Victor, LM-2150); William Steinberg conducting Richard Strauss' "Don Juan" and an orchestra suite taken from his opera, "Der Rosenkavalier."

The Official Atlas On The Civil War

THE OFFICIAL ATLAS OF THE CIVIL WAR. Yoseloff. $40.

"Monumental" is probably the best word to describe this publication of the official battle and campaign maps of the Civil War. It's a handsome king sized volume, reproducing 175 plates that originally were printed with the 128 volumes of the Official Records of the war.

The publisher, Thomas Yoseloff, previously issued new editions of the "Photographic History of the Civil War," and the "Battles and Leaders." The problems involved in those publications were immense; they were dwarfed by the obstacles encountered in this project. The work is not perfect, but the flaws are trivialities, in comparison with the overwhelming merit and importance of the project. These maps have never before been accessible to the public. Making them available for browsing, for research, or for just plain pride of possession is a service of incalculable value.

A foreword by Henry Steele Commager recounts dramatically the background of the original Atlas. A publisher's introduction outlines some of the difficulties accompanying the publication.

Novel About The South As It Is Today

THE SOUTHERN WILD By Ruth Chatterton (Doubleday, $4.50).

This is the passionate, unforgettable story of the men and women, white and Negro, whose tradition - bound world was radically out of step with the changing and perplexing world outside.

The book tells of the violent and tragic events that occurred when the superiority of the Meredith clan — leading citizens of a small southern city — was suddenly challenged.

Overall, the book deals with the South as it exists today.

FAMILY MEETING

WALTHAM, Mass.—(UPI)— A 1958 Cadillac which had gone just 42 miles crashed into the rear of another car on Route 128. Then a third car crashed into the rear of the Cadillac. Kenneth Page, owner of the Cadillac, discovered that the car that hit him was his own second car, driven by his wife.

We Live Rich But We Think Poor

THE AFFLUENT SOCIETY. By John Kenneth Galbraith. Houghton Mifflin. $5.

We live rich, we think poor. It's this contrariety for which Galbraith chides us wisely and wittily in his new book.

The classical economists theorizezd from the disadvantage point of a world of want. God gave mortal creatures a rich land, but they naughtily multiplied too fast to subsist on its products, or too few grabbed too big a share. Then all of a sudden, with an epochal rush, capitalistic United States developed into a land of milk and honey, of plenty. There is some poverty but it has been cut down perhaps more than ever before. There are some rich but we have persuaded ourselves that their wealth is not disproportionate; since we don't do badly ourselves, we don't begrudge them their gravy. In short, we have learned to produce all we want, to want all we produce, and to confine our wants pretty much to what is available.

Here is Galbraith's point. At last we do have a real land of plenty, but we mistake quantity for quality. Our notions about production have led us astray; the goods we have only serve to make us feel and look rich, without giving us the substance and the security we blindly count on. Our ideal, he charges, our goal is to keep the wheels turning no matter what they turn out.

He had his book finished just before the first Sputnik was launched. That may have taught us laymen a sobering lesson but Galbraith was prepared to teach it without Russian nagging: Great accomplishments are possible without a background of great production. Could it even be that great production interferes? This is the trouble, he maintains: Our production provided too many nonessentials; it did not equip us to concentrate on essentials in a crisis, and fostered in us such soft habits that we balked at sacrificing the nonessentials when danger threatened. He says that during World War II we even increased our aggregate civilian consumption. And his lesson is made plainer by the consequences of three devastating RAF raids on Hamburg; bombs smashed the sites of unessential occupations and freed countless men to work on wartime material; in fact the city's martial productivity may have increased.

There are two kinds of production, Galbraith says, public and private. We are too much for private, in his opinion, and he jibes at us for thinking it's all right to expand phone service but not postal service, for paying for vacuums for our houses but not for street cleaners, for imagining in general that alcohol, comic books and mouth wash, the fruit of private enterprise, are economically more worthy than schools, judges and municipal swimming pools. The man who "develops a new carburetor, cleanser or depilatory for which the public recognizes no need . . . is one of the valued members of our society. A politician or a public servant who dreams up a new public service is a wastrel."

Galbraith urges expanded public services, and the expenditure of more money for improving the human elements in our society rather than increasing the material. He would slap on even stiffer sales taxes in order to check the consumption of unnecessary goods; he would increase jobless pay in times of real depression, but cut it in times of prosperity.

"Not the total of resources but their studied and rational use is the key to achievement," he concludes.

This is a challenging book by a free-swinging author who now lets the liberals have the back of his hand, and now lets the conservatives. But liberals will be for him, conservatives will be for burning him. Galbraith is always slipping something over on his guileless reader. While he makes passes at your funny bone as a diversion, he inches you over farther and farther, imperceptibly but irresistibly, into the unconscionably progressive positions you've shunned before.

Gripping Story On Man's Life

GINGERBREAD MAN By Ellen Ferber (Doubleday, $3.95).

This book is the exciting portrait and gripping story of Lester Porter Lacey, who pinned his hopes on the love of three women — but won or lost his chance in life by his own measure as a man.

It is a story you will not soon forget.

Ex-Teacher Is Idea For Strip

NEW YORK (UPI) — The old Hollywood script that takes a pretty small town girl and hurls her into the glamorous limelight of show business may be trite, but it's true in the case of ex - teacher Jacquelyn McKeever.

Miss McKeever was a New Jersey high school teacher who never dreamed of going on the stage. Now she has a featured role in her first Broadway show, "Oh, Captain!" with Tony Randall, Abbe Lane and Edward Platt.

When the audience looks over the footlights, they see 24 - year - old Jackey with some alterations.

"All I had to do was take off 10 pounds and redistribute my weight, become a brunette (which I really am), acquire an English accent and study dancing," she said.

A product of Catasauqua, Pa., and a graduate of Susquehanna University, she had no thoughts of Broadway or a theatrical career. She became a music supervisor in 1954 for the five elementary schools in Livingston, N. J.

"What happened," she explained, "was that I joined a church choral group and was invited to study at a summer music workshop in the Adirondacks.

"While I was there I visited the Paper Mill Playhouse to see how a summer theater operates. I was mistaken for one of the applicants auditioning for a single role in their next production. I can't explain why I didn't correct the stage manager's impression. I guess I wanted to experience the thrill of trying out for a role. I sang and was offered the part, and that was the beginning of my theatrical career."

She did a few shows and made a number of summer stock appearances elsewhere before getting a chance to audition for her current role.

"Handful of Fire" is the title of the N. Richard Nash play which will be presented by David Susskind and the Playwrights' Company on Broadway this fall. It is described by its author as a "love story - comedy - drama."

It will go into rehearsal under Robert Lewis' direction Aug. 7. The attraction will play four weeks on the road—two in Boston, followed by two in Philadelphia — and will arrive on the New York stage early in October.

Franchot Tone and David Ross have selected William Murray to prepare a new translation of Luigi Pirandello's "A Game for Lovers." This is the comedy - drama that was formerly known as "Rules of the Game." Tone and Ross will present the play in association with Liska March.

Tone and Zsa Zsa Gabor in two of the starring roles, rehearsals of "A Game For Lovers" will commence Sept. 15 under Ross' direction. The local premiere will take place early in November following tryout engagements.

THE TEST

BOSTON—(UPI)—Jean Mayer, associate professor of nutrition at the Harvard School of Public Health, scoffs at scientific tests made to determine if a person is obese. "The simplest way to learn that," says he, "is to stand in front of a mirror. If you look fat—you are fat."

Quick, Mom, The Phonograph; Junior Has Another Question

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Why does a bee buzz? What makes it rain?

Parents weary of stepping up to the firing line of questions mustered each day by their inquisitive offspring will be happy to learn that the day of automation is at hand.

Instead of reaching for the encyclopedia or the hair brush, depending on the educational mood of the moment, they can flip on any of several children's records especially designed to handle kiddie quizzes.

If Junior keeps asking the same old questions, just push the reject button and the records will keep repeating the same old answers. They are guaranteed not to wear out before Junior does, although several needle changes may be required before he gets the idea that bees buzz and rain rains because such is their nature.

Among the better question and answer records for children are Columbia's "Now We Know," with Tom Glazer and Paul Tripp (TV's Mr. I. Magination), and Decca's "What Makes Rain," a weather story told with some splendid sound effects of rolling thunder and pelting rain.

Tired of reading Junior the same old story book night after night? Does he catch you trying to skip a page in a sneaky attempt to get to the end of Tillie The Tarantula's dreary adventures?

Records again may be your salvation. Capital has come up with a combination color story book and record album that should take some of the load off Dad's frayed vocal chords. Just place Junior on lap, turn the pages of the color book and the record takes over in the narration department, complete with background music and in some cases a cast of thousands. Bozo the Clown, Robin Hood and a host of other characters leap to life from both book and record. Now if they could just devise an automatic page turner, Dad could snooze right through the children's hour and not feel remiss in his duty.

These are just two examples of the wide range of entertaining materials available on children's records, a fast growing field that is attracting some of the top artists in several professions.

Poet Carl Sandburg, who 30 years ago penned the delightful "Rootabaga Stories" and other kiddie yarns, recites two new stories on Decca's "Three Nice Mice Brothers," all about a trio of rodents named Anaxagaras, Alcibiades and Anonymous.

RCA Victor offers Walt Disney's versions of "Peter Pan" and "Alice in Wonderland," completely dramatized with the original movie cast of voices, and actor James Stewart reading four Winnie the Pooh stories. Basil Rathbone narrates Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf," backed by Leopold Stokowski and the All American Orchestra, and Gary Moore heads an engaging cast through a musical adaptation of some of Rudyard Kipling's "Just So Stories," both on a Columbia label.

Best sellers at the Kiddie counter, at the moment, are records based on popular television shows. "Fun in Shariland" (RCA Victor), featuring talented Shari Lewis; "Captain Kangaroo's Songs and Dances" (Columbia); the TV version of "Hansel and Gretel" (M-G-M), with Barbara Cook and Red Buttons; "Clooney Tunes" (Columbia), some lullabies by Rosemary Clooney, and "Wyatt Earp, Cheyenne and Other TV Favorites" (RCA Victor) are among the many titles available.

Like children's books, kiddie records sell best at supermarkets, where moppets are in a strategic position to bargain for good behavior while Mommy shops. One firm, RCA Victor, estimates that 60 per cent of its kiddie line is handled by rack jobbers for supermarkets and other chain stores.

Rossini Has Fine Italian Talent

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK —(UPI) — There rarely has been a finer Italian hand than that of Gioacchino Rossini; we're still finding out how very fine it was.

Recently an "album of music" which he presented to Miss Louise Carlier in 1835 turned up. It was an album of love ballads, most of them sticky, composed for her alone. Rossini composed the first one and 16 of the leading Parisian composers of the day contributed one each.

And who was Miss Carlier? The daughter of a Parisian impressario who employed composers and had many from whom to choose. Rossini was a retired millionaire, but he loved intrigues to help his friends along.

This album of manuscripts has been committed to a record by Suzanne Danco, soprano, who gives the songs more art than most of them deserve. Trivial music but fascinating background (Epic-LC-3442).

Record - makers are never slow in getting with a popular tide, and Epic has a recording of the Russian artified folk music which the Moiseyev Dancers used in their sensational tour of the United States. The recording even has the company's conductor, Sampson Galperine, conducting. Its lively, danceable music, certainly, and without the monotony of folk dance music since it has been recomposed (Epic-LC3459).

The Philadelphia

Angel also is on the Moiseyev or Russian fringe with a complete recording of the French ballet score, "Giselle," as performed by an English orchestra — that of the Royal Opera House London. What is Russian about it is that the conductor was Yuri Fayer, principal conductor of the Bolshoi Theatre Ballet. This is not Moiseyev, of course, but close at least geographically (Angel-3583).

The Philadelphia Orchestra is making a big splash concertizing in Russia and other Iron Curtain countries right now, so Columbia has issued a potpourri record of that very elegant mass human instrument being played by its conductor, Eugene Ormandy, in such easy - to - take pieces as Smetana's "The Moldau," Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz," and three light Berlioz numbers.

Two more records recommended for unstrained summer evening listening — Fritz Reiner conducting the Chicago Symphony in Prokofieff's "Lieutenant Kije" and Stravinsky's "Song of the Nightingale (RCA Victor, LM-2150); William Steinberg conducting Richard Strauss' "Don Juan" and an orchestra suite taken from his opera, "Der Rosenkavalier."

The Official Atlas On The Civil War

THE OFFICIAL ATLAS OF THE CIVIL WAR. Yoseloff. $40.

"Monumental" is probably the best word to describe this publication of the official battle and campaign maps of the Civil War. It's a handsome king sized volume, reproducing 175 plates that originally were printed with the 128 volumes of the Official Records of the war.

The publisher, Thomas Yoseloff, previously issued new editions of the "Photographic History of the Civil War," and the "Battles and Leaders." The problems involved in those publications were immense; they were dwarfed by the obstacles encountered in this project. The work is not perfect, but the flaws are trivialities, in comparison with the overwhelming merit and importance of the project. These maps have never before been accessible to the public. Making them available for browsing, for research, or for just plain pride of possession is a service of incalculable value.

A foreword by Henry Steele Commager recounts dramatically the background of the original Atlas. A publisher's introduction outlines some of the difficulties accompanying the publication.

Novel About The South As It Is Today

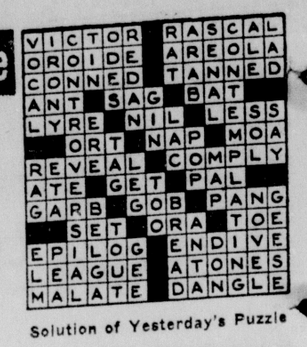

THE SOUTHERN WILD By Ruth Chatterton (Doubleday, $4.50).

This is the passionate, unforgettable story of the men and women, white and Negro, whose tradition - bound world was radically out of step with the changing and perplexing world outside.

The book tells of the violent and tragic events that occurred when the superiority of the Meredith clan — leading citizens of a small southern city — was suddenly challenged.

Overall, the book deals with the South as it exists today.

FAMILY MEETING

WALTHAM, Mass.—(UPI)— A 1958 Cadillac which had gone just 42 miles crashed into the rear of another car on Route 128. Then a third car crashed into the rear of the Cadillac. Kenneth Page, owner of the Cadillac, discovered that the car that hit him was his own second car, driven by his wife.

Pakistan, Burma and Ceylon bought practically all of the 1,727,888 tons of coal that India exported in 1956.

We Live Rich But We Think Poor

THE AFFLUENT SOCIETY. By John Kenneth Galbraith. Houghton Mifflin. $5.

We live rich, we think poor. It's this contrariety for which Galbraith chides us wisely and wittily in his new book.

The classical economists theorizezd from the disadvantage point of a world of want. God gave mortal creatures a rich land, but they naughtily multiplied too fast to subsist on its products, or too few grabbed too big a share. Then all of a sudden, with an epochal rush, capitalistic United States developed into a land of milk and honey, of plenty. There is some poverty but it has been cut down perhaps more than ever before. There are some rich but we have persuaded ourselves that their wealth is not disproportionate; since we don't do badly ourselves, we don't begrudge them their gravy. In short, we have learned to produce all we want, to want all we produce, and to confine our wants pretty much to what is available.

Here is Galbraith's point. At last we do have a real land of plenty, but we mistake quantity for quality. Our notions about production have led us astray; the goods we have only serve to make us feel and look rich, without giving us the substance and the security we blindly count on. Our ideal, he charges, our goal is to keep the wheels turning no matter what they turn out.

He had his book finished just before the first Sputnik was launched. That may have taught us laymen a sobering lesson but Galbraith was prepared to teach it without Russian nagging: Great accomplishments are possible without a background of great production. Could it even be that great production interferes? This is the trouble, he maintains: Our production provided too many nonessentials; it did not equip us to concentrate on essentials in a crisis, and fostered in us such soft habits that we balked at sacrificing the nonessentials when danger threatened. He says that during World War II we even increased our aggregate civilian consumption. And his lesson is made plainer by the consequences of three devastating RAF raids on Hamburg; bombs smashed the sites of unessential occupations and freed countless men to work on wartime material; in fact the city's martial productivity may have increased.

There are two kinds of production, Galbraith says, public and private. We are too much for private, in his opinion, and he jibes at us for thinking it's all right to expand phone service but not postal service, for paying for vacuums for our houses but not for street cleaners, for imagining in general that alcohol, comic books and mouth wash, the fruit of private enterprise, are economically more worthy than schools, judges and municipal swimming pools. The man who "develops a new carburetor, cleanser or depilatory for which the public recognizes no need . . . is one of the valued members of our society. A politician or a public servant who dreams up a new public service is a wastrel."

Galbraith urges expanded public services, and the expenditure of more money for improving the human elements in our society rather than increasing the material. He would slap on even stiffer sales taxes in order to check the consumption of unnecessary goods; he would increase jobless pay in times of real depression, but cut it in times of prosperity.

"Not the total of resources but their studied and rational use is the key to achievement," he concludes.

This is a challenging book by a free-swinging author who now lets the liberals have the back of his hand, and now lets the conservatives. But liberals will be for him, conservatives will be for burning him. Galbraith is always slipping something over on his guileless reader. While he makes passes at your funny bone as a diversion, he inches you over farther and farther, imperceptibly but irresistibly, into the unconscionably progressive positions you've shunned before.

Gripping Story On Man's Life

GINGERBREAD MAN By Ellen Ferber (Doubleday, $3.95).

This book is the exciting portrait and gripping story of Lester Porter Lacey, who pinned his hopes on the love of three women — but won or lost his chance in life by his own measure as a man.

It is a story you will not soon forget.

Ex-Teacher Is Idea For Strip

NEW YORK (UPI) — The old Hollywood script that takes a pretty small town girl and hurls her into the glamorous limelight of show business may be trite, but it's true in the case of ex - teacher Jacquelyn McKeever.

Miss McKeever was a New Jersey high school teacher who never dreamed of going on the stage. Now she has a featured role in her first Broadway show, "Oh, Captain!" with Tony Randall, Abbe Lane and Edward Platt.

When the audience looks over the footlights, they see 24 - year - old Jackey with some alterations.

"All I had to do was take off 10 pounds and redistribute my weight, become a brunette (which I really am), acquire an English accent and study dancing," she said.

A product of Catasauqua, Pa., and a graduate of Susquehanna University, she had no thoughts of Broadway or a theatrical career. She became a music supervisor in 1954 for the five elementary schools in Livingston, N. J.

"What happened," she explained, "was that I joined a church choral group and was invited to study at a summer music workshop in the Adirondacks.

"While I was there I visited the Paper Mill Playhouse to see how a summer theater operates. I was mistaken for one of the applicants auditioning for a single role in their next production. I can't explain why I didn't correct the stage manager's impression. I guess I wanted to experience the thrill of trying out for a role. I sang and was offered the part, and that was the beginning of my theatrical career."

She did a few shows and made a number of summer stock appearances elsewhere before getting a chance to audition for her current role.

"Handful of Fire" is the title of the N. Richard Nash play which will be presented by David Susskind and the Playwrights' Company on Broadway this fall. It is described by its author as a "love story - comedy - drama."

It will go into rehearsal under Robert Lewis' direction Aug. 7. The attraction will play four weeks on the road—two in Boston, followed by two in Philadelphia — and will arrive on the New York stage early in October.

Franchot Tone and David Ross have selected William Murray to prepare a new translation of Luigi Pirandello's "A Game for Lovers." This is the comedy - drama that was formerly known as "Rules of the Game." Tone and Ross will present the play in association with Liska March.

Tone and Zsa Zsa Gabor in two of the starring roles, rehearsals of "A Game For Lovers" will commence Sept. 15 under Ross' direction. The local premiere will take place early in November following tryout engagements.

THE TEST

BOSTON—(UPI)—Jean Mayer, associate professor of nutrition at the Harvard School of Public Health, scoffs at scientific tests made to determine if a person is obese. "The simplest way to learn that," says he, "is to stand in front of a mirror. If you look fat—you are fat."

O'Neill's Drama Is A Film Event

The masterpiece of America's greatest playwright, Nobel and Pulitzer Prize winner Eugene O'Neill, arrives today at the Jim Theatre with the Don Hartman production for Paramount of "Desire Under the Elms." Italy's volcanic beauty Sophia Loren, young sensation Anthony Perkins and balladeer-turned-dramatic actor Burl Ives star as the trio whose story shocked theatre-goers, and defied all efforts to transfer it to the screen. The Vista-Vision filmization of the drama of sin and greed in New England's stony hills has been received as one of the screen's all-time dramatic achievements.

The original frank approach to the love story of the savage drawing of a group of terrifying characters have been preserved intact in the Irwin Shaw screenplay.

"Desire Under the Elms" concerns one of the drama's most compelling families, the Cabots. There is the seventy-year-old Ephraim, portrayed by Ives, as stony as the farm he loves with a greedy passion, and as bull-strong as his draft animals. Perkins is the youngest son, Eben, brooding from boyhood over his mother's command to wrest the farm from his hated, slave-driving father, seeing in his two half-brothers a threat to his inheritance that he must get rid of. Frank Overton and Pernell Roberts are the wild and unpredictable brothers, Sim and Peter, impatiently waiting for their almost inhumanly strong father to kill himself with work.

Into this atmosphere of explosive hate, Ives brings Anna, portrayed by sultry Sophia Loren, as his third wife. Fifty years his junior, she is a beautiful creature but every inch his match for rapacity and unscrupulousness. She at once becomes a fierce contender for the farm, and out of her consuming need for security her loathing for her aged and too-attentive husband and her undeniable attraction to young Perkins comes a plot that has made her the most shocking woman in the annals of great drama.

The first production of Don Hartman, "Desire Under the Elms" was directed by Delbert Mann, famed for "Marty" and "The Bachelor Party." It promises to be a film of great and lasting impact, destined to be talked about for years to come as a major movie event.

Goat Is Finally Found For Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Another great talent search is over. They've found Porgy's goat.

Samuel Goldwyn needed a very special animal for the goat who pulls the cart of the crippled Porgy in the film version of "Porgy and Bess." It had to be strong enough to pull actor Sydney Poitier, have stage presence and not offend the other actors with its aroma.

Clarence Jones, who supplies animals for film makers, came up with 5-year-old Mr. Faust, a husky, deodorized, talented goat. The new actor was located pulling a wagon for children in an Eastern carnival and was shipped here via air.

Why the name? Because Mr. Faust butts like the Devil, say the whimsical studio aides.

At any rate, the goat has a six-month contract and the use of a stand-in. Mr. Faust will be watched closely. No scenery chewing in a Goldwyn picture. . . .

It's ironic that the factor that prolonged Deborah Kerr's marriage helped to sink it in the end. She and Tony Bartley faced problems after the war when she came here as a star. He had nothing to do for a year, since immigration restrictions stopped him from taking a job.

The situation of a famous wife and a nonworking husband has always been a dangerous one in Hollywood. But then Bartley began to find his own success as a producer of TV films. The trouble was that his career kept him in Africa and England much of the time while Deborah was working here. Hence the draft in their marriage, once considered unbreakable. . . .

Shelley Winters wonders where the money is coming from. Her husband Anthony Franciosa has been paid for 10 weeks on "The Naked Maja," though the picture hasn't even started yet. The same goes for Ava Gardner. The delay is apparently to find a script that will please Ava.

DON MURRAY AND DIANE VARSI are shown in a scene from the new Western picture, "From Hell To Texas" that opens today at the Paramount Theatre. The film is produced in CinemaScope and in Color and also stars Chill Wills and Dennis Hopper. "From Hell to Texas" is based on the best-selling novel entitled "The Hell Bent Kid."

'Hell To Texas' Will Show Here

"From Hell to Texas," a new type of western picture, will have its initial showing starting Sunday at the Paramount Theatre.

Based on a Charles O. Locke best-selling novel, "From Hell to Texas" is the taut, suspense-filled story of a young, peace-loving man who tries in every way possible to avoid violence. His intentions, however, are steadily marred by the ruthless efforts of a revenge-crazed cattle baron who wrongly believes him to have killed one of his sons. Thus the meat of the story is well seasoned by a thrilling man hunt as the hate-filled baron hires a gang of guns to relentlessly track down the elusive cowboy.

As the hunted man in question, Don Murray makes his debut in as outdoor western, circa 1880. Once previously, Murray donned the western garb of a present day Montana cowpoke opposite Marilyn Monroe in "Bus Stop," his film debut. He since has starred in "The Bachelor Party" and "A Hatful of Rain," before adding "From Hell to Texas."

Will Consider Bond Issue

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A proposed 2.6-million-dollar bond issue to boost grain storage here will be considered by the Greater Baton Rouge Port Commission Monday.

Expansion plans of Cargill, Inc., call for a boost in the present 2.5-million-bushel capacity to 7.4 million.

This would make the grain facilty here the largest on the entire Gulf coast.

COURT MIXUP

Orphaned Child Has 3 Guardians

WINNSBORO (Special) — Mrs. Ella Fore of 510 Eighth Street, Winnsboro, is anxiously awaiting the decision of the Court of Appeals in Ohio which should untangle the 3-court mixup which has awarded the custody of her three-year-old grandson, Donald Fore, to three different people.

An Ohio court has awarded custody of Donald to an aunt in Cleveland, Ohio, and she has the boy now.

A Mississippi court has awarded custody of Donald to another aunt.

A Louisiana court has awarded custody of Donald to his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ella Fore of Winnsboro.

DONALD FORE

The upshot of all this is that Donald, who was orphaned when his mother and father were killed in an auto crash near Potiers, France, last Sept. 7, doesn't have a legal home, and won't until the court entanglement is settled.

Here is how it all came about:

Donald's parents, M-Sgt. and Mrs. Donald Fore, Sr., were rushing to a hospital near Poitiers, where Mrs. Fore was to have her second baby. The car went out of control and hit a bridge abutment, killing the couple. Donald was thrown clear.

A sister of Mrs. Fore, Mrs Jacobine Toth, 32, of Cleveland, Ohio, flew to France and claimed little Donald. But on her return to this country she was met in New York City by Mrs. Ida Tillery, a sister of the master sergeant, of Louisville, Miss., who had secured a Mississippi court order giving her custody of the little boy. But a New York court refused to honor the order, and Mrs. Toth and Donald were permitted to go on to Cleveland. Mrs. Toth and her husband, William, 35, and their son, Larry, 22 months, took in Donald as a member of the family. Probate court gave them custody of Donald.

M-Sgt. Fore's mother, Mrs. Ella Fore, 77, of Winnsboro, obtained a Louisiana court order giving her custody of the child, and went to Cleveland where she filed a writ of habeas corpus in the Cuyahoga County Court of Appeals in which she sought custody of little Donald.

In the arguments, Mrs. Fore's attorneys argued that the deceased man's legal home had been in Louisiana and that it's courts were entitled to rule as to who should rear the child.

The Toths' attorney argued that on the basis of a consideration of the child's welfare, it should be in the custody of the Toths because of the grandmother's age the fact that she lives alone, and that she is in ill health.

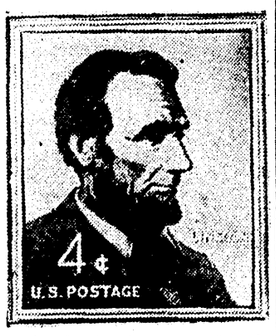

In the meantime the cute little boy whose German mother and American serviceman father were killed in an auto crash in France remains trapped in the three-court tangle, and does not have a legal home.

Lincoln Stamp Will Be Used Most In U.S.

By SYD KRONISH

Beginning Aug. 1, the most widely used stamp in the United States will be the lavendar colored 4-cent Lincoln adhesive for first class mail.

The stamp, reproducing a likeness of Abraham Lincoln from a portrait by Douglas Volk (now in the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C.) is part of the "Liberty Series" of 19 ordinary postage stamps. They range from the ½ cent to the $5.

This Lincoln stamp was first issued Nov. 19, 1954, and will replace the one we now see most often — the 3-cent purple Statue of Liberty.

Approximately nine billion of the 4-cent Lincoln stamps will be used each year.

The 7-cent air mail stamp which will go on first day sale July 31 at Dayton, Ohio, will be similar to the present 6-cent air mail with only the denomination changed.

Brazil has issued a new 2.50 crueizeros red stamp to commemorate the installation of the Salto Grande electrical plant in Sao Paulo.

Other forthcoming stamps from Brazil this year will honor the Merchant Marine, National Press Department, Botanic Gardens, Brussels Fair, Spring Games, and Human Rights.

The First International First Day Cover Exhibition will be held in conjunction with the American First Day Cover Society's convention Aug. 1-3 at the National Philatelic Museum in Philadelphia. Featured will be exhibits submitted by many foreign postal administrations plus the United Nations.

From British East Africa comes word of two new stamps to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the discovery of Lakes Victoria and Tanganyika. The design will include a portrait of Queen Elizabeth and will feature a map of East Africa showing the two lakes. Inscribed on the adhesives will be: "Lakes Victoria and Tanganyika Discovered by Burton and Speke 1858."

The Scott catalogue will start new listings for the United Arab Republic, the Belgian United Nations issue and the West Indies Federation.

These innovations were reported in the June issue of Scott's Chronicle of New Issues which lists 310 stamps of 62 countries. It enables collectors to keep their catalogues up to date.

If you would like a free sample of the journal you may write to Scott Publications, 461 Eighth Avenue, New York 1, N. Y.

Gary Cooper In His 35th Year

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Gary Cooper, Hollywood's leading yup man, is into his 35th year in the movie business.

He was a shy and awkward youth when he came here in 1923. He almost took a train back to Montana because he couldn't get work as a commercial artist. But he was an experienced cowboy, and he heard that movie studios paid up to $25 for falling off a horse. He stayed.

Now 57, he's still shy and still manages to look a little awkward. But he's also a top star who has stayed on top for years, and is probably the least changed by success of anyone in town.

That's why Hollywood friends were stunned to read a New York newspaper's account that he recently had his face lifted. Coop just isn't the type.

He later denied the story with a typical comment:

"I've been making a living on this battered old face for years. Why should I change it?"

It's nice to report that it's still the same old face that has struck fear into the black hearts of movie badmen for years.

Coop says that plastic surgery was to correct a breathing deficiency in a nose broken twice. And his seamed face is proof.

His two latest pictures are among his best: "10 North Frederick" and "Man of the West."

In the latter Cooper plays a Western hero—and that's his dish.

Joel McCrea, no slouch himself in that department, calls Cooper the greatest exponent of the manure kicker school of acting. He says the technique started with Charles Ray, a silent screen idol. The idea is to scuff around barnyard dirt while muttering some phrase like "Aw shucks, Miss Nancy."

"Ray did it the hard way—barefooted," explains McCrea. "Cooper perfected the method with cowboy boots."

Besides Cooper, John Wayne and James Stewart are disciples of the school. They don't act—they re-act. Or, to put it another way, they act naturally instead of theatrically.

Director Mike Curtiz long has argued that dramatic acting hinders rather than helps a movie star.

Says People Can Tell If All News Told

DALLAS (UPI) — William C. Payette, assistant general news manager for United Press International, Saturday said American newspapers, in order to retain their freedom, must print the news and not become a propaganda vehicle.

"The press is not in the propaganda business," Payette told the Texas Press Association at its 79th annual meeting here. "The job of the press is to report —and to report things as they are."

Payette said the general public can tell when all the story is being told, and that "when your reader, at home or abroad, knows only part of the story is being told, he has no confidence in anything he reads."

"The history of peoples enslaved through censorship is as long as the arm of tyranny," he said. "No where in the world do I know of a free people with an enslaved press or an enslaved people with a free press.

"Access to news is not a privilege, but a responsibility. That we must be vigilant goes without saying. We must be merciless demanding, driving—both with ourselves and our sources.

"Never in history has there been more substance to 'The Truth Shall Make You Free.' This should be our dedication."

O'Neill's Drama Is A Film Event

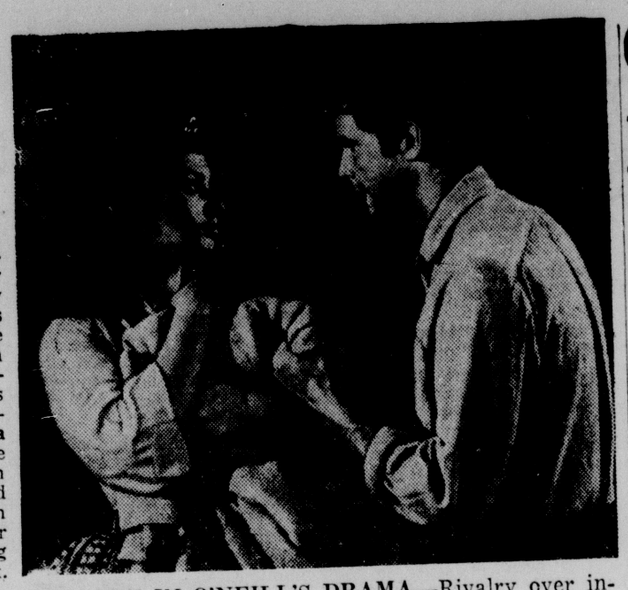

The masterpiece of America's greatest playwright, Nobel and Pulitzer Prize winner Eugene O'Neill, arrives today at the Jim Theatre with the Don Hartman production for Paramount of "Desire Under the Elms." Italy's volcanic beauty Sophia Loren, young sensation Anthony Perkins and balladeer-turned-dramatic actor Burl Ives star as the trio whose story shocked theatre-goers, and defied all efforts to transfer it to the screen. The Vista-Vision filmization of the drama of sin and greed in New England's stony hills has been received as one of the screen's all-time dramatic achievements.

The original frank approach to the love story of the savage drawing of a group of terrifying characters have been preserved intact in the Irwin Shaw screenplay.

"Desire Under the Elms" concerns one of the drama's most compelling families, the Cabots. There is the seventy-year-old Ephraim, portrayed by Ives, as stony as the farm he loves with a greedy passion, and as bull-strong as his draft animals. Perkins is the youngest son, Eben, brooding from boyhood over his mother's command to wrest the farm from his hated, slave-driving father, seeing in his two half-brothers a threat to his inheritance that he must get rid of. Frank Overton and Pernell Roberts are the wild and unpredictable brothers, Sim and Peter, impatiently waiting for their almost inhumanly strong father to kill himself with work.

Into this atmosphere of explosive hate, Ives brings Anna, portrayed by sultry Sophia Loren, as his third wife. Fifty years his junior, she is a beautiful creature but every inch his match for rapacity and unscrupulousness. She at once becomes a fierce contender for the farm, and out of her consuming need for security her loathing for her aged and too-attentive husband and her undeniable attraction to young Perkins comes a plot that has made her the most shocking woman in the annals of great drama.

The first production of Don Hartman, "Desire Under the Elms" was directed by Delbert Mann, famed for "Marty" and "The Bachelor Party." It promises to be a film of great and lasting impact, destined to be talked about for years to come as a major movie event.

Goat Is Finally Found For Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Another great talent search is over. They've found Porgy's goat.

Samuel Goldwyn needed a very special animal for the goat who pulls the cart of the crippled Porgy in the film version of "Porgy and Bess." It had to be strong enough to pull actor Sydney Poitier, have stage presence and not offend the other actors with its aroma.

Clarence Jones, who supplies animals for film makers, came up with 5-year-old Mr. Faust, a husky, deodorized, talented goat. The new actor was located pulling a wagon for children in an Eastern carnival and was shipped here via air.

Why the name? Because Mr. Faust butts like the Devil, say the whimsical studio aides.

At any rate, the goat has a six-month contract and the use of a stand-in. Mr. Faust will be watched closely. No scenery chewing in a Goldwyn picture. . . .

It's ironic that the factor that prolonged Deborah Kerr's marriage helped to sink it in the end. She and Tony Bartley faced problems after the war when she came here as a star. He had nothing to do for a year, since immigration restrictions stopped him from taking a job.

The situation of a famous wife and a nonworking husband has always been a dangerous one in Hollywood. But then Bartley began to find his own success as a producer of TV films. The trouble was that his career kept him in Africa and England much of the time while Deborah was working here. Hence the draft in their marriage, once considered unbreakable. . . .

Shelley Winters wonders where the money is coming from. Her husband Anthony Franciosa has been paid for 10 weeks on "The Naked Maja," though the picture hasn't even started yet. The same goes for Ava Gardner. The delay is apparently to find a script that will please Ava.

DON MURRAY AND DIANE VARSI are shown in a scene from the new Western picture, "From Hell To Texas" that opens today at the Paramount Theatre. The film is produced in CinemaScope and in Color and also stars Chill Wills and Dennis Hopper. "From Hell to Texas" is based on the best-selling novel entitled "The Hell Bent Kid."

Will Consider Bond Issue

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A proposed 2.6-million-dollar bond issue to boost grain storage here will be considered by the Greater Baton Rouge Port Commission Monday.

Expansion plans of Cargill, Inc., call for a boost in the present 2.5-million-bushel capacity to 7.4 million.

This would make the grain facilty here the largest on the entire Gulf coast.

'Hell To Texas' Will Show Here

"From Hell to Texas," a new type of western picture, will have its initial showing starting Sunday at the Paramount Theatre.

Based on a Charles O. Locke best-selling novel, "From Hell to Texas" is the taut, suspense-filled story of a young, peace-loving man who tries in every way possible to avoid violence. His intentions, however, are steadily marred by the ruthless efforts of a revenge-crazed cattle baron who wrongly believes him to have killed one of his sons. Thus the meat of the story is well seasoned by a thrilling man hunt as the hate-filled baron hires a gang of guns to relentlessly track down the elusive cowboy.

As the hunted man in question, Don Murray makes his debut in as outdoor western, circa 1880. Once previously, Murray donned the western garb of a present day Montana cowpoke opposite Marilyn Monroe in "Bus Stop," his film debut. He since has starred in "The Bachelor Party" and "A Hatful of Rain," before adding "From Hell to Texas."

A South African Regulator for windmills allows them to operate in breezes of less than five miles an hour.

More than 15,000 Jaycees from the nation will attend the sessions, starting with a gigantic get-acquainted party at Disneyland near Los Angeles.

Other Jaycees attending from the Monroe area will include Roland Barry of Bastrop who is the state's Speak-Up Jaycee winner, and William H. "Billy" Baker of Jonesboro, who is the National Director elect.

Mrs. Toth and her husband, William, 35, and their son, Larry, 22 months, took in Donald as a member of the family. Proba'e court gave them custody of Donald.

M-Sgt. Fore's mother, Mrs. Ella Fore, 77, of Winnsboro, obtained a Louisiana court order giving her custody of the child, and went to Cleveland where she filed a writ of habeas corpus in the Cuyahoga County Court of Appeals in which she sought custody of little Donald.

In the arguments, Mrs. Fore's attorneys argued that the deceased man's legal home had been in Louisiana and that i's courts were entitled to rule as to who should rear the child.

The Toths' attorney argued that on the basis of a consideration of the child's welfare, it should be in the custody of the Toths because of the grandmother's age the fact that she lives alone, and that she is in ill health.

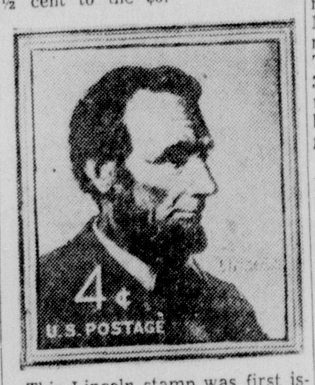

In the meantime the cute little boy whose German mother and American serviceman father were killed in an auto crash in France remains trapped in the three-court tangle, and does not have a legal home.

La. Legislature Like Wild Wind

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — Louisiana's legislature moves at a hectic pace. Following it is like chasing a wild wind. It carries you into many strange lands and seldom do you feel in step with it, never ahead of it.

It delves in the emotions of people and digs into the aspirations of ambitious men.

Sometimes it strives too hard. During those moments it becomes funny.

For instance, the House chuckled when its speaker Robert Angelle, of Breauxbridge, pulled a political boo-boo.

Sez dat fella Angelle in his native Cajun tongue, "ladies and gentlemans, at dis time wants to introduce you a former representative and dear friend of mine, uh..." and he paused ... "a close friend of mine, Jr. uh—uh..."

As the House and spectators began to laugh, Angelle turned to one of his colleagues and asked, "wat you say dat fella's name wuz?"

Whispering

Politicians, especially while the legislature is in session, have a way of whispering like nobody else.

Its "mouth-to-ear" as they tilt their heads, cupping their ears to the lips of those fellows in the know.

The best of them all is Lt. Gov. (Tutone shoes) Frazar, who floats about the chambers with a glad hand and a pleasing smile as he cracks Earl's whip.

The most interesting sight to us was the House fight on the gas gathering tax. While the speeches lingered for hours, Long's strong-arm boys worked the aisles, whispering at times, barking aloud at other times.

Funeral Procession

Meanwhile, the string of representatives to and from the governor's office looked like a funeral procession, especially after the lawmakeres emerged from the inner-sanctums white as a sheet.

Said one legislator in Long's camp, "you say Earl ain't economical. Hell, he didn't buy a vote he didn't need."

The capitol is full of reports on candidates for Louisiana's governor's seat. They list state auditor Bill Dodd, ex-Lt. Gov. Cap. Barham, John J. McKeithen and Jimmy Davis as the most likely to succeed.

As for McKeithen's sometimes questioned "break" with Gov. Earl Long, those who are in the position to know best say it's real.

They say it's not so much the governor who dislikes "son" John now, but rather his wife, Mrs. Blanche Long.

"Clark Fellow"

"That fellow Clark from Monroe," who put Rep. Ben F. Holt up to introducing a bill returning Northeast to LSU, has been in and out of more things.

Said Holt, on the Monroe issue to raise the city council, "that fellow Clark wants a raise."

Said Holt on the LSU segregation issue, "that fellow Clark is all right on segregation."

So again we asked him who "this fellow Clark" really is. Holt smiled, refused, explaining, "I made some rare and strange promises to that fellow Clark."

Not Boardman

Incidentally, for the Monroe coffee crowd's information, "that fellow Clark" is not Clark Boardman. Boardman asked us, "why couldn't you have called him that fellow French?"

Rep. Lawrence Gibbs' attack on Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard and the city council was interesting in the House. We think Gibbs was really after "some poor old widows."

Ex-representative Phillip Montgomery of Franklin Parish is now serving in the House as the assistant Sgt.-at-arms although Montgomery publicly is silent, it's reliably reported and we know for fact he will be a candidate for his old position in the next election.

Other Franklin Parish hopefuls include Lantz Womack, whom the late Walter Chachere defeated in his last race.

While on the subject of Franklin Parish politics, the word around the capitol is that Rudolph McIntyre, who came within inches of defeating District Attorney Harry Anders during the last campaign, has moved back to Winnsboro from Monroe with aspirations of running again.

Not Printed

Following is a story which we wrote last Tuesday, but never got into print. It got into Van Odom's pocket.

"While the House buzzed with activity, F. F. Wimberly, LTA legislative committee chairman, watched with an expression of gas-tax satisfaction on his face.

"Flanked to his right and to his left were Ouachita Parish School Superintendent W. W. Ward and Monroe City School Superintendent Van D. Odom.

"Said Ward to a reporter, 'you can quote me as saying Van Odom passed the gas gathering tax.'

"That's right, 'chimed in Wimberly,' quote me as giving full credit to Superintendent Van Odom."

" 'You mean ex-superintendent Van Odom, don't you?' " pleaded Odom.

The last time we saw Odom, he had our story and was keeping his distance from Ward and Wimberly. He didn't appreciate their joke.

"Unknown Bill"

Rep. W. Spencer Myrick of Oak Ridge addressed the House, "I don't know what this bill does, but it's authored by so many people I don't see any need in opposing it."

The House saw no reason either and the green lights flared okaying the "unknown bill."

Said a half-sober senator, "if sincerity was the thing, wouldn't very many of us have gotten very far."

PAR Reports Tax Proposal May Not Work

BATON ROUGE, (UPI) — A proposed constitutional amendment designed to give parishes more tax money from industry might give little help to the parishes most interested, according to the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR).

The research organization raised the point in its weekly legislative bulletin in regard to a resolution that proposes the repeal of the present tax exemption for new industries from school and road taxes.

School taxes are easy to isolate because they are levied apart from other taxes, PAR said.

But road taxes are financed not only from specific taxes but also from portions of other taxes, PAR pointed out. "The exclusion of taxes for road purposes from the industrial tax exemption would be difficult to achieve," it said.

The parishes of Caddo, East Baton Rouge and Orleans, for instance, do not levy special road taxes, but take road money from general tax levies. And it would be "unworkable" to exclude the part of general funds used for roads, PAR said.

That would mean that those parishes, with substantial industrial growth, might not be able to collect any extra money for their roads even if the amendment were approved.

Probe Death Of Dancer In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, June 14 (UPI) —The Orleans parish coroner's office said Saturday it was making toxology tests to determine the exact cause of death of attractive Mrs. Betty Brewer Kawchak, who was found dead in her room in a small hotel.

The 26-year-old dancer, formerly of Boonville, Ind., performed at a strip tease-bar on Canal Street. She was found in her room in a small hotel adjoining the bar.

Police said hotel attendants reported she checked into the hotel April 3.

Following an autopsy today, the coroner's office reported death due to "aspirations of gastric content and pulmonary edema." However, the coroner said it would be "two or three days before the results" from the tests are known.

Deaths from such conditions are usually elderly people, the coroner's office said. "So we are checking to see if there was any presence of barbituates. We won't know until the tests are completed."

The woman's mother, Mrs. Lucille Brewer of Boonville, sent the coroner's office a telegram to have the body released to a New Orleans funeral home. Homicide detectives said the family is en route here from Indiana to make arrangements.

Friends of Mrs. Kawchak said they knew little of her private life, but did comment that she "was never sick a day."

"She wasn't the depressed type of person," said a fellow worker. "She was cheerful. Had a smile for everyone."

The dark-haired, five-feet tall, dancer was not one of the featured entertainers at the bar where she worked, but was described as "extremely good-looking."

Another dancer said, "when they carried her out of there dead, she looked just like a doll."

INTEGRATION VIEWS

ACLU Officers Ask To Speak

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Sen. W. M. Rainach said his committee hunting integration views within the Louisiana State University faculty will decide Monday whether to grant an American Civil Liberties Union request for its two top officers to appear.

A telegram asking the chance to speak was sent to Rainach by Ernest Angell, CLU chairman of the board, and Patrick Murphy Malin, executive secretary, New York City.

William Shaw, counsel of the 10-man Rainach committee, had attacked the ACLU during legislative questioning of LSU President Troy H. Middleton last Wednesday.

"Our committee will decide whether to invite Angell and Malin," Rainach said. "The ACLU record is rather clear, and I don't know that they could add to the record here."

"I have no objections if they want to come to Louisiana to attend the hearings," Rainach added. "They could sit around in case they were asked to say something."

The Rainach committee consists of many of the members of his Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, official segregation "watchdog" for the state.

Rainach said his new committee primarily is concerned with LSU and doesn't want to get involved "in anything which could divert committee members from the task at hand."

The new 10-man group, formed by the House last week, will meet again Monday and plot its future course.

"The committee already has a heavy work load," the chairman said. "we have information from volunteer sources which we would want to verify before using, we don't want to harm anyone unjustly. We want to corelate and authenticate all information."

The committee, under House orders, had questioned LSU President Middleton and five deans last Wednesday. It went into action under a cloud of anger in the House after members found 66 LSU faculty members had signed a Civil Liberties Union petition opposing eight new segregation measures.

Signed by some 600 persons, the stormy petition opposed plans by Rainach and his segregation chiefs to shut public schools when threatened with integration. The eight bills involved already have passed the House and are awaiting a Senate committee hearing.

The Angell-Malin telegram said: "We have just received text of the statement made concerning the American Civil Liberties Union, during questioning of President Middleton of LSU by your committee. Respectfully request opportunity to appear personally before your committee next Wednesday, Thursday or Friday to make replies and answer questions."

Rainach, informed of the telegram, said he hasn't received a copy.

During next Monday's committee hearing, Rainach said, members will decide who will testify, when other sessions will be necessary.

"We plan to proceed carefully and judiciously, yet firmly," he said.

Malin indicated to sources here he would arrive in Louisiana next week for news conferences in New Orleans and Baton Rouge.

In the Middleton hearing last Wednesday, under direction of segregation leaders, the LSU president said he had investigated after being told five or six of the petition signers at LSU were Cvil Liberties Union members.

"I was told it was a Communist-front organization," Middleton testified, "and the information I received was that neither the attorney general nor the Unamerican Activities Committee listed it as such."

Middleton said he had no evidence any of his faculty had Communist leanings.

Waldo McNeir, one of the two LSU professors who had opposed the Rainach segregation bills, appearing personally before a House committee, is chairman of the Louisiana Civil Liberties Union.

During the Middleton hearing, Shaw said the ACLU was founded by American Germans to keep the United States out of World War one. One of its purposes, Shaw charged, was "to defend draft dodgers and ararchists."

The original angry House outburst against LSU, stirred Shaw said because the ACLU obviously had directed the LSU signers in making known their opposition, was claimed by Middleton's assurances LSU advocates a policy of segregation.

House members the next day adopted a resolution expressing "greatest confidence" in Middleton and his administration, emphasizing the House did not intend to give the impression it mistrusted the vast majority of the LSU faculty.

Simultaneously, the House passed and sent to the Senate another resolution opening up a probe of "unamerican or Communist-front influence" at nine state colleges. A new seven-man committee would handle this new long range probe.

Bruised Body Of Elderly Man Is Found

FLORENCE, Miss. (UPI) —The bruised body of an elderly Florence man was found in the back seat of his automobile near his home early Saturday and authorities said he apparently was a victim of a "terrible battle" at a highway roadhouse.

The victim was V. E. McNatt, 60, of route 3, Florence, who was last seen Friday night with two men in his car outside his house near here.

His wife said she found him face down and still bleeding when she went out to wake him up early today.

Rankin County Sheriff Dave Gayden said McNatt had been scratched and bruised.

"We don't know right now where the marks came from," Gayden said. "But it happened somewhere on highway 49."

Justice of the Peace W. C. Dear surpervised a coroner's inquest, but he said no final report would be made until an autopsy is completed.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a wedding gown of chantilly lace and nylon tulle. The picture pretty modified sabrina neckline highlighted the delicate scalloped sleeves. A Candlelight Ceremony Unites Miss Gay Poston And George W. Wallace

Poston of West Monroe, and George William Wallace, son of Mr. William H. Wallace of Sterlington and the late Mrs. Wallace.

A program of traditional nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Patsy Ebard, organist, as the ushers, Roger Lewis and Ted Bayles, directed the guests to their pews. Mrs. Ebarb accompanied the soloist, Jack Day, who sang "Be-Cause," and "O Promise Me."

Mrs. Tobi Parks served as matron of honor and wore a gown of crystalite over lavender taffeta. The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Blalock and Miss Martha Ann Luginbill, wore gowns identical to the matron of honor. They carried wedding rings of orchid chrysanthemums caught with satin ribbons.

The couple will make their home in Mississippi.

A pound of hubarb will make about five servings of fresh sauce or about a pint of canned or frozen

Look for "trapeze" aprons. A variation of the popular cobbler apron becomes the new silhouette. It falls in a straight line from shoulder to fingertip or knee. Two pockets perch waist-high, and bows decorate slits at the sides. It drops over the head and does not require buttoning or fastening.

Launder heavy-knit socks wrong side out to loosen and wash away perspiration absorbed by the surface next to the skin. Both heavy knits and cotton socks should be hung by the toes and pulled lengthwise while damp. This makes them fit ankles and legs.

Fashion calls for brides to walk down the aisle in shoes which match their gowns, says the National Shoe Institute. Bridal slippers are available in lace, silk, taffeta, satin, or cotton pique. If the gown is made of tulle, the Institute suggests buying half a yard of tulle and adding it to satin shoes.

Mrs. Prentice L. Parker was the soloist, accompanied by Mrs. R. D. Anderson at the piano.

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND PRENTICE WELCH

Fashion calls for brides to walk down the aisle in shoes which match their gowns, says the National Shoe Institute. Bridal slippers are available in lace, silk, taffeta, satin, or cotton pique. If the gown is made of tulle, the Institute suggests buying half a yard of tulle and adding it to satin shoes.

MR. AND MRS. LAVELL HUCKABEE

Summer is upon us with a full blast of heat as well as an increasing number of the season's gay activities—parties, house guests, vacations.

Visiting in the home of the ROY LEDBETTERS are the CHARLES WILSONS and son, CRAIG, of New Orleans. Mary was honored at a small luncheon hosted by JACKIE WOODS on Tuesday. The foursome met at the Bayou DeSiard country club for the main course and then moved to Jackie's home for dessert and bridge . . . ELEANOR BROWN invited six for luncheon at her home on Friday. The hostess beat the heat with a delectable cool menu for a hot day — melon balls to begin, followed by a cold plate featuring shrimp salad in avocado, hot rolls, and a parfait for dessert.

The JACK TOM JACKSONS and the FRED SARTORS complimented the Wilsons with a supper party at the Jackson home on Friday night. The hospitable back porch was the scene of the informal meal, with dancing following. The hostesses served ham, baked beans, cucumbers in sour cream, and a lemon ice box cake.

Several charming parties have honored MARY ANN KYNOCH who is the guest of her parents, the CHARLES WILDS. CHARLOTTE ETHRIDGE and MILDRED VANDERPOOL hosted a luncheon at the Ethridge residence on Tuesday. Mary Ann was wearing an electric blue linen sheath with gold buttons and a corsage of bronze orchids. Peach colored glads were used on the four tables where the eighteen guests were seated.

HELEN EDWARDS' compliment to Mary Ann was a morning party at the Bayou DeSiard country club on Wednesday. The honoree wore a pale green full skirted cotton with a corsage of daisies. Two tall crystal containers held daisies and ivy on the dining table. Pink lemonade, shrimp sandwiches, chicken sandwiches and nuts were served to about twenty friends.

Later in the day on Wednesday, little miss JANE SHERROUSE honored Mary Ann's daughter JUDY with a swimming party at the Sherrouse home. About a dozen little girls enjoyed a swim, followed by eskimo pies for refreshments.

SNOOKY GODWIN and ROBERTINE CONN invited about twenty-five of Mary Ann's friends to a conversational hour Thursday afternoon. For this affair the visitor chose a white linen dress with yellow cashmere sweater. Yellow glads and day lilies were used at the Bayou DeSiard country club, where guests gathered between four and six.

Leaving for Mexico last week was LILLIE WOOD, with her LINDA and MARY ANN ATKINKINSON, and granddaughters, LINDA and MARY ANN ATINSON. The foursome was met at the border by a guide who will drive for them throughout their tour. They will spend a week in Mexico City and then fly to Acapulco for four days. Other side trips are planned before their return in about three or four weeks.

HELENE CYMBAL and BRIGETTE CYMBAL sailed Wednesday from New York on th. Queen Elizabeth. They will be gone for several weeks, visiting France, Germany, and Switzerland, and returning on the Queen Mary. A stopover in New York is also on the schedule, but they will be home in plenty of time for Brigette to enter LSU in September.

The J. S. DREWS took their grandchildren, JOHN and MARY ANN SALISBURY, along on their vacation trip to Virginia. They will visit Williamstown, Jamestown, and other historic landmarks and return in about three weeks.

The JAKE USREYS are vacationing in Hollywood and Los Angeles, Calif., this week and will attend the national convention of the Junior Chamber of Commerce there. Jake is chairman of the Louisiana delegation of forty members, which will host the other delegates at the traditional Louisiana shrimp and crabmeat party.

The KENNETH BOOTHS and children, SANDRA, DEBORAH, and KEN, are in Santa Monica, California, for a two weeks visit. Driving out with them was Dorothy's mother, MRS. E. M. STEEN. While on the West Coast, they will be guests of former Monroyans ERNEST and MALCOLM STEEN.

Spring garden flowers used in abundance created a lovely background for the open house at the home of the DAN MOORES on Friday evening. Glads were used in the entrance hall where Evelyn, wearing aqua chiffon with gold slippers, greeted her guests. Gardenias were used in the living room — massed in a fiberglass planter, and floating in the water of the tiny fountain bubbling on the coffee table. Through the door could be seen the patio, decorated with magnolias and daisies and lighted with hurricane lamps on standards.

In the dining room, yellow glads filled the copper chafing dish on the buffet. At one end of the table was an alabaster container holding white glads and black grapes; at the other, the punch bowl encircled with magnolias. PAT RILEY, wearing brown silk shantung with chiffon panels, and MARY ALICE LOFLIN in orange and green printed chiffon, poured. Ham, shrimp salad mold, and pecan wafers were served. Others assisting with the courtesies were PAT SPENCER, wearing chartreuse and white; TEETIE DIXON in brown with gold slippers, and CINDY WAKEFIELD in a blue and green print.

Thirty-five couples attended the affair. Among the ladies were KATHERINE COTTON, wearing voile in two shades of blue. . . . JEANNE DOWNING's red and pink. . . .

Other lovely looking Revelers included JEAN HUENEFELD in a heavenly blue chiffon bound with tiny satin ribbons around the Empire waist. . . . Out of towners attending the party were the TIM CHINGS of New Orleans, the EMMETT MITCHELLS of Ruston, and the CHARLES REIDS, JR., of Houston, Tex. Dancing to the music of the Redmen filled the hours from 8:30 until 12:30. Preceding the Lambda Sigma Chi dance Friday, open house for members and guests was held at the home of NANCY SNELLINGS. Arrangements of magnolias were used throughout the house. Nancy was wearing a white and black polished cotton trimmed with bows at the hemline. Punch and cookies were served to around 250 guests.

The group then moved on to the Virginia Hotel roof, where the "Eight Tones" played for dancing from nine until one. The theme of the eight tones was carried out in the decorations, with cut - outs of musical notes, instruments, and musicians hanging from walls and ceiling. CINDY EASTERLING celebrated her fifth birthday with a backyard party carrying out a travel theme. The cake was decorated like a train, and tiny flags were used on the ice cream. Favors were miniature suitcases filled with animal crackers. Cindy then followed up on the travel idea by leaving with her mother, BARBARA, and sister, ASHLEY, for a visit with her grandparents at Pass Christian, Miss.

A circus party at home marked HARLAN SAGER's fourth birthday Friday. The gym set and sky ride were the feature attraction. Clowns and balloons were used as decoration. Cake and ice cream were served to about 25.

Also four years old now is BRENDA MADDEN, who celebrated the day with a picnic. About twenty niehgborhood children gathered in the morning for outdoor play in Forsythe park. An early lunch consisting of sandwiches, potato chips, birthday cake, ice cream, and punch was served.

Here we have Father's Day on June 15. And here is a poem by Ogden Nash expressing a father's joy in "The Middle of the Month."

Oh, some people grieve for New Year's Eve,
And some for the dog days fiddle;
My moment sublime is the restful time
When the month is at the middle.
Now turn not pale
At the morning mail
Nor shrink when the telephone shrills,
No evil betides
On the blessed Ides,
The lull between the bills!
Oh, the first of the month is oyster-gray
And the last of the month is clammy,
But it's lirra lirra loo for the middle of the month,
For the middle of the month is mammy!

When sprinkling clothes, fold them as you would when they are ironed. Do not roll clothes too tightly after laundering because wrinkles will become set.

A bride's bouquet of tiny pink rose colored rosebuds and maidenhair fern with pink ribbon streamers in the shape of a fan centered the table in the private dining room of the Rendezvous. The honoree was wearing a full skirted aqua cotton with an orchid corsage, a gift from her hostesses.

Place - cards further carrying out the bridal theme marked the places for Miss Doernberg, her mother, Mrs. Stewart Doernberg, Mrs. Meyer Weldman, Mrs. Jerry Bernat, Miss Sandra Jo Doernberg and Mrs. J. M. Doernberg.

Mrs. Strauss used blue hydrangeas to decorate the reception rooms at her Thursday party. Centering the luncheon table in the dining room were yellow and orange day lilies flanked by yellow candles in silver holders.

Preceding the Lambda Sigma Chi dance Friday, open house for members and guests was held at the home of NANCY SNELLINGS. Arrangements of magnolias were used throughout the house. Nancy was wearing a white and black polished cotton trimmed with bows at the hemline. Punch and cookies were served to around 250 guests.

The theme of the eight tones was carried out in the decorations, with cut - outs of musical notes, instruments, and musicians hanging from walls and ceiling. Favors were top - hats for the boys and poke bonnets in various colors for the girls. MRS. FERD LEVI was announced as honorary sponsor.

Favors were miniature suitcases filled with animal crackers. Cindy then followed up on the travel idea by leaving with her mother, BARBARA, and sister, ASHLEY, for a visit with her grandparents at Pass Christian, Miss.

A circus party at home marked HARLAN SAGER's fourth birthday Friday. The gym set and sky ride were the feature attraction. Clowns and balloons were used as decoration. Cake and ice cream were served to about 25.

Also four years old now is BRENDA MADDEN, who celebrated the day with a picnic. About twenty niehgborhood children gathered in the morning for outdoor play in Forsythe park. An early lunch consisting of sandwiches, potato chips, birthday cake, ice cream, and punch was served.

NEIL JOHNSON also celebrated his birthday at the park — his seventh. His little friends enjoyed a swim in the pool before having sandwiches and ice cream under the trees.

Here we have Father's Day on June 15. And here is a poem by Ogden Nash expressing a father's joy in "The Middle of the Month."

Oh, some people grieve for New Year's Eve,
And some for the dog days fiddle;
My moment sublime is the restful time
When the month is at the middle.
Now turn not pale
At the morning mail
Nor shrink when the telephone shrills,
No evil betides
On the blessed Ides,
The lull between the bills!
Oh, the first of the month is oyster-gray
And the last of the month is clammy,
But it's tirra lirra loo for the middle of the month,
For the middle of the month is mammy!

When sprinkling clothes, fold them as you would when they are ironed. Do not roll clothes too tightly after laundering because wrinkles will become set.

Miss Doernberg Is Honored

Two luncheons this week honored Miss Louise Doernberg a popular summer bride - elect. Mrs. Fred A. Green and Mrs. F. V. Allison entertained at the Rendezvous on Wednesday and Mrs. Jacob Strauss gave her party at her home on Spencer.

A bride's bouquet of tiny pink rose colored rosebuds and maidenhair fern with pink ribbon streamers in the shape of a fan centered the table in the private dining room of the Rendezvous. The honoree was wearing a full skirted aqua cotton with an orchid corsage, a gift from her hostesses.

Place - cards further carrying out the bridal theme marked the places for Miss Doernberg, her mother, Mrs. Stewart Doernberg, Mrs. Meyer Weldman, Mrs. Jerry Bernat, Miss Sandra Jo Doernberg and Mrs. J. M. Doernberg.

Mrs. Strauss used blue hydrangeas to decorate the reception rooms at her Thursday party. Centering the luncheon table in the dining room were yellow and orange day lilies flanked by yellow candles in silver holders.

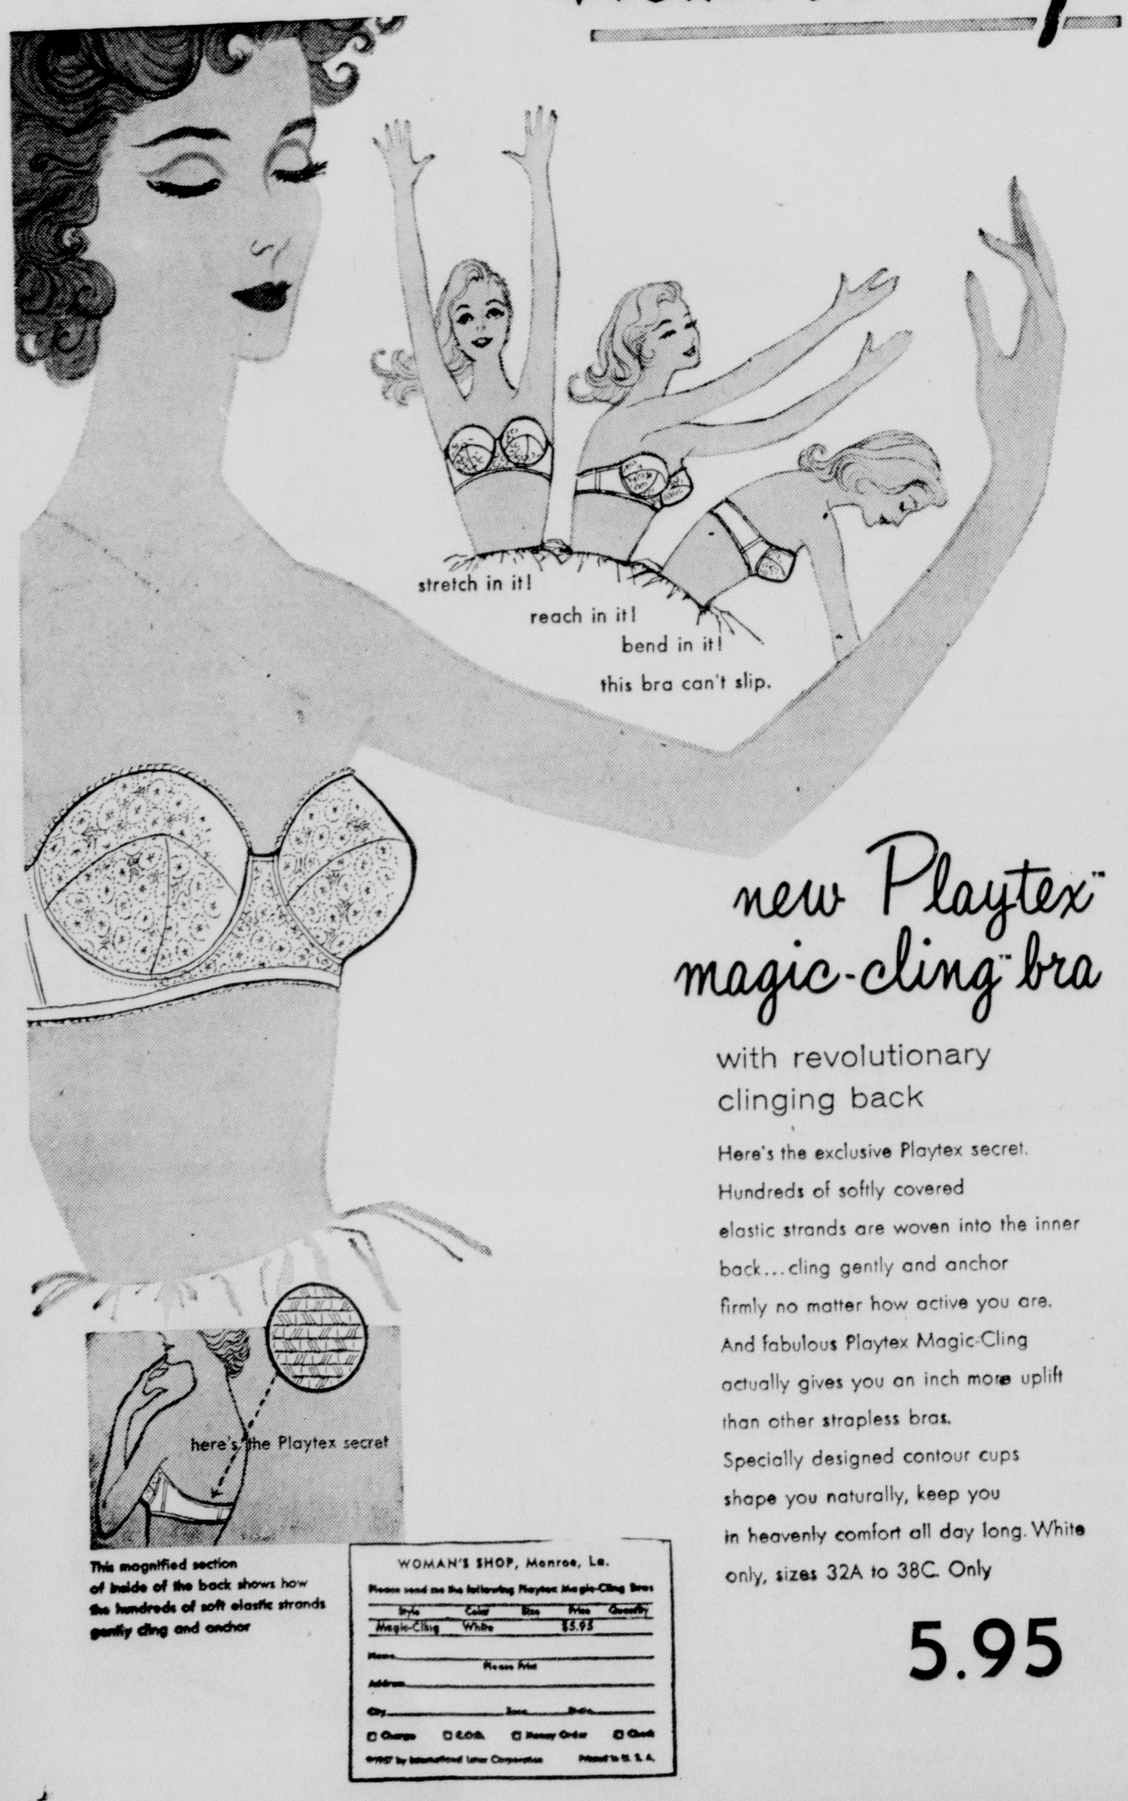

Included with the honoree and hostesses were Mrs. J. M. Doernberg, Mrs. Jerry Bernat, Mrs. Stewart Doernberg, Mrs. David Kaplan, Mrs. Louis Smith, Mrs. Arthur Brueck, Miss Sandra Jo Doernberg, Miss Marianna Altick, Miss Fran Guthrie and Miss Kathy Garon, of New Orleans.

MISS MARY VIRGINIA STEPHENS

MRS. FREELAND DALE MAY

Miss Bailey, Dale May Recite Vows

The Central Baptist Church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Gay Dawn Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Bailey, and Freeland Dale May, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey May of West Monroe, which was solemnized on Saturday June 7, at 6:30 o'clock in the evening. The Rev. C. Roger Johnson officiated at the ceremony.

Mrs. C. Roger Johnson at the organ accompanied Mrs. Arthur Vancil, who sang "Because" and "Of Thee I Love," and played the traditional wedding marches.

The archway of the altar was banked with greenery and lilies to provide the decorations for the church. Prior to the ceremony, the candles were lighted by Ted Bailey, Bertha Claire Dupree, Tom Bowman, Johnnie Wilbanks, Sherwood Kelly.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride descended the aisle wearing a traditional bridal gown of chantilly lace over tulle which featured a scalloped neckline, fitted bodice and long sleeves which terminated in points at the wrist. Her veil of illusion which fell to her shoulders was attached to a tiara of pearls and sequins. She carried a white prayer book topped with a specimen white orchid.

Miss Sandy Bailey was her sister's maid of honor. Her waltz-length dress was of blue organdy worn with matching head-dress and slippers. Her bouquet of carnations was also in the identical shade of blue.

The bridesmaids, Miss Pat Bailey, Miss Gerrilane Yelverton, both cousins of the bride, and Miss Libby Mockabee, were gowned in pastel shades of pink, orchid and green fashioned identically to that of the maid of honor. They carried matching carnation bouquets.

Young Misses Susie May, a cousin of the groom, and Susan Hinckley, cousin of the bride, wore dainty yellow organdy dresses with matching headdresses and flowers.

Theo May attended his brother as best man.

Mrs. Bailey attended her daughter's wedding wearing a gown of bone lace with accessories of a similar shade and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. May, mother of the bridegroom, chose a sky-blue sheer with harmonizing accessories. White carnations formed her corsage.

Guests gathered in the social room of the church for the reception which followed the ceremony. The beautifully embossed wedding confection was placed at one end of the bride's table which was laid with a white cutwork and net cloth. The crystal punch service was presided over by Miss Joyce Lanier, Miss Pat Davis and Mrs. Bill Robeaux, while Mrs. Billy Barbara and Mrs. Victor Kelly were in charge of the bride's register.

When Mr. and Mrs. May left for their wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the bride was gowned in a white sheath with matching accessories. Upon their return, they will be at home at 309 Lidell St. in Monroe.

Out - of - town guests for the occasion included Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Dormeaus, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Curry, Mr. and Mrs. Lenard Sellers of Jackson, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Bowman of Morgan City, La.; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Brownlee, of Gilliam, La.; Miss Dove Hale of Downsville, La.; Gap Yelverton of Baton Rouge. Garden And Home Page

Short Course In Weeding Outlined

There's an easy way and a hard way to go about most tasks, and there's certainly a big difference in the amount of work involved in weeding your garden, depending on the way you do the job.

The easy way is mostly a matter of timing, and the key is, "Get them while they're small!" Weeds are easy to destroy when they are in their seedling stage, so when that carpet of green starts to spring up go into action right then.

First of all, sharpen your hoe. A few minutes with a file will make the job so much easier and the hoeing so much more effective that it is just about the most important single act of preparation you can do. And if the hoe gets dull before you're through with the job, stop and sharpen it again instead of depending on pure brute strength.

Then work up and down between the rows with a slicing rather than a chopping motion. Your job is to cut off the weeds just below the surface, not to dig them up. Deep hoeing just wastes energy and when you get close to your flowers you are likely to cut off roots if you go too deep.

Hoe as close to the flowers as you can without disturbing them and after you have cleaned up the area between the rows get down on your knees and pull out the weeds in the row by hand. A thorough job the first time through the garden will probably do for the whole season so far as hand weeding is concerned, for the flowers will begin to shade the area around their stems discouraging other weed seeds from starting.

The hard way is to wait until the weeds are good and big. The wedding still has to be done, but then you'll not only find it harder going with the hoe, but it will be a good idea to rake off the weeds you have cut off to prevent them from rooting down again. Hand weeding in the row becomes doubly difficult with big weeds, for you must exercise special care to avoid disturbing your flowers when you are removing the weeds. The way to do this is to hold your fingers firmly on the surface of the soil between the weed and the plant to keep the earth from moving when you take out the weed.

After the weeds have been despatched it is a good idea to give the flowers a side dressing of fertilizer. Make a shallow trench (about 1 inch deep) on each side of the row, sprinkle commercial fertilizer lightly along each trench, mix it with the soil with your hoe handle, and then cover it with your rake. For quickest effect, irrigate after fertilizing. Portulaca, scabiosa, pansies, shasta daisies, cornflowers and sweet peas can use lots of fertility, but do not fertilize nasturtium, California poppy, tithonia, morning glory, black eyed susan vine or cosmos.

Beware Of Tree Scorch From Grills

Outdoor living is fine and fun, but certain surburbanites are taking a burn.

These are the trees and shrubs that get a scorching from outdoor grills, along with the steaks, hamburgers and hotdogs. Portable grills dragged near growing things can give shade or ornamental trees a figurative hot foot. And permanent outdoors fireplaces for informal dining will do the same, unless located a safe distance from woody pets.

Depending on the nearness, size and severity of any fire, in the grill or otherwise, heat can kill or injure the landscaping by cooking growing tissue, warns J. W. Joy, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

Of course, a major fire on the home grounds such as a burning house or garage is one of the worst catastrophes. They actually may boil the sap within a tree and the cambium layer may cook and die. Damage otherwise may be confined to the side of the tree nearest the fire.

Frequently, fire damage to trees is more extensive than early examination indicates. Patience is virtue that pays off for tree friends thus affected. Where damage is severe, complete corrective care is best delayed for several months or even a full year. Only then will the extent of injury be fully apparent so that all dead bark and other injured parts can be cut away and waterproofed. Generous feeding plus watering in dry seasons are a standard part of the treatment. And the sooner done the better.

Undiluted canned consomme and bouillon both make an excellent base for a curry sauce for poultry, meat or shrimps.

Day Dedicated To All Fathers

By AUDREY DAWSON

Today is the day we honor and pay tribute to all the fathers. I found this portion of a poem by Robert Tristan Coffin I dedicate to all fathers who read my column — "What his son and his son's son will be — Is there for any man to see; — The father sits with wonder in his gaze — to see the sure design of his own days."

Hints To Groom

June is wedding month so if you are a groom, here's some hints. You are sharing the spotlight with the bride, and besides putting a flower in your buttonhole, you have do's and don'ts as important as those of the bride.

Buying the engagement ring is your first big expense. After that you can rest in relative peace supposedly, at least until shortly before the wedding.

Gifts Groom Buys

You are expected to buy a gift for the bride — always something for her personal adornment. You may present a corsage to the bride's mother, and, of course, you are responsible for the marriage license, wedding ring, clergyman's fee (which is placed in an envelope and turned over to the best man) and the honeymoon expenses.

Gifts to your attendants will be presented at your bachelor's dinner or sometime before the ceremony. The expense of that dinner is yours.

In most instances, you and the best man will follow the clergyman into the chancel. Usually it is considered more gallant for you to wait on the right side until the bride approaches and then merely take a step forward. You will then take the bride's right hand in your own right hand and draw it through your left arm and, at the same time, turning toward the chancel.

The best man will hand you the ring at the proper time, and if it is a double ring ceremony you will receive your ring immediately after the bride has received hers.

After the ceremony you will leave the church with your bride on your right arm.

All reservations, tickets and other arrangements should be ready when it is time to leave on your honeymoon. You do not wear your boutonniere after leaving the house. When bride is ready, she will call and you will meet with your attendants and parents for a last good by. Then it's a dash down the steps and you are off. From then on all responsibilities are yours.

Labels On Milk

Do you, Mrs. Homemaker, understand the differences in the contents of milk?

Pasteurized milk has been processed and handled under state regulations.

Homogenized means that the fat globules of pasturized whole milk have been broken up and spread through the liquid, so that they will not rise to top as cream.

Vitamin D. on a milk label means that more of this vitamin has been added to increase the vitamin D content of milk.

Certified milk is high quality, high cost milk produced on a limited scale.

Fluid skim milk contains no fat or vitamin A. Otherwise, it retains all nutrients of whole milk, calcium, protein, B vitamin and so on.

Evaporated milk is made from homogenized whole milk. All evaporated milk on retail market has vitamin D added. Over half the water in fluid milk is removed in evaporating processes.

Evaporated skim milk with vitamin D added is one of the newer forms of milk that you can buy.

Condensed milk is a concentrated product containing large amounts of sugar which serves to preserve it.

Dry whole milk is also marketed though on a small scale. It is used chiefly for infant feeding.

Chocolate flavored milk drinks are sold by the quart in food markets. To make these, cocoa or chocolate syrup is added to whole or skim milk.

Buttermilk is produced artificially with bacterial cultures, from pasteurized skim or partially skimmed milk.

Did you realize, Mrs. Homemaker, there were so many different milks on the market?

Steam Iron

I've answered a number of calls these past two weeks on cleaning the steam iron. I had this in my column in February but here it is again. Pour in ½ cup of vinegar and turn iron to steam and leave until all vinegar is steamed out. Another point to remember in care of your steam iron is to use distilled water. If you do not want to buy this you can save the water when you defrost your refrigerator. The ice that forms is pure and does not contain chemicals which are harmful to your iron.

A Thought

If you want a monopoly on your husband's love, just put a little trust in him.

Vacations Raise Hob With Garden

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The time has come when the nation is starting vacation, when week - end traffic near the city is bumper to bumper and we are being reminded of such burglar-proofing devices as stopping milk and paper deliveries.

A two or three week vacation away from home, however beneficial to family morale, is likely to raise hob with the garden. It has always seemed logical to me that the ideal time for a gardener's vacation away from home is dead of winter.

This obviously is impractical in most cases. So the best way to cope is to make certain someone is available to cut the lawn on a regular basis. Best solution to this is a swap with a neighbor who will take his vacation at a different period of the summer. But, whatever you do make grass-mowing plans long before you get out the suitcake.

The more difficult problem is the care and feeding of the garden beds. With luck, you may have fine, cloudless weather for your vacation. In that case, the plants may suffer from lack of water. The best most of us can do is to spend the last weekend before vacation thoroughly weeding and cultivating the garden, and covering all the unplanted soil with a deep blanket of mulch — peat moss, grass clippings or whatever you use. Then give the beds a thorough, deep drenching with the hose. And give the same water treatment to the lawn, particularly if it is a new one.

Sprinkling is one of the least useful occupations of a gardener at any time of the year. In summer, it can actually be harmful.

Lawns, if watered, should be thoroughly saturated with a soaker attached to the hose or a sprinkler set in place and allowed to run until the soil is set to a depth of at least three or four inches.

There are plastic soakers available, but I like even better a length of canvas in the shape of a hose which allows water to seep gently onto the soil and run into the ground without spraying on the leaves and blossoms of the plant material. Second best, I think, is placing the end of the hose on a flat board or stone to prevent digging a hole in the ground, and allowing a steady gentle stream to pour out.

Generally, it is a good idea in hot weather to avoid moistening the tops of the plants, particularly when the sun is hot and evaporation quick. If water is scarce, a root feeder is a good investment to bring water to tree and shrub roots.

Mulching and thorough watering is also required for the houseplants vacationing in a shady outdoor spot. Pack in the peat moss around and on top of the sunken pots.

And, last thing, make the rounds with sprayer and duster giving everything a good anti-pest treatment.

Mental Process Drug Reported

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)— A new drug that reportedly boosts mental processes has proved useful in treating problem children, a California doctor reported Saturday.

Using the drug, called Deanol, on children with behaviour problems, Dr. Leon Oettinger Jr. of Pasadena, found the children less irritable and less overactive.

The children also seemed to have a longer attention span and a better appetite, Dr. Oettinger said.

The island of Saba in the Netherlands Antilles is the only island in the Caribbean where the native population is predominantly blonde.

Rose Society Lists Favorites In Buying Guide

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Before you pick out those new potted roses at your favorite nursery to plant in your garden this summer, ask the American Rose Society to send you a free copy of its 1958 Guide for Buying Roses.

This handy booklet lists the all-time favorites in every part of the country. More than 200,000 copies of it are distributed on request every year as a puplic service.

This year's supply is rapidly diminishing, so get that postcard in the mail right away. Address it to the society's headquarters, Columbus, Ohio.

Ratings given the roses in this listing are compiled from thousands of reports submitted by amateur gardeners throughout the United States. They appear in detail in the Proof of the Pudding section of the society's 1958 American Rose Annual. If you would like a copy of this practical guide to all phases of rose culture, ask your local bookdealer to get it for you, or write directly to the society.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Center Displays Point Up Summer

By MARY M. JARDINE

Summertime arrangements were presented by members of the Sprig and Twig Garden Club of Monroe at the Garden Center this week. Mrs. R. F. Wilson created a lovely crescent design using a color scheme of green and white. The dark green oval shaped bowl was placed on a walnut base. The crescent line was established with green canna leaves tipped with maroon. The reverse side of the leaf was used showing the mid-rib and the leaves gracefully folded back to form the crescent line. The line was accented with snowy white gladiolus. A cool and beautiful arrangement for the living room.

Rain Lilies

Mrs. Max Kulcke designed an airy summer arrangement using a flat crystal bowl for a container. A curved branch of mimosa tree in bloom was placed in a slightly diagonal manner, simulating a tree. Low in the arrangements were placements of the lovely pink rain-lilies and lavender-pink cone flowers. A frond of wild fern was placed in the background adding depth and airiness to the design. The low crystal bowl was filled to the brim with water. Very dainty and cool for these hot summer days. Mimosa in bloom can be conditioned by cutting the branches with the flowers are just opening. Split the stem about an inch. Strip off any leaves not needed for decoration and condition overnight in deep water.

Mrs. Wilson also designed a dramatic yet simple design using our state flower, the Magnolia. A rectangular green bowl was selected for the design. Native iris foliage was placed in a vertical pattern in the background. Glossy magnolia foliage framed a bud and open bloom of the magnolia.

Gladys Kulcke designed a long lasting arrangement of succulents. No water is required for this design. The interesting carved cylinder container and matching base was of wood and finished in natural color. This was designed by the talented Max Kulcke. A diagonal design was achieved by placement of sansevieria, followed by green and white aloes. For a center of interest, rosettes of hen and chickens were placed in the foreground. Another stalk of hen and chickens with smaller rosettes trailed over the side of the container and was strengthened by another placement of sansevieria.

Magnolia Time

This is magnolia time and many of you would like to use the flowers for arrangements. Here are hints on conditioning. Select well-developed buds and allow to open indoors. Cut in late afternoon, and they will be fully open by morning. Tight buds required several days to open. Submerge open flowers in cold water until petals are crisp and form. Then lift and place stems in water until asranged. Handle carefully, petals bruise and brown at the slightest touch. It helps to dip flowers and hands in ice water before you start arranging. After the blossoms open they usually stay fresh for a day or two.

Roz Haas complimented the Garden Center by presenting us with a dramatic Father's Day arrangement. The container was a Japanese usabata, of black metal, antiquen in green. The dramatic triangular design in brilliant colors was created with bells of Ireland for a background, bright orange tritomas (red-hot pokers) and golden yellow yarrow. Be sure to remember Father today.

May we remind you of the Louisiana Peach Festival and the Peaches and Posies Flower Show at the Ruston Elementary School Gym on Wednesday, June 18. Time is 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. Garden Clubs and Home Demonstration Clubs are invited to enter in both the classes. Call the Garden Center for the eligible classes.

Bees Blamed For Spread Of Blight

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

This seems to be a bad year for fire blight. Apparently, the bees have carried it from the pear trees to many other trees and shrubs in the apply family. Apples and crabapples are badly infested in some communities. Cotoneasters have caught it, too. Quinces are fairly resistant to it, but even pyracanthas sometimes succumb to it later in the summer.

Bacteria

Fire blight is that bacterial disease that causes long limbs on pear trees to turn black and shrivel up. Ordinarily, it is not too bad on anything but the pear trees, but, in some seasons, it runs rampant.

Where the bees carried it to the apple blossoms, small spurs and twigs have turned black. Sometimes the apples and crabapples seem to resist its going very far, so it is hard to decide to cut out every bit of this disease because such drastic steps would remove most of the tree. While it is hard to do, about the best thing to do is to wait until growth stops and the wood hardens on trees and shrubs after mid-summer before attempting to remove fire blight from trees and shrubs.

In late July and August, you can cut out the blighted twigs and limbs. Two very definite things are necessary in this operation: 1. Cut several inches below the blighted section. 2. Be sure to dip your pruners into 70 per cent alcohol or formalin after each cut is made. Since the bacteria are in the sap below the infested parts, you have to go several inches into the healthy wood to cut still lower than where there are bacteria. All bacterial infections are easily spread, so you may do more harm than good unless you sterilize your tools each time a cut is made.

Kills Limbs

In some gardens, whole limbs of pyracanthas or cotoneasters have been killed by this fire blight. These should be cut out now to let in light and air that will stimulate the proper growth of new branches and help the shrub to recover. This cutting can be done right in the infected dead branches without any attempt to cut below the infection. Then you can clean up the blight in July and August. Do not forget to sterilize the pruners you use, either now or later in the summer!

If you care to know more about fire blight, write for Leaflet No. 187 U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Supt. of Documents, Washington, D. C. Enclose 5 cents. This bulletin applies more to orchards than to gardens but has a great deal of detailed information in it.

Aphid's Suction Rough On Trees

Aphids are a sticky problem to tree lovers. In fact, the tree lice are a brooding matter in more ways than one to some people.

Aphids, among the tiniest of tree pests, make up in sheer numbers what they lack in size.

And the wallop they pack in weakening trees makes them major pests in all parts of the country.

These malefactors suck away with much gusto on the undersides of leaves. They then produce the honeydew that drips on clothes and cars and which many people mistakenly believe is sap just oozing from trees. Aphids reproduce fantastically. This spells population buildup that may be too much for even the sturdiest woody monarchs.

Unless controlled — and now is a good time to start — they may cause serious leaf defoliation, C. A. Hoge, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co. And not just one, but two sprays, such as nicotine, are really required to keep the plant lice in check. That's because of the quick mass buildup of aphid progeny. Females even have the ability to produce certain broods without mating.

The second spray should be applied about two weeks after the first. At best, summer spraying is not fully effective unless handled as a neighborhood project.

Faliar sprays are not the only weapon against the pests. Formant spraying in late winter or early spring attacks them in the overwintering egg stage when they are most vulnerable.

Weed, Water Garden For Plant Growth

Now that your flower garden is up and growing you have only to keep the plants moving along without set-backs in order to have the biggest and best crop of flowers.

The business of continued, unchecked growth is important, and it involves several areas of activity. First of all, of course, you must keep the weeds down. As you know, the best time to catch weeds is when they're young and easy to kill. But even after a good clean-up it is necessary to keep an eye on the plants as they are developing, for all too often a weed seedling may come up so close to the flower that you don't spot it at first, and allowed to continue to grow it will rob the flower of moisture and fertility, stunting the plant growth.

Then, speaking of moisture, it is important to provide water when nature fails to do so. If you see the plants wilting in the late afternoon hours it is time to do a little irrigating. Overhead sprinkling is satisfactory at most stages of growth and for most plants, but flooding in rills down next to the rows of plants is better when the plants have actually begun to flower or for such kinds as zinnias which are apt to be attacked by mildrew if the foliage is damp for any length of time. The most vital point to remember when watering is that a surface sprinkling is worse than nothing at all. The ground may look soaking wet, and even have water running off rapidly, but only an inch or two down the soil may be perfectly dry. The way to avoid this situation is to water more slowly and for a much longer time. In other words, soak, don't sprinkle. A good check on the effectiveness of your watering is to turn over a spadeful of earth. If it is wet all the way down to the bottom of the spade depth you have accomplished your job.

Billy Graham Completes Cow Palace Effort

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Billy Graham preached the last evening sermon last night in his seven-week crusade at the Cow Palace.

He winds up the series today with an afternoon meeting, then rests until next Sunday when he'll hold a rally at Seals Stadium where he estimates 30,000 people will attend.

Graham preached Friday night to a capacity crowd of 16,500 on the excuses people give for not "making a decision for Christ."

There are no valid ones in the sight of God, he said.

God's forgiveness abounds even more than the sins of man, he declared, so there is no excuse for saying one has sinned too much.

"All Christ asks you to give up are your sins," he said of people who feel they have too much to give up.

THE HOME SHIFT

Still Time To Plant Hibiscus

By MILDRED SWIFT

There are lots of little jobs that should or can be done in June.

If you can find some seed of dwarf dahlias, plant them right away. They bloom profusely and make excellent cut flowers.

If you have a special occasion coming up in late summer and you'll need some glads, plant them now, if you can get the corms. These should have been planted in February. Flowers from corms planted now will be inferior, but better than no flowers at all. Glad thrips are active in hot weather, so, dust your plants with DDT.

It is not too late to plant hibiscus. These are planted in buckets and can be carefully removed so the plant will hardly know it has been moved. These plants will bloom until frost so you'll get your money's worth. Visit your nursery and get the varieties you like best, while they're in bloom.

Transplanting

Zinnias and some other plants resent transplanting in hot weather. Their roots seem to be sensitive to light. In this case, transplant late in the afternoon or at night and be very careful not to expose the roots.

Then, give the plant a drink of starter solution, made by dissolving a tablespoon or two fo complete fertilizer in a quart of water. Pour one cup of this around each small plant. Use 5-10-5 or 8-8-8 or any similar formula.

Cannas

Cannas are among our most beautiful summer plants. Let me remind you again to dust with DDT or cryolite about once a week. Open the leaf and get the dust down in the rolled leaf where the insect is probably hiding.

Century Plant

Somebody sent me a picture of a century plant in bloom. Consulting with Mrs. Jardine and her collection of garden encyclopedias we find this is not the plant that we call the century plant. She says the botanical name of the blooming type is Agave Americano and is a member of the amaryllis family.

This species that blooms must be ten years old before it rewards you with a flower. The flower is born on a candle-like stem about 12 feet tall. The yellow blossoms branch out from each side of the stem.

Here and There

Many of you are having lots of garden debris now, such as weeds and grass clippings. Those materials are valuable in your compost pile. If you've never built one, simply pile the material up and let it rot. That's a crude method and takes a longer time but you'll not waste that valuable material.

Some fall blooming plants such as dahlias and mums will need staking, if you didn't stake them when planting. Tie the plants to the stakes as they grow, never allowing them to fall over.

If your caladiums appear droopy, the cause may be not enough light. There is a mistaken belief that caladiums must have shade. True, they like some shade but they can be grown in full sun and do quite well.

Fertilizers

A light sprinkling of nitrogen fertilizer around plants and on the lawn is advisable, now or in late June. Especially on the lawn. The heavy rains washed away the nitrogen that's in the soil.

Also, if you have a mulch around plants, that mulch tends to tie up the nitrogen and makes it unavailable to the plants. Remember, though, the nitrogen is strong. Use very sparingly and soak down well or it will burn. There are several kinds of nitrogen, so talk to your seed dealer about the amount to use.

Congratulations!

To Ouachita Parish Police Jury, citizens, library board and people of West Monroe: The new library is a beautiful structure, the furnishings "just right"; the landscaping outstanding. While greeting people last Sunday who attended the open house, we reminisced a bit about a similar occasion twelve years ago when the old library building was opened. We were justly proud of that achievement. That was progress. It is a compliment to you people that you make use of your library facilities to such an extent that you soon out-grew the 106 Cypress setup. That's progress, too.

They're New

Have you seen the new lights for outdoors? Many of us do not have outside wiring to take care of the many attractive and useful lamps that are on the market.

These lamps are mounted on an iron rod, the shade is lantern style and you burn kerosene. Better still there's a fluid that's sold with the lamp and wick that is bug repellent. These provide soft, inexpensive light for patio or porch.

Also, new (to me) is the hinged zipper foot, something we've needed for a long time. I've found it wonderful for making the two-piece corded buttonhole. The corded ones are so easy, almost fail-proof and really beautiful. You can buy the tiny little cording for this buttonhole at the notion counters. Come to see me and I'll show you how to make this type button hole.

Announcements

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Mrs. Lillian Yates will show us uses and care of table linens; Tuesday, Mrs. Eloise Edwards will give us some hints for invitations and place cards; Wednesday, flower arrangements; Thursday and Friday, "What's New in the World of Foods," with Reid Grigsby and Betty Woods from Baton Rouge. See you next Sunday.

Watch For Twig Litter In Back Yard

Backyard fallout can be a danger sign for your trees.

This fallout has nothing to do with radiation levels. It is the amount of dead twigs on the lawn after a Summer rain or windstorm has passed.

And merely letting the chips fall where they may can sound the death knell for woody sentinels. So warns L. F. Irvine, field respresentative of the Davey Tree Expert Co., who points out excessive twig fall is a symptom of declining arboreal health.

If your back yard is chronically twig-littered, chances are pet trees need victuals badly along with strategic pruning. Careful thinning alone is a temporary expedient. Providing blue-plate specials of tree food high in nitrogen content is a better answer.

Fer at this stage of the growing season, tree friends may show tangible results of restored vigor in a few weeks, with lusher foliage and lesser twig fallout. However, all feeding is most effective when done on an annual basis.

Feeding trees is a painstaking operation. It is best done by the punchbar or drill method. This means the making of many small holes no more than 18 inches apart. These should be filled with small amounts of the high-nitrogen food.

For clay soils, peat moss rather than top soil should be used to fill the holes after food is applied. This retains water and is a big help in root aeration. Deep watering is a major factor in feeding. Be sure that your trees get adequate drinks in hot weather.

Grads Learn Job Hunting Is Problem

By GERALD MOSES
United Press International

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A large percentage of graduates of New Orleans high schools are taking a post graduate course in economics this month — learning that "recession" means a tighter job market for them.

State and private employment agencies say these youngsters hav come up against a slim employers' market for the first time in several years, in which demands are for higher qualifications and experience than most graduates have.

Summer employment is practically non-existent, state employment commissioner James Messina said, and it is the biggest problem faced by employment agencies in connection with the new workers. "More and more of these young people want to go to college, and there just aren't enough summer jobs for them."

More Jobs For Girls

Messina agreed with private employment counselors that prospects for employment were brighter for girls just out of high school than for boys. But the girls still face an employer's market, even though one private counselor says girls asking for office work are better trained and qualified than ever before.

"This is the saddest story I can think of," said Mrs. Charlene Bayou. "Most of the girls trained two years for a stenographer's job, and it was good, solid training. Quite a few of them are taking jobs as filing clerks, and will lose most of their shorthand ability by the time they get a chance to use it."

"Employers are more exacting as to experience now," said Floyd Robertson, another private counselor. "The larger companies like to hire men with their military obligations finished."

Boys Are Enlisting

Military obligations can be met by joining reserve programs of the armed services, he said, but this involves arranging for two weeks' active duty training each year. "Quite a few boys are enlisting to get their service obligations out of the way."

The "quite a few" caused the air force recruiting office in New Orleans to be described as "swamped" by a recruiting officer.

"We've had a lot more enlistments than we had at this time last year," the officer said.

An Army recruiting sergeant said enlistments were up considerably over last year, and made up mostly of newly graduated high school students. "A lot of them want to get their service obligations over," the sergeant said. "Some feel special schools offered in the Army will help them once they get out."

Similar conditions were reported at Navy and Marine Corps recruiting offices.

Short Course In Weeding Outlined

There's an easy way and a hard way to go about most tasks, and there's certainly a big difference in the amount of work involved in weeding your garden, depending on the way you do the job.

The easy way is mostly a matter of timing, and the key is, "Get them while they're small!" Weeds are easy to destroy when they are in their seedling stage, so when that carpet of green starts to spring up go into action right then.

First of all, sharpen your hoe. A few minutes with a file will make the job so much easier and the hoeing so much more effective that it is just about the most important single act of preparation you can do. And if the hoe gets dull before you're through with the job, stop and sharpen it again instead of depending on pure brute strength.

Then work up and down between the rows with a slicing rather than a chopping motion. Your job is to cut off the weeds just below the surface, not to dig them up. Deep hoeing just wastes energy and when you get close to your flowers you are likely to cut off roots if you go too deep.

Hoe as close to the flowers as you can without disturbing them and after you have cleaned up the area between the rows get down on your knees and pull out the weeds in the row by hand. A thorough job the first time through the garden will probably do for the whole season so far as hand weeding is concerned, for the flowers will begin to shade the area around their stems discouraging other weed seeds from starting.

The hard way is to wait until the weeds are good and big. The wedding still has to be done, but then you'll not only find it harder going with the hoe, but it will be a good idea to rake off the weeds you have cut off to prevent them from rooting down again. Hand weeding in the row becomes doubly difficult with big weeds, for you must exercise special care to avoid disturbing your flowers when you are removing the weeds. The way to do this is to hold your fingers firmly on the surface of the soil between the weed and the plant to keep the earth from moving when you take out the weed.

After the weeds have been despatched it is a good idea to give the flowers a side dressing of fertilizer. Make a shallow trench (about 1 inch deep) on each side of the row, sprinkle commercial fertilizer lightly along each trench, mix it with the soil with your hoe handle, and then cover it with your rake. For quickest effect, irrigate after fertilizing. Portulaca, scabiosa, pansies, shasta daisies, cornflowers and sweet peas can use lots of fertility, but do not fertilize nasturtium, California poppy, tithonia, morning glory, black eyed susan vine or cosmos.

Beware Of Tree Scorch From Grills

Outdoor living is fine and fun, but certain surburbanites are taking a burn.

These are the trees and shrubs that get a scorching from outdoor grills, along with the steaks, hamburgers and hotdogs. Portable grills dragged near growing things can give shade or ornamental trees a figurative hot foot. And permanent outdoors fireplaces for informal dining will do the same, unless located a safe distance from woody pets.

Depending on the nearness, size and severity of any fire, in the grill or otherwise, heat can kill or injure the landscaping by cooking growing tissue, warns J. W. Joy, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

Of course, a major fire on the home grounds such as a burning house or garage is one of the worst catastrophes. They actually may boil the sap within a tree and the cambium layer may cook and die. Damage otherwise may be confined to the side of the tree nearest the fire.

Frequently, fire damage to trees is more extensive than early examination indicates. Patience is virtue that pays off for tree friends thus affected. Where damage is severe, complete corrective care is best delayed for several months or even a full year. Only then will the extent of injury be fully apparent so that all dead bark and other injured parts can be cut away and waterproofed. Generous feeding plus watering in dry seasons are a standard part of the treatment. And the sooner done the better.

Undiluted canned consomme and bouillon both make an excellent base for a curry sauce for poultry, meat or shrimps.

Day Dedicated To All Fathers

By AUDREY DAWSON

Today is the day we honor and pay tribute to all the fathers. I found this portion of a poem by Robert Tristan Coffin I dedicate to all fathers who read my column — "What his son and his son's son will be — Is there for any man to see; — The father sits with wonder in his gaze — to see the sure design of his own days."

Hints To Groom

June is wedding month so if you are a groom, here's some hints. You are sharing the spotlight with the bride, and besides putting a flower in your buttonhole, you have do's and don'ts as important as those of the bride.

Buying the engagement ring is your first big expense. After that you can rest in relative peace supposedly, at least until shortly before the wedding.

Gifts Groom Buys

You are expected to buy a gift for the bride — always something for her personal adornment. You may present a corsage to the bride's mother, and, of course, you are responsible for the marriage license, wedding ring, clergyman's fee (which is placed in an envelope and turned over to the best man) and the honeymoon expenses.

Gifts to your attendants will be presented at your bachelor's dinner or sometime before the ceremony. The expense of that dinner is yours.

In most instances, you and the best man will follow the clergyman into the chancel. Usually it is considered more gallant for you to wait on the right side until the bride approaches and then merely take a step forward. You will then take the bride's right hand in your own right hand and draw it through your left arm and, at the same time, turning toward the chancel.

The best man will hand you the ring at the proper time, and if it is a double ring ceremony you will receive your ring immediately after the bride has received hers.

After the ceremony you will leave the church with your bride on your right arm.

All reservations, tickets and other arrangements should be ready when it is time to leave on your honeymoon. You do not wear your boutonniere after leaving the house. When bride is ready, she will call and you will meet with your attendants and parents for a last good by. Then it's a dash down the steps and you are off. From then on all responsibilities are yours.

Labels On Milk

Do you, Mrs. Homemaker, understand the differences in the contents of milk?

Pasteurized milk has been processed and handled under state regulations.

Homogenized means that the fat globules of pasturized whole milk have been broken up and spread through the liquid, so that they will not rise to top as cream.

Vitamin D. on a milk label means that more of this vitamin has been added to increase the vitamin D content of milk.

Certified milk is high quality, high cost milk produced on a limited scale.

Fluid skim milk contains no fat or vitamin A. Otherwise, it retains all nutrients of whole milk, calcium, protein, B vitamin and so on.

Evaporated milk is made from homogenized whole milk. All evaporated milk on retail market has vitamin D added. Over half the water in fluid milk is removed in evaporating processes.

Evaporated skim milk with vitamin D added is one of the newer forms of milk that you can buy.

Condensed milk is a concentrated product containing large amounts of sugar which serves to preserve it.

Dry whole milk is also marketed though on a small scale. It is used chiefly for infant feeding.

Chocolate flavored milk drinks are sold by the quart in food markets. To make these, cocoa or chocolate syrup is added to whole or skim milk.

Buttermilk is produced artificially with bacterial cultures, from pasteurized skim or partially skimmed milk.

Did you realize, Mrs. Homemaker, there were so many different milks on the market?

Steam Iron

I've answered a number of calls these past two weeks on cleaning the steam iron. I had this in my column in February but here it is again. Pour in ½ cup of vinegar and turn iron to steam and leave until all vinegar is steamed out. Another point to remember in care of your steam iron is to use distilled water. If you do not want to buy this you can save the water when you defrost your refrigerator. The ice that forms is pure and does not contain chemicals which are harmful to your iron.

Vacations Raise Hob With Garden

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The time has come when the nation is starting vacation, when week - end traffic near the city is bumper to bumper and we are being reminded of such burglar-proofing devices as stopping milk and paper deliveries.

A two or three week vacation away from home, however beneficial to family morale, is likely to raise hob with the garden. It has always seemed logical to me that the ideal time for a gardener's vacation away from home is dead of winter.

This obviously is impractical in most cases. So the best way to cope is to make certain someone is available to cut the lawn on a regular basis. Best solution to this is a swap with a neighbor who will take his vacation at a different period of the summer. But, whatever you do make grass-mowing plans long before you get out the suitcake.

The more difficult problem is the care and feeding of the garden beds. With luck, you may have fine, cloudless weather for your vacation. In that case, the plants may suffer from lack of water. The best most of us can do is to spend the last weekend before vacation thoroughly weeding and cultivating the garden, and covering all the unplanted soil with a deep blanket of mulch — peat moss, grass clippings or whatever you use. Then give the beds a thorough, deep drenching with the hose. And give the same water treatment to the lawn, particularly if it is a new one.

Sprinkling is one of the least useful occupations of a gardener at any time of the year. In summer, it can actually be harmful.

Lawns, if watered, should be thoroughly saturated with a soaker attached to the hose or a sprinkler set in place and allowed to run until the soil is set to a depth of at least three or four inches.

There are plastic soakers available, but I like even better a length of canvas in the shape of a hose which allows water to seep gently onto the soil and run into the ground without spraying on the leaves and blossoms of the plant material. Second best, I think, is placing the end of the hose on a flat board or stone to prevent digging a hole in the ground, and allowing a steady gentle stream to pour out.

Generally, it is a good idea in hot weather to avoid moistening the tops of the plants, particularly when the sun is hot and evaporation quick. If water is scarce, a root feeder is a good investment to bring water to tree and shrub roots.

Mulching and thorough watering is also required for the houseplants vacationing in a shady outdoor spot. Pack in the peat moss around and on top of the sunken pots.

And, last thing, make the rounds with sprayer and duster giving everything a good anti-pest treatment.

Mental Process Drug Reported

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)— A new drug that reportedly boosts mental processes has proved useful in treating problem children, a California doctor reported Saturday.

Using the drug, called Deanol, on children with behaviour problems, Dr. Leon Oettinger Jr. of Pasadena, found the children less irritable and less overactive.

The children also seemed to have a longer attention span and a better appetite, Dr. Oettinger said.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Center Displays Point Up Summer

By MARY M. JARDINE

Summertime arrangements were presented by members of the Sprig and Twig Garden Club of Monroe at the Garden Center this week. Mrs. R. F. Wilson created a lovely crescent design using a color scheme of green and white. The dark green oval shaped bowl was placed on a walnut base. The crescent line was established with green canna leaves tipped with maroon. The reverse side of the leaf was used showing the mid-rib and the leaves gracefully folded back to form the crescent line. The line was accented with snowy white gladiolus. A cool and beautiful arrangement for the living room.

Rain Lilies

Mrs. Max Kulcke designed an airy summer arrangement using a flat crystal bowl for a container. A curved branch of mimosa tree in bloom was placed in a slightly diagonal manner, simulating a tree. Low in the arrangements were placements of the lovely pink rain-lilies and lavender-pink cone flowers. A frond of wild fern was placed in the background adding depth and airiness to the design. The low crystal bowl was filled to the brim with water. Very dainty and cool for these hot summer days. Mimosa in bloom can be conditioned by cutting the branches with the flowers are just opening. Split the stem about an inch. Strip off any leaves not needed for decoration and condition overnight in deep water.

Mrs. Wilson also designed a dramatic yet simple design using our state flower, the Magnolia. A rectangular green bowl was selected for the design. Native iris foliage was placed in a vertical pattern in the background. Glossy magnolia foliage framed a bud and open bloom of the magnolia.

Gladys Kulcke designed a long lasting arrangement of succulents. No water is required for this design. The interesting carved cylinder container and matching base was of wood and finished in natural color. This was designed by the talented Max Kulcke. A diagonal design was achieved by placement of sansevieria, followed by green and white aloes. For a center of interest, rosettes of hen and chickens were placed in the foreground. Another stalk of hen and chickens with smaller rosettes trailed over the side of the container and was strengthened by another placement of sansevieria.

Magnolia Time

This is magnolia time and many of you would like to use the flowers for arrangements. Here are hints on conditioning. Select well-developed buds and allow to open indoors. Cut in late afternoon, and they will be fully open by morning. Tight buds required several days to open. Submerge open flowers in cold water until petals are crisp and form. Then lift and place stems in water until asranged. Handle carefuliy, petals bruise and brown at the slightest touch. It helps to dip flowers and hands in ice water before you start arranging. After the blossoms open they usually stay fresh for a day or two.

Roz Haas complimented the Garden Center by presenting us with a dramatic Father's Day arrangement. The container was a Japanese usabata, of black metal, antiquen in green. The dramatic triangular design in brilliant colors was created with bells of Ireland for a background, bright orange tritomas (red-hot pokers) and golden yellow yarrow. Be sure to remember Father today.

May we remind you of the Louisiana Peach Festival and the Peaches and Posies Flower Show at the Ruston Elementary School Gym on Wednesday, June 18. Time is 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. Garden Clubs and Home Demonstration Clubs are invited to enter in both the classes. Call the Garden Center for the eligible classes.

Bees Blamed For Spread Of Blight

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

This seems to be a bad year for fire blight. Apparently, the bees have carried it from the pear trees to many other trees and shrubs in the apply family. Apples and crabapples are badly infested in some communities. Cotoneasters have caught it, too. Quinces are fairly resistant to it, but even pyracanthas sometimes succumb to it later in the summer.

Bacteria

Fire blight is that bacterial disease that causes long limbs on pear trees to turn black and shrivel up. Ordinarily, it is not too bad on anything but the pear trees, but, in some seasons, it runs rampant.

Where the bees carried it to the apple blossoms, small spurs and twigs have turned black. Sometimes the apples and crabapples seem to resist its going very far, so it is hard to decide to cut out every bit of this disease because such drastic steps would remove most of the tree. While it is hard to do, about the best thing to do is to wait until growth stops and the wood hardens on trees and shrubs after mid-summer before attempting to remove fire blight from trees and shrubs.

In late July and August, you can cut out the blighted twigs and limbs. Two very definite things are necessary in this operation: 1. Cut several inches below the blighted section. 2. Be sure to dip your pruners into 70 per cent alcohol or formalin after each cut is made. Since the bacteria are in the sap below the infested parts, you have to go several inches into the healthy wood to cut still lower than where there are bacteria. All bacterial infections are easily spread, so you may do more harm than good unless you sterilize your tools each time a cut is made.

Kills Limbs

In some gardens, whole limbs of pyracanthas or cotoneasters have been killed by this fire blight. These should be cut out now to let in light and air that will stimulate the proper growth of new branches and help the shrub to recover. This cutting can be done right in the infected dead branches without any attempt to cut below the infection. Then you can clean up the blight in July and August. Do not forget to sterilize the pruners you use, either now or later in the summer!

If you care to know more about fire blight, write for Leaflet No. 187 U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Supt. of Documents, Washington, D. C. Enclose 5 cents. This bulletin applies more to orchards than to gardens but has a great deal of detailed information in it.

Aphid's Suction Rough On Trees

Aphids are a sticky problem to tree lovers. In fact, the tree lice are a brooding matter in more ways than one to some people.

Aphids, among the tiniest of tree pests, make up in sheer numbers what they lack in size.

And the wallop they pack in weakening trees makes them major pests in all parts of the country.

These malefactors suck away with much gusto on the undersides of leaves. They then produce the honeydew that drips on clothes and cars and which many people mistakenly believe is sap just oozing from trees. Aphids reproduce fantastically. This spells population buildup that may be too much for even the sturdiest woody monarchs.

Unless controlled — and now is a good time to start — they may cause serious leaf defoliation, C. A. Hoge, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co. And not just one, but two sprays, such as nicotine, are really required to keep the plant lice in check. That's because of the quick mass buildup of aphid progeny. Females even have the ability to produce certain broods without mating.

The second spray should be applied about two weeks after the first. At best, summer spraying is not fully effective unless handled as a neighborhood project.

Faliar sprays are not the only weapon against the pests. Formant spraying in late winter or early spring attacks them in the overwintering egg stage when they are most vulnerable.

Rose Society Lists Favorites In Buying Guide

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Before you pick out those new potted roses at your favorite nursery to plant in your garden this summer, ask the American Rose Society to send you a free copy of its 1958 Guide for Buying Roses.

This handy booklet lists the all-time favorites in every part of the country. More than 200,000 copies of it are distributed on request every year as a puplic service.

This year's supply is rapidly diminishing, so get that postcard in the mail right away. Address it to the society's headquarters, Columbus, Ohio.

Ratings given the roses in this listing are compiled from thousands of reports submitted by amateur gardeners throughout the United States. They appear in detail in the Proof of the Pudding section of the society's 1958 American Rose Annual. If you would like a copy of this practical guide to all phases of rose culture, ask your local bookdealer to get it for you, or write directly to the society.

Weed, Water Garden For Plant Growth

Now that your flower garden is up and growing you have only to keep the plants moving along without set-backs in order to have the biggest and best crop of flowers.

The business of continued, unchecked growth is important, and it involves several areas of activity. First of all, of course, you must keep the weeds down. As you know, the best time to catch weeds is when they're young and easy to kill. But even after a good clean-up it is necessary to keep an eye on the plants as they are developing, for all too often a weed seedling may come up so close to the flower that you don't spot it at first, and allowed to continue to grow it will rob the flower of moisture and fertility, stunting the plant growth.

Then, speaking of moisture, it is important to provide water when nature fails to do so. If you see the plants wilting in the late afternoon hours it is time to do a little irrigating. Overhead sprinkling is satisfactory at most stages of growth and for most plants, but flooding in rills down next to the rows of plants is better when the plants have actually begun to flower or for such kinds as zinnias which are apt to be attacked by mildrew if the foliage is damp for any length of time. The most vital point to remember when watering is that a surface sprinkling is worse than nothing at all. The ground may look soaking wet, and even have water running off rapidly, but only an inch or two down the soil may be perfectly dry. The way to avoid this situation is to water more slowly and for a much longer time. In other words, soak, don't sprinkle. A good check on the effectiveness of your watering is to turn over a spadeful of earth. If it is wet all the way down to the bottom of the spade depth you have accomplished your job.

Billy Graham Completes Cow Palace Effort

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Billy Graham preached the last evening sermon last night in his seven-week crusade at the Cow Palace.

He winds up the series today with an afternoon meeting, then rests until next Sunday when he'll hold a rally at Seals Stadium where he estimates 30,000 people will attend.

Graham preached Friday night to a capacity crowd of 16,500 on the excuses people give for not "making a decision for Christ."

There are no valid ones in the sight of God, he said.

God's forgiveness abounds even more than the sins of man, he declared, so there is no excuse for saying one has sinned too much.

"All Christ asks you to give up are your sins," he said of people who feel they have too much to give up.

THE HOME SHIFT

Still Time To Plant Hibiscus

By MILDRED SWIFT

There are lots of little jobs that should or can be done in June.

If you can find some seed of dwarf dahlias, plant them right away. They bloom profusely and make excellent cut flowers.

If you have a special occasion coming up in late summer and you'll need some glads, plant them now, if you can get the corms. These should have been planted in February. Flowers from corms planted now will be inferior, but better than no flowers at all. Glad thrips are active in hot weather, so, dust your plants with DDT.

It is not too late to plant hibiscus. These are planted in buckets and can be carefully removed so the plant will hardly know it has been moved. These plants will bloom until frost so you'll get your money's worth. Visit your nursery and get the varieties you like best, while they're in bloom.

Transplanting

Zinnias and some other plants resent transplanting in hot weather. Their roots seem to be sensitive to light. In this case, transplant late in the afternoon or at night and be very careful not to expose the roots.

Then, give the plant a drink of starter solution, made by dissolving a tablespoon or two fo complete fertilizer in a quart of water. Pour one cup of this around each small plant. Use 5-10-5 or 8-8-8 or any similar formula.

Cannas

Cannas are among our most beautiful summer plants. Let me remind you again to dust with DDT or cryolite about once a week. Open the leaf and get the dust down in the rolled leaf where the insect is probably hiding.

Century Plant

Somebody sent me a picture of a century plant in bloom. Consulting with Mrs. Jardine and her collection of garden encyclopedias we find this is not the plant that we call the century plant. She says the botanical name of the blooming type is Agave Americano and is a member of the amaryllis family.

This species that blooms must be ten years old before it rewards you with a flower. The flower is born on a candle-like stem about 12 feet tall. The yellow blossoms branch out from each side of the stem.

Here and There

Many of you are having lots of garden debris now, such as weeds and grass clippings. Those materials are valuable in your compost pile. If you've never built one, simply pile the material up and let it rot. That's a crude method and takes a longer time but you'll not waste that valuable material.

Some fall blooming plants such as dahlias and mums will need staking, if you didn't stake them when planting. Tie the plants to the stakes as they grow, never allowing them to fall over.

If your caladiums appear droopy, the cause may be not enough light. There is a mistaken belief that caladiums must have shade. True, they like some shade but they can be grown in full sun and do quite well.

Fertilizers

A light sprinkling of nitrogen fertilizer around plants and on the lawn is advisable, now or in late June. Especially on the lawn. The heavy rains washed away the nitrogen that's in the soil.

Also, if you have a mulch around plants, that mulch tends to tie up the nitrogen and makes it unavailable to the plants. Remember, though, the nitrogen is strong. Use very sparingly and soak down well or it will burn. There are several kinds of nitrogen, so talk to your seed dealer about the amount to use.

Congratulations!

To Ouachita Parish Police Jury, citizens, library board and people of West Monroe: The new library is a beautiful structure, the furnishings "just right"; the landscaping outstanding. While greeting people last Sunday who attended the open house, we reminisced a bit about a similar occasion twelve years ago when the old library building was opened. We were justly proud of that achievement. That was progress. It is a compliment to you people that you make use of your library facilities to such an extent that you soon out-grew the 106 Cypress setup. That's progress, too.

They're New

Have you seen the new lights for outdoors? Many of us do not have outside wiring to take care of the many attractive and useful lamps that are on the market.

These lamps are mounted on an iron rod, the shade is lantern style and you burn kerosene. Better still there's a fluid that's sold with the lamp and wick that is bug repellent. These provide soft, inexpensive light for patio or porch.

Also, new (to me) is the hinged zipper foot, something we've needed for a long time. I've found it wonderful for making the two-piece corded buttonhole. The cord-ones are so easy, almost fail-proof and really beautiful. You can buy the tiny little cording for this buttonhole at the notion counters. Come to see me and I'll show you how to make this type button hole.

Announcements

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Mrs. Lillian Yates will show us uses and care of table linens; Tuesday, Mrs. Eloise Edwards will give us some hints for invitations and place cards; Wednesday, flower arrangements; Thursday and Friday, "What's New in the World of Foods," with Reid Grigsby and Betty Woods from Baton Rouge. See you next Sunday.

Grads Learn Job Hunting Is Problem

By GERALD MOSES
United Press International

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A large percentage of graduates of New Orleans high schools are taking a post graduate course in economics this month — learning that "recession" means a tighter job market for them.

State and private employment agencies say these youngsters hav come up against a slim employers' market for the first time in several years, in which demands are for higher qualifications and experience than most graduates have.

Summer employment is practically non-existent, state employment commissioner James Messina said, and it is the biggest problem faced by employment agencies in connection with the new workers. "More and more of these young people want to go to college, and there just aren't enough summer jobs for them."

More Jobs For Girls

Messina agreed with private employment counselors that prospects for employment were brighter for girls just out of high school than for boys. But the girls still face an employer's market, even though one private counselor says girls asking for office work are better trained and qualified than ever before.

"This is the saddest story I can think of," said Mrs. Charlene Bayou. "Most of the girls trained two years for a stenographer's job, and it was good, solid training. Quite a few of them are taking jobs as filing clerks, and will lose most of their shorthand ability by the time they get a chance to use it."

"Employers are more exacting as to experience now," said Floyd Robertson, another private counselor. "The larger companies like to hire men with their military obligations finished."

Boys Are Enlisting

Military obligations can be met by joining reserve programs of the armed services, he said, but this involves arranging for two weeks' active duty training each year. "Quite a few boys are enlisting to get their service obligations out of the way."

The "quite a few" caused the air force recruiting office in New Orleans to be described as "swamped" by a recruiting officer.

"We've had a lot more enlistments than we had at this time last year," the officer said.

An Army recruiting sergeant said enlistments were up considerably over last year, and made up mostly of newly graduated high school students. "A lot of them want to get their service obligations over," the sergeant said. "Some feel special schools offered in the Army will help them once they get out."

Similar conditions were reported at Navy and Marine Corps recruiting offices.

Watch For Twig Litter In Back Yard

Backyard fallout can be a danger sign for your trees.

This fallout has nothing to do with radiation levels. It is the amount of dead twigs on the lawn after a Summer rain or windstorm has passed.

And merely letting the chips fall where they may can sound the death knell for woody sentinels. So warns L. F. Irvine, field respresentative of the Davey Tree Expert Co., who points out excessive twig fall is a symptom of declining arboreal health.

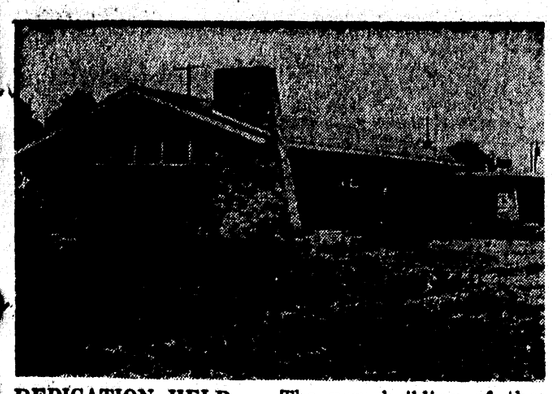

If your back yard is chronically twig-littered, chances are pet trees need victuals badly along with strategic pruning. Careful thinning alone is a temporary expedient. Providing blue-plate specials of tree food high in nitrogen content is a better answer.

Fer at this stage of the growing season, tree friends may show tangible results of restored vigor in a few weeks, with lusher foliage and lesser twig fallout. However, all feeding is most effective when done on an annual basis.

Feeding trees is a painstaking operation. It is best done by the punchbar or drill method. This means the making of many small holes no more than 18 inches apart. These should be filled with small amounts of the high-nitrogen food.

For clay soils, peat moss rather than top soil should be used to fill the holes after food is applied. This retains water and is a big help in root aeration. Deep watering is a major factor in feeding. Be sure that your trees get adequate drinks in hot weather.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I have been told that America is a Christian nation. If there is so, why is there so much crime and immorality here where there are more churches than anywhere in the world? S. C.

ANSWER: There is no such thing as a Christian nation, nor can there be. Only individuals are capable of becoming Christians. America has been considered Christian because it has had more Christian influence than any other. The early settlers were mainly Christian, and there was no other major religion adopted. Churches have usually exerted social and political influence and there has been a moral and ethical consciousness pervading our entire national life. Several presidents and other top men in government have been devoted Christians. Our nation has periodically felt the mighty sweeping of revival.

But as long as there are those who personally do not receive Christ and become personally Christian, there will be violence and crime. As long as there is one person who has not been transformed by the gospel's power, there will be immorality and crime, at least the possibility of it. If every person were converted, their children would not therefore be Christian; and unless they, too, were influenced to receive Christ themselves, it is possible that in a short time a totally pagan nation might emerge.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I have been told that America is a Christian nation. If there is so, why is there so much crime and immorality here where there are more churches than anywhere in the world? S. C.

ANSWER: There is no such thing as a Christian nation, nor can there be. Only individuals are capable of becoming Christians. America has been considered Christian because it has had more Christian influence than any other. The early settlers were mainly Christian, and there was no other major religion adopted. Churches have usually exerted social and political influence and there has been a moral and ethical consciousness pervading our entire national life. Several presidents and other top men in government have been devoted Christians. Our nation has periodically felt the mighty sweeping of revival.

But as long as there are those who personally do not receive Christ and become personally Christian, there will be violence and crime. As long as there is one person who has not been transformed by the gospel's power, there will be immorality and crime, at least the possibility of it. If every person were converted, their children would not therefore be Christian; and unless they, too, were influenced to receive Christ themselves, it is possible that in a short time a totally pagan nation might emerge.

Benjamin Franklin held honorary degrees of doctor from both Oxford and St. Andrews Universities in Britain.

Seventh-Day Adventists Open Church

The Monroe Seventh-day Adventist Church held special opening services on June 7, with Elder L. C. Evans of Dallas, Tex., president of the Southwestern Unioon Conference, of Seventh-day Adventists as the guest speaker.

Mrs. James Ackerman, of the voice department of Southern Missionary College, one of a chain of senior colleges operated by the denomination, located near Chatanooga, Tennessee, was the guest soloist. Mrs. Ackerman is the laughter of Elder and Mrs. I. M. Evans, brother of the speaker and president of the Arkansas-Louisiana Conference.

The new church is located on the corner of Sandel Drive and Oaklawn streets, in Broadmoor addition. The building is brick and of modern architecture. Architects for the building were the Paul Stewart company. The building design was selected by the church board, Elder J. S. Jameson, pastor, and Lea Facundus as local lay-leader. M. L. Brady, of West Monroe was contractor.

Other church officials and out of town guests included Elder and Mrs. I. M. Evans of Little Rock, Arkansas, Elder and Mrs. W. G. Larson, Home Missionary and Sabbath School Secretary of the Arkansas - Louisiana Conference and Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Norsworthy of Little Rock. Mr. Norsworthy is Secretary-Treasurer of the local conference.

The afternoon program consisted of a "singspiration" and short addresses by different visitors and friends. Mr. Mark Dickinson, of Lake Charles, Louisiana was in charge of the singing.

The church will hold regular weekly services, in addition to special services, as announced from time to time and the public is invited to visit the new church and worship with the Monroe congregation at any services of the church, the pastor stated.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of clubs.

It is sound practice for declarer before playing to the first trick to pause for the purpose of asking himself several questions. Among these two impress me as being of prime importance: (a) I wonder what the lead was from? (b) Is there any adverse distribution against which I will lose the contract? If so, can I protect myself against such a holding?

Without observing this ritual, South, the declarer in today's hand, is in fair way of incurring a loss on a contract which is truly ironclad. The bidding is routine.

The opening lead is the three of clubs. If declarer plays casually he will duck the first trick, and with that one gesture will toss the game out the window. East will win with the king and clear the suit. When West is in with the ace of spades, the club suit is run for the setting tricks.

Proper technique calls for the play of the ace of clubs to the first trick. This conclusion will be reached on very simple logic. To the question, "What holding will defeat my contract?" the answer is, "Five clubs in the West hand plus the ace of spades."

If West has only four clubs the contract cannot be lost, since the opposition can do no better than take three club tricks and their ace. From what is West leading? There are a number of combinations, but one thing is certain.

He is not leading from the king, queen, jack, because with that holding he would have led the king and not the three. So East definitely has one of the honors. Now if West has five clubs, which is the only thing declarer should fear, East will have only two, and since one of them must be an honor, the suit will be blocked if the ace is played to the first trick.

Let us see how this works. Dummy plays the ace. If East Dummy plays the ace. If East unblocks with the king declarer will have another club stopper. If East retains the king, a spade is led and West wins with the ace, but the club suit cannot be run. The same would be true if East's club honor were the jack or the queen.

SERVED 5-YEAR TERMS

Red China Frees Catholic Priests

HONG KONG (UP)—Communist China Saturday freed two American Roman Catholic priests who served out five-year terms in Red prisons on spy and sabotage charges.

Released were fathers Joseph P. McCormick, a Maryknoll priest from Ossining, N.Y., and Cyril Wagner, a Franciscan priest from Pittsburgh, Pa.

Both told the United Press International Hong Kong bureau by telephone from Shanghai that they were in good health and "feel great." They said they would leave Shanghai by ship for Hong Kong next Friday.

The release of fathers McCormick and Wagner left four Americans still in Red Chinese prisons. Two are serving life sentences, one a 20-year term and the other a 15-year term. All are civilians.

McCormick and Wagner were arrested on June 15, 1953, and convicted by a Red Chinese court —McCormick on charges of "collecting military, political and economic information" and Wagner for "sabotaging Chinas's financial ordinance."

Both spent three years in Shanghai's notorious Ward Road jail. In 1956 they and other American priests were transferred to a five-room house where they were kept under guard.

Wagner told the UPI by telephone that he was in and out of jail hospital because of his health. He suffers from a serious asthmatic condition.

In fact, he said he was in the hospital when prison authorities advised him he was free. "I'm feeling great now," he said. "My asthma is not bothering me."

McCormick said he felt fine too. He said he and Wagner went almost immediately to the British consulate in Shanghai to get visas for Hong Kong.

Still held in Red prisons are John T. Downey, New Britain, Conn., Richard C. Fecteau, Lynn, Mass., Robert W. McCann, Altadena, Calif., and Hugh F. Redmond, Yonkers, N. Y.

Bossier Church Board Opposes Resolution

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — The official board of the First Methodist church of Bossier City Friday denounced a resolution adopted by the Louisiana Methodist Conference which opposed a close down any public school ordered to integrate.

The Bossier City church group said the resolution violated "the time honored principle of separation of church and state," and "presented a false impression to the friends of the Methodist church, both white and Negro."

The state Methodist conference adopted the measure during final sessions of an annual meeting May 30 in Shreveport.

Members of the Bossier City Methodist group said they were "firmly against any integration and against any action that would tend to encourage integration."

YOUR PROBLEMS

Right Kind Of Prayer Good At Any Time

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: Our son attends a parochial school. He excels in athletics and is on the football and basketball teams. The physical education director is a young clergyman who is very popular with the students. During the football season he encouraged the boys to kneel in prayer before the opening kickoff of each half.

This caused a great deal of comment in our city. Even some of the parochial school parents didn't like it.

A committee is being formed to discuss this matter over the summer. Some of us feel that prayer is out of place on the football field. We would appreciate your views on the subject. —Committee Chairman

Dear Committee Chairman: It all depends on what the boys pray for. If they seek God's help to win a football game, I agree it's not only out of place, but out of grace.

If the boys pray, not for victory, but for help to do their best —and if they pray for the safety of their opponents and their teammates as well as themselves, then there should be no criticism.

Dear Ann: Loneliness can do strange things to people. Please help me decide which is the lesser of two evils — and for heaven's sake —Be practical!

I'm working in a strange town far from family and friends. I became attracted to a man who was different from anyone I'd ever known. Our backgrounds couldn't have been more dissimilar — economic, social, education and religious. If I'd met him back home my parents would not have let him in the house. He would have been considered a bum.

I'm ashamed to say it but we became intimate. I know it was wrong, but I was infatuated and terribly lonely. He made it clear he'd see me on his terms, or not at all.

He promised to get a steady job and cut down on the drinking. He even agreed to take a night school course in English. I loaned him money. Well, he didn't keep any of the promises and I know now he'll never change. Three weeks ago I told him we were through.

I miss him so much I could die. He keeps phoning but I know he's interested only in the physical side of our relationship. My head says one thing but my heart disagrees.

I plan to leave this town and go home for good in two months. Shall I relieve my aching heart and see him again? I have nothing to lose, frankly speaking, so why not enjoy a few last flings? Please help me. I'm —Miserable

Those "few last flings" could fling you right into a maternity ward. Stay away from this man. Girls who think they have "nothing to lose" usually wind up losing a lot more than they counted on.

This relationship is neither head nor heart. It's chemical. My advice is to get on the next thing that moves and go home.

Dear Ann: My wife and I have been fighting about something for 17 years. She insists that married people should feel free to open each other's mail if they want to.

Never in my life have I opened a letter which was not addressed to me. My wife rips open and reads everything that comes to the house. She claims there should be no "secrets" between a man and his wife. I maintain it's not a matter of "secrets" it's a matter of respect for individual privacy. Who is right? —W.R.L.

I'm with you. Odd how some people offer strangers more courtesy and consideration than those who are near and dear to them.

Individuals who open mail addressed to others display a basic immaturity. In families where there is mutual respect and confidence everyone opens his own mail, and if he feels like it, he shares it with other members of the family.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The word "lens" for eyeglasses is derived from the lentil bean which a biconvex lens resembles.

Descendants Of African Origin Said 28-Million

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State University professor of sociology and anthropology says more than 28 million white persons in the United States are descendants of persons of African origin.

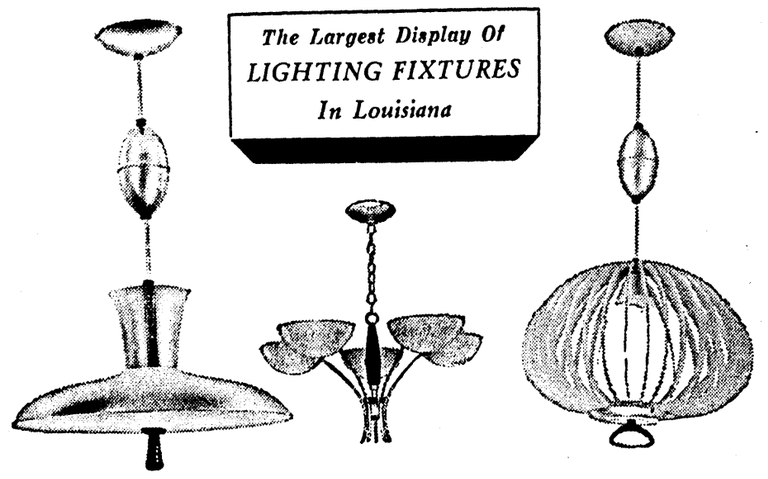

The majority of these are classified as white, Robert P. Stuckert reports in the current issue of the Ohio Journal of Science.

Stuckert is assistant professor in the university's department of sociology and anthropology. He said he drew these conclusions from a genetic study of African and non-African population in this country from 1790 through 1950.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Right Kind Of Prayer Good At Any Time

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: Our son attends a parochial school. He excels in athletics and is on the football and basketball teams. The physical education director is a young clergyman who is very popular with the students. During the football season he encouraged the boys to kneel in prayer before the opening kickoff of each half.

This caused a great deal of comment in our city. Even some of the parochial school parents didn't like it.

A committee is being formed to discuss this matter over the summer. Some of us feel that prayer is out of place on the football field. We would appreciate your views on the subject. —Committee Chairman

Dear Committee Chairman: It all depends on what the boys pray for. If they seek God's help to win a football game, I agree it's not only out of place, but out of grace.

If the boys pray, not for victory, but for help to do their best —and if they pray for the safety of their opponents and their teammates as well as themselves, then there should be no criticism.

Dear Ann: Loneliness can do strange things to people. Please help me decide which is the lesser of two evils — and for heaven's sake —Be practical!

I'm working in a strange town far from family and friends. I became attracted to a man who was different from anyone I'd ever known. Our backgrounds couldn't have been more dissimilar — economic, social, education and religious. If I'd met him back home my parents would not have let him in the house. He would have been considered a bum.

I'm ashamed to say it but we became intimate. I know it was wrong, but I was infatuated and terribly lonely. He made it clear he'd see me on his terms, or not at all.

He promised to get a steady job and cut down on the drinking. He even agreed to take a night school course in English. I loaned him money. Well, he didn't keep any of the promises and I know now he'll never change. Three weeks ago I told him we were through.

I miss him so much I could die. He keeps phoning but I know he's interested only in the physical side of our relationship. My head says one thing but my heart disagrees.

I plan to leave this town and go home for good in two months. Shall I relieve my aching heart and see him again? I have nothing to lose, frankly speaking, so why not enjoy a few last flings? Please help me. I'm —Miserable

Those "few last flings" could fling you right into a maternity ward. Stay away from this man. Girls who think they have "nothing to lose" usually wind up losing a lot more than they counted on.

This relationship is neither head nor heart. It's chemical. My advice is to get on the next thing that moves and go home.

Dear Ann: My wife and I have been fighting about something for 17 years. She insists that married people should feel free to open each other's mail if they want to.

Never in my life have I opened a letter which was not addressed to me. My wife rips open and reads everything that comes to the house. She claims there should be no "secrets" between a man and his wife. I maintain it's not a matter of "secrets" it's a matter of respect for individual privacy. Who is right? —W.R.L.

I'm with you. Odd how some people offer strangers more courtesy and consideration than those who are near and dear to them.

Individuals who open mail addressed to others display a basic immaturity. In families where there is mutual respect and confidence everyone opens his own mail, and if he feels like it, he shares it with other members of the family.

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Bossier Church Board Opposes Resolution

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — The official board of the First Methodist church of Bossier City Friday denounced a resolution adopted by the Louisiana Methodist Conference which opposed a close down any public school ordered to integrate.

The Bossier City church group said the resolution violated "the time honored principle of separation of church and state," and "presented a false impression to the friends of the Methodist church, both white and Negro."

The state Methodist conference adopted the measure during final sessions of an annual meeting May 30 in Shreveport.

Members of the Bossier City Methodist group said they were "firmly against any integration and against any action that would tend to encourage integration."

Descendants Of African Origin Said 28-Million

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio State University professor of sociology and anthropology says more than 28 million white persons in the United States are descendants of persons of African origin.

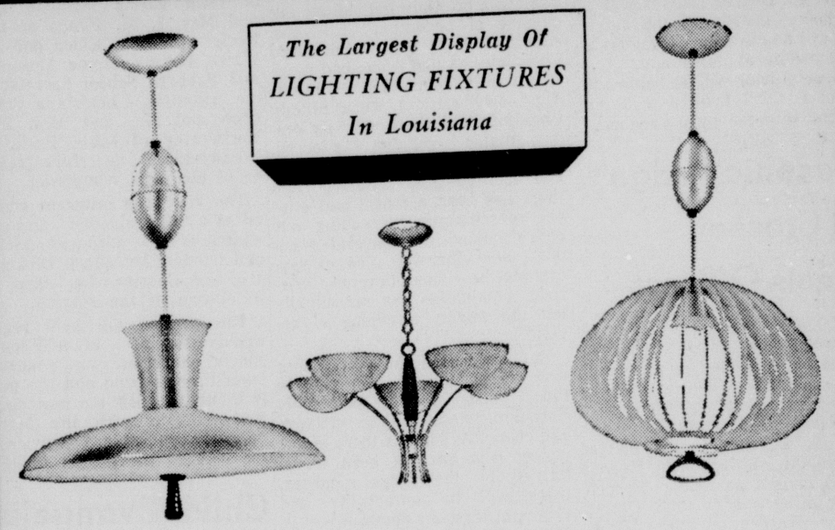

The majority of these are classified as white, Robert P. Stuckert reports in the current issue of the Ohio Journal of Science.

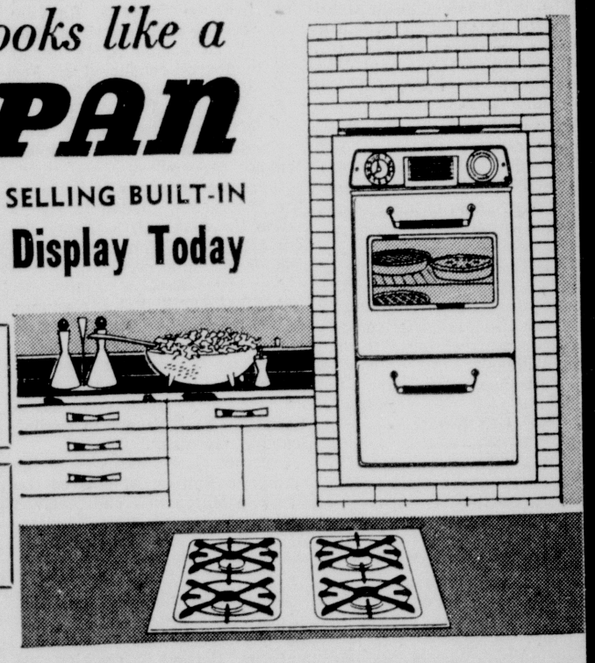

Stuckert is assistant professor in the university's department of sociology and anthropology. He said he drew these conclusions from a genetic study of African and non-African population in this country from 1790 through 1950.

Recalls Fury Of Storm That Struck Kansas City

By MRS. EARL F. CAMPBELL
For The Kansas City Star

KANSAS CITY (AP)—I arrived at my Ruskin Heights home from work that Monday evening, May 30, 1957, at about the usual time, tired as usual. Marge, the high school senior who was living with us, was talking on the phone to a friend.

In the middle of something Marge was telling him, she paused, listened a minute and slammed the receiver down so hard she scared Calico, the kitten she had on her lap.

"He makes me so mad!" she fumed. "He hung up on me! Why would he do a thing like that?"

I walked over to the west window and scanned the sky.

"There's a storm somewhere near," I told her, "and there is probably trouble on the line."

She was out of her dress and shoes and into bed by the time I turned around.

"Well, maybe," she conceded, "but he still makes me so mad."

I finished the paper, ate a sandwich, fed the two dogs, Marge's kitten and my three cats, and then I sat down intending to read a magazine. I couldn't relax though. There seemed to be an uneasiness in the air.

In five minutes I was up walking from windows to doors and back to windows again, scanning the sky.

Doors

I went to the open front door and saw that the little, ragged, feathered edges of cloud moving over the house were beginning to churn and boil and whip about! I had seen that several times before down in southwest Missouri where I have grown up — and my heart nearly stopped!

I ran into Marge's room, shook her awake and cried: "Get into some clothes. Hurry! It's time we got out of here!"

I grabbed her hand and we fled the house. A small group was gathered in front of Schraders, looking toward the sky and I called out to ask if we could come in the basement.

Somebody called, "Join the party," and I pushed Marge on ahead of me and paused one moment to look back at my house.

I can see it yet, standing there so pretty and friendly looking, with lamplight glowing softly through the dogwood-hued drapes I had made and hung just about a year ago, and the light streaming brightly through the front door I hadn't closed.

I looked up, and there, maybe six blocks away, was the ugly cloud resembling a great mastodon's trunk, hanging, it seemed to me, motionless. For a second more, I, to, was motionless. Then I shouted:

'My God!'

"My God! There's the funnel! Get to the basement!"

I'm sure my warning wasn't the least bit necessary, because suddenly everyone was running into the house, out through the attached garage, past Mr. Schrader's red automobile and down the steps into the basement.

I grabbed Marge's hand again and almost dragged her in my haste to get her into the southwest corner. I pushed her down and told her to stay down and cover her head with her arms. I threw my arms up over my head as the first tremendous crash came.

Marge started a scream which was drowned out almost as quickly as it started. She jumped to her feet, I grabbed her coat and dragged her down again and held her down, keeping my free arm over my own head as all hell broke loose above us. I felt as though I would choke on the dust and small debris that pelted us as the basement windows shattered.

All the demons of the lower regions seemed loosed on our particular part of the world! They howled and roared as the giant whirlwind played through the house above. My ears rang with a high pitched whine.

Then, it was gone, and a stillness as deep as a country midnight set in. It wasn't quite dark there in the basement, for on a low table or bench across the room a candle was still burning. I hadn't even noticed it,but there it was twinkling in the gradually settling dust.

Stood

Mrs. Schrader stood to one side of me, holding in her arms her tiny baby. Marge was quiet now, too, and not moving. We might as well have been stone figures huddled there in the corner against the basement wall. The silence was broken as Mrs. Schrader said in a flat, calm voice:

"The house is gone."

I stepped up on a chair and looked out through what had been a window, and the scene in the eerie, false dawn of light which still remained over Rushkin Heights could have been framed and labeled "Desolation."

"Everything is gone," I told them. I can remember feeling nothing but very slight amazement.

One of the men suddenly cried out:

"Let's get out of here before the gas catches!"

That sent us all scurrying for the stairs where we clawed our way up over the debris which partially choked the stairwell. A minute or so later, I was standing in the middle of what had been Schrader's garage trying to comprehend the completeness of the destruction. I turned and looked after the retreating storm, chewing its way on into the northeast, lashing the earth with its deadly tail.

Back

As I turned back to stare at the gaping emptiness where my house had stood, I saw somewhere down the trail of debris a huge orange plume go rocketing skyward.

"Something just exploded!" I cried.

People had begun to emerge from other basements, and we were calling up and down the block to determine if everyone was present and accounted for.

I looked around for my cats and dogs, but I didn't see them.

We started looking for anything of mine that might still be around in its original shape.

After an hour of gleaning in the rubble, I wearily straightened up and stood there a moment. There wasn't much activity on our block now.

Back toward what had been our shopping center, I could hear the wail of sirens, shouts muted by the distance, and I could see the searchlights beginning to criss-cross the sky with darting fingers.

I heard the soft gurgle of water coming from the place where the pipe had led into the house, and the hiss of gas from the ruptured line. I sniffed the air and the odor was horrible.

ALGERIA

De Gaulle Comes To Mountains

ALGIERS (AP) — Premier de Gaulle, like Mohammed, has come to the mountain.

He stands before it in Algeria, pleading for peace. He has a program, he says, that will bestow freedom and equality on the nine million Arabs. He hopes to achieve, by this plan, what the French army has not been able to do by force of arms—nor the savage Moslem rebellion against French rule in this beautiful country.

The mountain remains silent, brooding, enigmatic.

In Algeria today, "the mountain" signifies the remote, rock-protected centers of rebellion.

In its name, hideous cruelties are committed. Others follow in reprisal. Blood runs in the vineyards, wheatfields, scented orange groves. It stains the gleaming white cities on the edge of the Mediterranean.

The struggle is now nearly four years old.

It menaces France, primarily. But it reaches out dangerously toward the United States, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and all the nations of the free world. It has these implications:

Soviet

1. The Soviet Union, "scavenger of revolutions," is feeding on this one. The Communists will try to take control of the Algerian rebellion as they took control of those in Indochina, and before then in China.

2. Anything that weakens France automatically weakens NATO, of which France is a keystone. The Moslem revolt has tied down nearly a half million French troops. The cost to France is variously estimated at 800 million dollars to one billion dollars a year, seriously aggravating France's financial problems.

3. A French defeat in Algeria, especially if Communist-directed, will add impetus to the Soviet drive in the Middle East. Vice versa, if De Gaulle can effect a sound working relationship with the Moslems here—thus robbing the Communists of their slogan of "colonialism" and "imperialism" —the danger to the Middle East will be that much diminished.

In short, whatever happens in Algeria can profoundly influence the worldwide struggle between the Kremlin and the free nations.

At this moment, De Gaulle comes forward with an olive branch and a new deal for the Moslems.

Charles Andre Marie Joseph de Gaulle is a strange and powerful personality. He is stubborn, stiff-backed, often glacial. He burns with cold fire. He is one of the most impelling figures on the world stage today.

What does his new deal provide?

He has not spelled it out in detail. Using his elegant, literary style of speech, he mingles specific points with cryptic allusions.

In general, he proposes that Algeria become a part of France in every respect — political, economic and social.

"Starting today," he says, "there are only 10 million Frenchmen in Algeria with absolutely the same rights and duties." The Moslem population of the country numbers nearly nine million.

Next, he speaks of an imminent national vote on revising the constitution of France to strengthen the executive branch of the government.

"In three months, the 10 million Frenchmen living in Algeria will participate with the whole of France in a great referendum when France will decide her destiny."

He strongly urges the Moslems to go to the polls, assuring them that "their votes will carry equal weight with the votes of all other Frenchmen."

He refers

Finally, he refers to a single assembly, "to which the Moslems will send their representatives." What will it do? Here he becomes cryptic.

"With these elected representatives," he says "we shall see how to do the rest."

At this point the great guessing game begins.

In France and Algeria alike, armies of analysts are trying to read the message of the Sphinx.

Does De Gaulle mean that each of the 15 departments of Algeria will send deputies to the National Assembly in Paris, the number based on population? That could mean, in the maximum, a bloc of Algerian votes equal to perhaps one sixth of the total.

Or is he thinking of a confederation of French states? In a speech in Brazzaville 14 years ago De Gaulle mapped a blueprint for a "French union," in which the parts of what was then the French empire would be in somewhat the same relationship to France as the British Commonwealth nations are to Britain.

SCIENCE

Signs There's One Less Continent

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — There are suspicious new signs we have one less continent than we think.

Instead of being a great continent, Antarctica is perhaps twins, split by a deep strait or trough hidden thousands of feet under ice.

The separate parts of Antarctica might even be groups of islands and mountains sticking up above sea level, if all the ice melted.

Antarctica, mostly buried by ice, is estimated as embracing about six million square miles. It has been thought to be mostly land, almost a round continent in shape but indented by two frozen seas—the Weddell and Ross seas.

One theory is these two seas are joined by a strait running some 1,000 to 1,500 miles.

The newest discovery is that a deep trough does indeed run at least 300 miles "inland" from the Weddell Sea. It may go deeper—U. S. explorers turned back after tracing it that far. The trough bottom is 3,500 feet below sea level.

Other U. S. scientists this fall will look for the trough on the opposite side of Antarctica. If they discover one running deep inland, toward this one, it would be an additional strong sign that the trough or strait cuts all the way through.

They might possibly trace it most of the way across.

Discovery of the 300-mile trough from the Weddell Sea is reported by Dr. Edward Thiel, University of Wisconsin seismologist who spent last year in Antarctica and led the overland exploration party.

After spending the winter at Ellsworth station, he and four companions made an 81-day tractor journey of nearly 1,000 miles.

Striking south, they discovered a great buried island, 175 by 110 miles, rising 3,000 feet above sea level.

Every 30 miles along the journey, the team set off explosives to measure the depth of the ice covering land or sea bottom below. Every five miles they measured gravity and magnetism for facts on the composition and nature of the terrain below.

They rolled south to the Dufek Massif, a mountain range rising 9,000 feet high, poking its peaks above the snow. Here were several dry valleys; in one was a lake formed from melted snow and ice.

"Maybe this was the southernmost lake in the world," Dr. Thiel says. "The lake contained abundant plant life, while nothing grew anywhere around. It was completely isolated life. We brought some plants back for identification and study by botanists, but haven't had a report on them yet."

Turning west, the party pushed over near Mt. Hassage. They then retraced part of their path before being picked up by plane and flown back to Ellsworth station when their relief ship was ready to leave.

Dr. Thiel's companions were Hugo A. C. Neuberg, chief glaciologist; Nolan B. Aughenbaugh, geologist; John C. Behrendt, assistant seismologist; and Paul T. Walker, assistant glaciologist.

Try To Convert Christian Men

TORONTO (AP)—Donald Wade, theology professor at Knox College, says Buddhists in Asia have a school training 2,000 missionaries to introduce reforms among Christians. Wade told a Presbyterian meeting the missionaries are being taught in a five year-program they must save the world from what is termed failures of Christianity.

Bogota, Caracas Are Apart

By LARRY ALLEN

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)— It's only 781 air miles between this capital city of Colombia and Caracas, Venezuela, but they are worlds apart in the treatment accorded U.S. citizens.

Here there is warmth, sympathy and friendliness. In Caracas there is coolness that borders upon open hostility.

A passenger alighting here walks through two lines of smiling, blue-uniformed customs guards into the airport administration building. Passengers are informed over a loudspeaker: "You will pass through in just a moment, please, after immigration and customs formalities. While you are waiting, this is to welcome you to Colombia. Please have a cup of our fine coffee."

A white-jacketed boy immediately starts serving coffee—backbone of this nation's economy.

There's a quick look at passports and health cards and the passenger is ushered into the baggage reception room. Each passenger opens his suitcase but rarely does a customs official touch any of the contents. There's merely a glance and a smile, the traveler is on his way.

The whole process averages from 5 to 10 minutes, a far cry from what happens to the passenger—particularly a North American—who lands at Maiquetia, the airport for Venezuela's capital city of Caracas.

Soldiers and national guardsmen, wearing steel helmets, carrying rifles, pistols, or even submachineguns, are on guard at Maiquetia. They bunch all passengers together and lead them to the airport administration building.

Then comes the long wait—5 minutes to two hours or more—before a traveler is called to present his passport and health card.

Every passport and health card is rigidly inspected. At another desk a Venezuelan, with a soldier looking on, flips through the cards in a filing cabinet, just to make sure no enemy of the state is trying to enter. After that, there's a rush by passengers for another room where 6 to 10 Venezuelans are typing out entry index cards. Here the wait can easily run into an hour.

Then, if a passenger doesn't have any Venezuelan money, he has to stand in line to wait until he gets some.

Finally, he pushed through soldier guarded doors into the baggage room where Venezuelans take their time about locating and delivering baggage. Once suitcases are opened, the customs employes usually rummage thoroughly through contents. When this is over, a customs employe slaps a stamp on baggage but it gets another scrutiny by an armed soldier who finally clears luggage to be taken out to a taxi, or private car.

The traveler then gets his first introduction to prices in Venezuela—the highest anywhere in Latin America, and topping peak prices in the United States.

Taxi drivers take passengers into Caracas—12 miles away—for the equivalent of 10 or 12 U. S. dollars. But if the driver believes you are a North American the price shoots up to $15.

Rarely does any Venezuelan give an American a smile, or say "thank you" when he is tipped. The American usually receives hostile stares or studied indifference.

Americans, other foreigners, and Venezuelans not only have to get exit visas to leave, but they also must show they don't owe any income taxes or any debts.

All this is in marked contrast to what happens in Colombia. Whenever you want to leave this country, all you have to do is to buy a plane or ship ticket, and have a visa for wherever you are going.

Here there's a smile from hotel employes, Colombians on the street, and an eagerness to be helpful and understanding. And Colombians say "thank you."

FATHER CURREN

Varied Career Is Remembered

Diamonds and silver have unusual meaning for Father Dennis Curren, assistant pastor of Our Lady of Fatima Church.

The diamonds recall to him a part of a varied career—which included pitching for the St. Louis Cardinals. He has also been a law student, soldier, sailor and sportsman.

Silver refers to his 25th anniversary as an ordained priest, and the Silver Jubilee testimonial dinner which is to be given for him here Sunday by the Progressive Men's Club.

While working out with the St. Louis Browns, Father Curren once beaned George Sisler, member of baseball's Hall of Fame. The priest knew the baseball greats of the day, including Walter Johnson, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Dizzy Dean and Ty Cobb.

A long-time friend of Bishop Charles P. Greco of Alexandria, Father Curren first met him at a ball game. At that time, the Rev. Greco was assistant pastor at the Catholic church in Houma. Father Curren pitched against a fine team — organized by Rev. Greco.

Father Curren chuckles when he recalls that he was a Cardinal (ballplayer) before he was a priest, and then was mistaken for a Cardinal (one of the highest positions a priest can attain) after he became a priest.

As "Bobo" Curren, he pitched from the St. Louis Cardinal's mound in 1919.

Mistaken Identity

Many years later, while attending the Eucharistic Congress in New Orleans, the case of mistaken identity occurred.

He tells how he had borrowed a car, a "sleek, chromed job decorated for the Congress" to stop by the Roosevelt Hotel and give another priest a lift to the sessions.

"Somehow along the way, I was picked up by a police escort and arrived at the hotel with sirens blaring. It seems they were expecting Cardinal Mundelein. When I got out, everyone thought I was he and knelt for my blessing. Of course, I gave it to them," the priest mentioned, still amused by the event.

Since his ordination in June of 1933, he has taught at Jesuit High School in New Orleans, St. Johns, Shreveport, Spring Hill and Loyola.

He studied for and acquired a Master of Arts degree from Gonzaga and received his B.A. degree from Springhill.

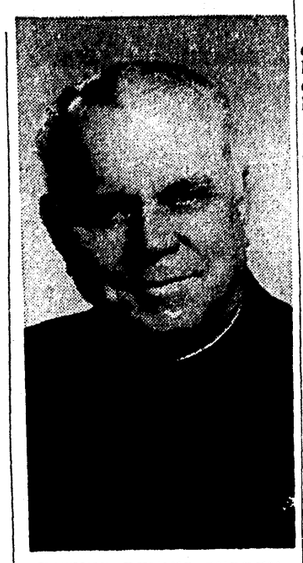

Widely Known

Father Curren is widely known in the Monroe area for his forceful arguments against Communism. He has given several lectures on the topic, describing the insidious manner which communism uses to undermine a nation, and has urged all-out effort to combat Red tactics.

Not the only member of his family who was called to the religious life, his sister is Mother Curren of the Sacred Heart order in St. Louis.

When he entered Loyola University to study for a degree in law, he had no plans for becoming a priest. Then, during his studies in 1919, he made the decision to dedicate his life to God. He was ordained at St. Mary's in Kansas.

The Monroe celebration of his anniversary includes Mass at 6 p.m. to be offered by Father Curren is the presence of Bishop Charles P. Greco. The dinner by the Progressive Men's Club will be at 7:30 p.m. at the club's location on Highway 80.

FATHER DENNIS CURREN

Father Curren is state chaplain of the organization, and is also chaplain of the Fifth District, American Legion, and was state chaplain of that group in 1952 and 1953.

Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard of Monroe will give the welcoming address at the dinner, and Sheriff Bailey Grant will be master of ceremonies. Bishop Greco will be the main speaker for the event.

Guest List

Among those expected to attend are Congressman E. D. Hebert of New Orleans; Camille Gravelle, national Democratic committeeman of Louisiana; Lincoln White of the office of Undersecretary of State Dulles; Bill Keefe, sports editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune; Harry Martinez, sports editor of the New Orleans States; William H. Bronson, president of the Times Publishing Co. in Shreveport and of the News-Star World Publishing Corporation; Richard Hale, general manager of the News-Star World Publishing Corporation; Edmund Brown, assistant general manager of the News-Star World, and Mrs. Wilson Ewing, member of the board of the News-Star World.

Reservations for the dinner may be made with Tony Lewis, FA 3-4095.

Church Leader Says American Lives Empty

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A national church leader believes Americans are pursuing inadequate goals "that leave an emptiness of life without salvation."

Dr. H. H. McConnell, director of Evangelism for the National Council of Churches, said:

"Too many people have a health obsession, complete with diets, vitamins and tranquilizers and are engrossed in a search for security."

In New Orleans for conferences with church leaders, the New York minister said the so-called revival of religion" is due mainly to "the realization by the layman of his spiritual responsibilities.

Seven years of drought dropped the Harvey County, Kan. water table 62 feet below ground level; six rainy months in 1957 raised it 24 feet.

Negro Cop Is Released At Lafayette

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—A federal court ruling Saturday released a city policeman in a narcotics case that may have legislative repercussions.

Federal District Judge Edwin F. Hunter Jr., ruled city policeman Warren Landry had been held illegally and denied his constitutional rights when jailed April 18.

Landry was assigned to undercover narcotics work among Negroes in Lafayette and reportedly obtained information and evidence that led to the arrest of four persons on marijuana possession charges.

But J. Minos Simon, who represented Landry at today's hearing, said the case was allowed to lag and on April 17, state police officers accused Landry of "framing" the four. Simon also said the state police tried to get Landry to implicate Lafayette chief of police Carlos Listi in the alleged frameup.

Landry's petition contended he was the "victim of a conspiracy on the part of his accusers to discredit the Lafayette police department and particularly chief of police Listi, either out of motives of jealousy or political consideration. . ."

Simon said Landry's undercover assignment took him to a marijuana "smoking party" where Listi and ten other officers made the arrests. Two of those arrested, Simon said, have previous prison records.

But the state police, he said, contended that Landry, who also traced a narcotics source in New Orleans and made marijuana cigarette purchases there, tossed the cigarette to the four just before the raid.

Captains Percy Primeaux, Joseph McDonald and John Thomas and Sgt. Thomas Migaud brought the "frameup" charges against Landry, Simon said.

Simon said the state police maintained narcotics enforcement was beyond the scope of the Lafayette city police and was entirely with in the jurisdiction of state police.

The state officers, Simon said, were outside their jurisdiction entering the city.

Rep. Richard Bertrand of Lafayette Parish, chairman of a legislative narcotics committee, has introduced a bill that would allow state police to enter municipalities to investigate narcotics violations.

But Simon said this bill would allow state officers to enter any city "under the guise of investigating narcotics violations."

Simon said he was forced to take the case into federal court when state courts turned down his requests for preliminary hearing and examination.

Visit Is Cut Short By Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles cut short a visit to a Princeton University reunion Saturday to rush back to Washington to discuss "urgent business" with Under Secretary Christian Herter.

There was immediate speculation that he was concerned over the situation in Lebanon where heavy fighting broke out again Saturday between government and anti-government forces. The government is pro-Western.

ACTIVITY AT LEGISLATURE

Taxes, Colleges Dominate Capitol

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — Taxes and colleges dominated the activity around the state capitol as the house and senate prepare to go back in session Sunday night.

With the administration prodding for another tax increase, and the probe of "subversive activities" at LSU about to spread to other state colleges, the coming week promises to produce more fireworks than any so far in this five-week-old session.

LSU forces, marshaled by its soldier-president Gen. Troy Middleton, are skirmishing on two fronts.

LSU Fights Legislation

The university is fighting proposed legislation by Sen. Rex McCullough that would establish a super board of regents for all institutions of higher learning. It also opposes several plans to shorten the terms of its board of supervisors.

The university claims it is being well administered under the present system and there is no need for a change.

Meanwhile, Middleton and others are busy defending the rights of 66 of the LSU faculty to sign a petition opposing a proposed plan to preserve segregation in the public schools.

May Probe Other Colleges

A legislative committee, formed to investigate possible "subversive activities" at the university, was scheduled to continue its investigation this week, while the house threatened to enlarge the investigation to other state colleges. The lawmakers passed a resolution just before going home Thursday to set up a separate committee to handle an investigation of the other nine state colleges. It lacks only senate passage before becoming effective.

On the tax front, Gov. Earl Long has started his big push to increase the wine tax to $1 a gallon—500 per cent above the present level.

The administration, happy and confident over its long - sought victory in the gas gathering tax hike, is mobilizing for a floor fight on the wine tax this week—probably in the house.

More Money Needed

Long says the state "badly needs" the $3 to $4 million the measure will bring for trade schools, fairs and supplemental pay for city policemen.

"Don't forget the gas gathering tax was cut from two to one cents," Long told the house ways and means committee, which approved the bill and set it up for final action.

Anti-tax forces say that the administration earlier contended that the gas gathering tax would be the only one it would fight for.

Wants Only Doubled Tax

The wine industry has agreed not to oppose the measure if the tax is just doubled—from 21 cents a gallon to 42 cents. But the administration has flatly refused to reduce the proposed hike.

It has the support of the state's municipal policemen, who expect abut $1.1 million of the new revenue.

Two other important pieces of legislation are expected to come up this week, but neither is expected to cause much trouble.

A wide-reaching plan for reorganizing the state's appellate court system, to take some of the work load off the Supreme Court, is due for house action.

Over in the senate, a package of eight segregation bills—the same ones that touched off the explosion last week when two LSU professors opposed them in front of the house education committee, will get committee action in the upper chamber.

Their passage through the committee and the senate, probably early the following week, is expected to be without friction.

Recalls Fury Of Storm That Struck Kansas City

By MRS. EARL F. CAMPBELL
For The Kansas City Star

KANSAS CITY (AP)—I arrived at my Ruskin Heights home from work that Monday evening, May 20, 1957, at about the usual time, tired as usual. Marge, the high school senior who was living with us, was talking on the phone to a friend.

In the middle of something Marge was telling him, she paused, listened a minute and slammed the receiver down so hard she scared Calico, the kitten she had on her lap.

"He makes me so mad!" she fumed. "He hung up on me! Why would he do a thing like that?"

I walked over to the west window and scanned the sky.

"There's a storm somewhere near," I told her, "and there is probably trouble on the line."

She was out of her dress and shoes and into bed by the time I turned around.

"Well, maybe," she conceded, "but he still makes me so mad."

I finished the paper, ate a sandwich, fed the two dogs, Marge's kitten and my three cats, and then I sat down intending to read a magazine. I couldn't relax though. There seemed to be an uneasiness in the air.

In five minutes I was up walking from windows to doors and back to windows again, scanning the sky.

Doors

I went to the open front door and saw that the little, ragged, feathered edges of cloud moving over the house were beginning to churn and boil and whip about! I had seen that several times before down in southwest Missouri where I have grown up — and my heart nearly stopped!

I ran into Marge's room, shook her awake and cried: "Get into some clothes. Hurry! It's time we got out of here!"

I grabbed her hand and we fled the house. A small group was gathered in front of Schraders, looking toward the sky and I called out to ask if we could come in the basement.

Somebody called, "Join the party," and I pushed Marge on ahead of me and paused one moment to look back at my house.

I can see it yet, standing there so pretty and friendly looking, with lamplight glowing softly through the dogwood-hued drapes I had made and hung just about a year ago, and the light streaming brightly through the front door I hadn't closed.

I looked up, and there, maybe six blocks away, was the ugly cloud resembling a great mastodon's trunk, hanging, it seemed to me, motionless. For a second more, I, to, was motionless. Then I shouted:

'My God!'

"My God! There's the funnel! Get to the basement!"

I'm sure my warning wasn't the least bit necessary, because suddenly everyone was running into the house, out through the attached garage, past Mr. Schrader's red automobile and down the steps into the basement.

I grabbed Marge's hand again and almost dragged her in my haste to get her into the southwest corner. I pushed her down and told her to stay down and cover her head with her arms. I threw my arms up over my head as the first tremendous crash came.

Marge started a scream which was drowned out almost as quickly as it started. She jumped to her feet. I grabbed her coat and dragged her down again and held her down, keeping my free arm over my own head as all hell broke loose above us. I felt as though I would choke on the dust and small debris that pelted us as the basement windows shattered.

All the demons of the lower regions seemed loosed on our particular part of the world! They howled and roared as the giant whirlwind played through the house above. My ears rang with a high pitched whine.

Then, it was gone, and a stillness as deep as a country midnight set in. It wasn't quite dark there in the basement, for on a low table or bench across the room a candle was still burning. I hadn't even noticed it,but there it was twinkling in the gradually settling dust.

Stood

Mrs. Schrader stood to one side of me, holding in her arms her tiny baby. Marge was quiet now, too, and not moving. We might as well have been stone figures huddled there in the corner against the basement wall. The silence was broken as Mrs. Schrader said in a flat, calm voice:

"The house is gone."

I stepped up on a chair and looked out through what had been a window, and the scene in the eerie, false dawn of light which still remained over Rushkin Heights could have been framed and labeled "Desolation."

"Everything is gone," I told them. I can remember feeling nothing but very slight amazement.

One of the men suddenly cried out:

"Let's get out of here before the gas catches!"

That sent us all scurrying for the stairs where we clawed our way up over the debris which partially choked the stairwell. A minute or so later, I was standing in the middle of what had been Schrader's garage trying to comprehend the completeness of the destruction. I turned and looked after the retreating storm, chewing its way on into the northeast, lashing the earth with its deadly tail.

Back

As I turned back to stare at the gaping emptiness where my house had stood, I saw somewhere down the trail of debris a huge orange plume go rocketing skyward.

"Something just exploded!" I cried.

People had begun to emerge from other basements, and we were calling up and down the block to determine if everyone was present and accounted for.

I looked around for my cats and dogs, but I didn't see them.

We started looking for anything of mine that might still be around in its original shape.

After an hour of gleaning in the rubble, I wearily straightened up and stood there a moment. There wasn't much activity on our block now.

Back toward what had been our shopping center, I could hear the wail of sirens, shouts muted by the distance, and I could see the searchlights beginning to criss-cross the sky with darting fingers.

I heard the soft gurgle of water coming from the place where the pipe had led into the house, and the hiss of gas from the ruptured line. I sniffed the air and the odor was horrible.

ALGERIA

De Gaulle Comes To Mountains

ALGIERS (AP) — Premier de Gaulle, like Mohammed, has come to the mountain.

He stands before it in Algeria, pleading for peace. He has a program, he says, that will bestow freedom and equality on the nine million Arabs. He hopes to achieve, by this plan, what the French army has not been able to do by force of arms—nor the savage Moslem rebellion against French rule in this beautiful country.

The mountain remains silent, brooding, enigmatic.

In Algeria today, "the mountain" signifies the remote, rock-protected centers of rebellion.

In its name, hideous cruelties are committed. Others follow in reprisal. Blood runs in the vineyards, wheatfields, scented orange groves. It stains the gleaming white cities on the edge of the Mediterranean.

The struggle is now nearly four years old.

It menaces France, primarily. But it reaches out dangerously toward the United States, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and all the nations of the free world. It has these implications:

Soviet

1. The Soviet Union, "scavenger of revolutions," is feeding on this one. The Communists will try to take control of the Algerian rebellion as they took control of those in Indochina, and before then in China.

2. Anything that weakens France automatically weakens NATO, of which France is a keystone. The Moslem revolt has tied down nearly a half million French troops. The cost to France is variously estimated at 800 million dollars to one billion dollars a year, seriously aggravating France's financial problems.

3. A French defeat in Algeria, especially if Communist-directed, will add impetus to the Soviet drive in the Middle East. Vice versa, if De Gaulle can effect a sound working relationship with the Moslems here—thus robbing the Communists of their slogan of "colonialism" and "imperialism"—the danger to the Middle East will be that much diminished.

In short, whatever happens in Algeria can profoundly influence the worldwide struggle between the Kremlin and the free nations.

At this moment, De Gaulle comes forward with an olive branch and a new deal for the Moslems.

Charles Andre Marie Joseph de Gaulle is a strange and powerful personality. He is stubborn, stiff-backed, often glacial. He burns with cold fire. He is one of the most impelling figures on the world stage today.

What does his new deal provide?

He has not spelled it out in detail. Using his elegant, literary style of speech, he mingles specific points with cryptic allusions.

In general, he proposes that Algeria become a part of France in every respect — political, economic and social.

"Starting today," he says, "there are only 10 million Frenchmen in Algeria with absolutely the same rights and duties." The Moslem population of the country numbers nearly nine million.

Next, he speaks of an imminent national vote on revising the constitution of France to strengthen the executive branch of the government.

"In three months, the 10 million Frenchmen living in Algeria will participate with the whole of France in a great referendum when France will decide her destiny."

He strongly urges the Moslems to go to the polls, assuring them that "their votes will carry equal weight with the votes of all other Frenchmen."

He refers

Finally, he refers to a single assembly, "to which the Moslems will send their representatives." What will it do? Here he becomes cryptic.

"With these elected representatives," he says "we shall see how to do the rest."

At this point the great guessing game begins.

In France and Algeria alike, armies of analysts are trying to read the message of the Sphinx.

Does De Gaulle mean that each of the 15 departments of Algeria will send deputies to the National Assembly in Paris, the number based on population? That could mean, in the maximum, a bloc of Algerian votes equal to perhaps one sixth of the total.

Or is he thinking of a confederation of French states? In a speech in Brazzaville 14 years ago De Gaulle mapped a blueprint for a "French union," in which the parts of what was then the French empire would be in somewhat the same relationship to France as the British Commonwealth nations are to Britain.

SCIENCE

Signs There's One Less Continent

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — There are suspicious new signs we have one less continent than we think.

Instead of being a great continent, Antarctica is perhaps twins, split by a deep strait or trough hidden thousands of feet under ice.

The separate parts of Antarctica might even be groups of islands and mountains sticking up above sea level, if all the ice melted.

Antarctica, mostly buried by ice, is estimated as embracing about six million square miles. It has been thought to be mostly land, almost a round continent in shape but indented by two frozen seas—the Weddell and Ross seas.

One theory is these two seas are joined by a strait running some 1,000 to 1,500 miles.

The newest discovery is that a deep trough does indeed run at least 300 miles "inland" from the Weddell Sea. It may go deeper—U. S. explorers turned back after tracing it that far. The trough bottom is 3,500 feet below sea level.

Other U. S. scientists this fall will look for the trough on the opposite side of Antarctica. If they discover one running deep inland, toward this one, it would be an additional strong sign that the trough or strait cuts all the way through.

They might possibly trace it most of the way across.

Discovery of the 300-mile trough from the Weddell Sea is reported by Dr. Edward Thiel, University of Wisconsin seismologist who spent last year in Antarctica and led the overland exploration party.

After spending the winter at Ellsworth station, he and four companions made an 81-day tractor journey of nearly 1,000 miles.

Striking south, they discovered a great buried island, 175 by 110 miles, rising 3,000 feet above sea level.

Every 30 miles along the journey, the team set off explosives to measure the depth of the ice covering land or sea bottom below. Every five miles they measured gravity and magnetism for facts on the composition and nature of the terrain below.

They rolled south to the Dufek Massif, a mountain range rising 9,000 feet high, poking its peaks above the snow. Here were several dry valleys; in one was a lake formed from melted snow and ice.

"Maybe this was the southernmost lake in the world," Dr. Thiel says. "The lake contained abundant plant life, while nothing grew anywhere around. It was completely isolated life. We brought some plants back for identification and study by botanists, but haven't had a report on them yet."

Turning west, the party pushed over near Mt. Hassage. They then retraced part of their path before being picked up by plane and flown back to Ellsworth station when their relief ship was ready to leave.

Dr. Thiel's companions were Hugo A. C. Neuberg, chief glaciologist; Nolan B. Aughenbaugh, geologist; John C. Behrendt, assistant seismologist; and Paul T. Walker, assistant glaciologist.

Try To Convert Christian Men

TORONTO (AP)—Donald Wade, theology professor at Knox College, says Buddhists in Asia have a school training 2,000 missionaries to introduce reforms among Christians. Wade told a Presbyterian meeting the missionaries are being taught in a five year-program they must save the world from what is termed failures of Christianity.

Bogota, Caracas Are Apart

By LARRY ALLEN

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)— It's only 781 air miles between this capital city of Colombia and Caracas, Venezuela, but they are worlds apart in the treatment accorded U.S. citizens.

Here there is warmth, sympathy and friendliness. In Caracas there is coolness that borders upon open hostility.

A passenger alighting here walks through two lines of smiling, blue-uniformed customs guards into the airport administration building. Passengers are informed over a loudspeaker: "You will pass through in just a moment, please, after immigration and customs formalities. While you are waiting, this is to welcome you to Colombia. Please have a cup of our fine coffee."

A white-jacketed boy immediately starts serving coffee—backbone of this nation's economy.

There's a quick look at passports and health cards and the passenger is ushered into the baggage reception room. Each passenger opens his suitcase but rarely does a customs official touch any of the contents. There's merely a glance and a smile, the traveler is on his way.

The whole process averages from 5 to 10 minutes, a far cry from what happens to the passenger—particularly a North American—who lands at Maiquetia, the airport for Venezuela's capital city of Caracas.

Soldiers and national guardsmen, wearing steel helmets, carrying rifles, pistols, or even submachineguns, are on guard at Maiquetia. They bunch all passengers together and lead them to the airport administration building.

Then comes the long wait—5 minutes to two hours or more—before a traveler is called to present his passport and health card.

Every passport and health card is rigidly inspected. At another desk a Venezuelan, with a soldier looking on, flips through the cards in a filing cabinet, just to make sure no enemy of the state is trying to enter. After that, there's a rush by passengers for another room where 6 to 10 Venezuelans are typing out entry index cards. Here the wait can easily run into an hour.

Then, if a passenger doesn't have any Venezuelan money, he has to stand in line to wait until he gets some.

Finally, he pushed through soldier guarded doors into the baggage room where Venezuelans take their time about locating and delivering baggage. Once suitcases are opened, the customs employes usually rummage thoroughly through contents. When this is over, a customs employe slaps a stamp on baggage but it gets another scrutiny by an armed soldier who finally clears luggage to be taken out to a taxi, or private car.

The traveler then gets his first introduction to prices in Venezuela—the highest anywhere in Latin America, and topping peak prices in the United States.

Taxi drivers take passengers into Caracas—12 miles away—for the equivalent of 10 or 12 U. S. dollars. But if the driver believes you are a North American the price shoots up to $15.

Rarely does any Venezuelan give an American a smile, or say "thank you" when he is tipped. The American usually receives hostile stares or studied indifference.

Americans, other foreigners, and Venezuelans not only have to get exit visas to leave, but they also must show they don't owe any income taxes or any debts.

All this is in marked contrast to what happens in Colombia. Whenever you want to leave this country, all you have to do is to buy a plane or ship ticket, and have a visa for wherever you are going.

Here there's a smile from hotel employes, Colombians on the street, and an eagerness to be helpful and understanding. And Colombians say "thank you."

FATHER CURREN

Varied Career Is Remembered

Diamonds and silver have unusual meaning for Father Dennis Curren, assistant pastor of Our Lady of Fatima Church.

The diamonds recall to him a part of a varied career—which included pitching for the St. Louis Cardinals. He has also been a law student, soldier, sailor and sportsman.

Silver refers to his 25th anniversary as an ordained priest, and the Silver Jubilee testimonial dinner which is to be given for him here Sunday by the Progressive Men's Club.

While working out with the St. Louis Browns, Father Curren once beaned George Sisler, member of baseball's Hall of Fame. The priest knew the baseball greats of the day, including Walter Johnson, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Dizzy Dean and Ty Cobb.

A long-time friend of Bishop Charles P. Greco of Alexandria, Father Curren first met him at a ball game. At that time, the Rev. Greco was assistant pastor at the Catholic church in Houma. Father Curren pitched against a fine team — organized by Rev. Greco.

Father Curren chuckles when he recalls that he was a Cardinal (ballplayer) before he was a priest, and then was mistaken for a Cardinal (one of the highest positions a priest can attain) after he became a priest.

As "Bobo" Curren, he pitched from the St. Louis Cardinal's mound in 1919.

Mistaken Identity

Many years later, while attending the Eucharistic Congress in New Orleans, the case of mistaken identity occurred.

He tells how he had borrowed a car, a "sleek, chromed job decorated for the Congress" to stop by the Roosevelt Hotel and give another priest a lift to the sessions.

"Somehow along the way, I was picked up by a police escort and arrived at the hotel with sirens blaring. It seems they were expecting Cardinal Mundelein. When I got out, everyone thought I was he and knelt for my blessing. Of course, I gave it to them," the priest mentioned, still amused by the event.

Since his ordination in June of 1933, he has taught at Jesuit High School in New Orleans, St. Johns, Shreveport, Spring Hill and Loyola.

He studied for and acquired a Master of Arts degree from Gonzaga and received his B.A. degree from Springhill.

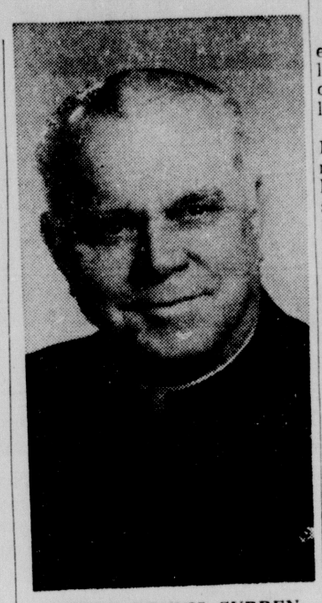

Widely Known

Father Curren is widely known in the Monroe area for his forceful arguments against Communism. He has given several lectures on the topic, describing the insidious manner which communism uses to undermine a nation, and has urged all-out effort to combat Red tactics.

Not the only member of his family who was called to the religious life, his sister is Mother Curren of the Sacred Heart order in St. Louis.

When he entered Loyola University to study for a degree in law, he had no plans for becoming a priest. Then, during his studies in 1919, he made the decision to dedicate his life to God. He was ordained at St. Mary's in Kansas.

The Monroe celebration of his anniversary includes Mass at 6 p.m. to be offered by Father Curren is the presence of Bishop Charles P. Greco. The dinner by the Progressive Men's Club will be at 7:30 p.m. at the club's location on Highway 80.

FATHER DENNIS CURREN

Father Curren is state chaplain of the organization, and is also chaplain of the Fifth District, American Legion, and was state chaplain of that group in 1952 and 1953.

Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard of Monroe will give the welcoming address at the dinner, and Sheriff Bailey Grant will be master of ceremonies. Bishop Greco will be the main speaker for the event.

Guest List

Among those expected to attend are Congressman E. D. Hebert of New Orleans; Camille Gravelle, national Democratic committeeman of Louisiana; Lincoln White of the office of Undersecretary of State Dulles; Bill Keefe, sports editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune; Harry Martinez, sports editor of the New Orleans States; William H. Bronson, president of the Times Publishing Co. in Shreveport and of the News-Star World Publishing Corporation; Richard Hale, general manager of the News-Star World Publishing Corporation; Edmund Brown, assistant general manager of the News-Star World, and Mrs. Wilson Ewing, member of the board of the News-Star World.

Reservations for the dinner may be made with Tony Lewis, FA 3-4095.

Church Leader Says American Lives Empty

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A national church leader believes Americans are pursuing inadequate goals "that leave an emptiness of life without salvation."

Dr. H. H. McConnell, director of Evangelism for the National Council of Churches, said:

"Too many people have a health obsession, complete with diets, vitamins and tranquilizers and are engrossed in a search for security."

In New Orleans for conferences with church leaders, the New York minister said the so-called revival of religion" is due mainly to "the realization by the layman of his spiritual responsibilities.

Seven years of drought dropped the Harvey County, Kan. water table 62 feet below ground level; six rainy months in 1957 raised it 24 feet.

Negro Cop Is Released At Lafayette

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP)—A federal court ruling Saturday released a city policeman in a narcotics case that may have legislative repercussions.

Federal District Judge Edwin F. Hunter Jr., ruled city policeman Warren Landry had been held illegally and denied his constitutional rights when jailed April 18.

Landry was assigned to undercover narcotics work among Negroes in Lafayette and reportedly obtained information and evidence that led to the arrest of four persons on marijuana possession charges.

But J. Minos Simon, who represented Landry at today's hearing, said the case was allowed to lag and on April 17, state police officers accused Landry of "framing" the four. Simon also said the state police tried to get Landry to implicate Lafayette chief of police Carlos Listi in the alleged frame-up.

Landry's petition contended he was the "victim of a conspiracy on the part of his accusers to discredit the Lafayette police department and particularly chief of police Listi, either out of motives of jealousy or political consideration. . . ."

Simon said Landry's undercover assignment took him to a marijuana "smoking party" where Listi and ten other officers made the arrests. Two of those arrested, Simon said, have previous prison records.

But the state police, he said, contended that Landry, who also traced a narcotics source in New Orleans and made marijuana cigarette purchases there, tossed the cigarette to the four just before the raid.

Captains Percy Primeaux, Joseph McDonald and John Thomas and Sgt. Thomas Migaud brought the "frameup" charges against Landry, Simon said.

Simon said the state police maintained narcotics enforcement was beyond the scope of the Lafayette city police and was entirely with in the jurisdiction of state police.

The state officers, Simon said, were outside their jurisdiction entering the city.

Rep. Richard Bertrand of Lafayette Parish, chairman of a legislative narcotics committee, has introduced a bill that would allow state police to enter municipalities to investigate narcotics violations.

But Simon said this bill would allow state officers to enter any city "under the guise of investigating narcotics violations."

Simon said he was forced to take the case into federal court when state courts turned down his requests for preliminary hearing and examination.

Visit Is Cut Short By Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles cut short a visit to a Princeton University reunion Saturday to rush back to Washington to discuss "urgent business" with Under Secretary Christian Herter.

There was immediate speculation that he was concerned over the situation in Lebanon where heavy fighting broke out again Saturday between government and anti-government forces. The government is pro-Western.

ACTIVITY AT LEGISLATURE

Taxes, Colleges Dominate Capitol

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — Taxes and colleges dominated the activity around the state capitol as the house and senate prepare to go back in session Sunday night.

With the administration prodding for another tax increase, and the probe of "subversive activities" at LSU about to spread to other state colleges, the coming week promises to produce more fireworks than any so far in this five-week-old session.

LSU forces, marshaled by its soldier-president Gen. Troy Middleton, are skirmishing on two fronts.

LSU Fights Legislation

The university is fighting proposed legislation by Sen. Rex McCullough that would establish a super board of regents for all institutions of higher learning. It also opposes several plans to shorten the terms of its board of supervisors.

The university claims it is being well administered under the present system and there is no need for a change.

Meanwhile, Middleton and others are busy defending the rights of 66 of the LSU faculty to sign a petition opposing a proposed plan to preserve segregation in the public schools.

May Probe Other Colleges

A legislative committee, formed to investigate possible "subversive activities" at the university, was scheduled to continue its investigation this week, while the house threatened to enlarge the investigation to other state colleges. The lawmakers passed a resolution just before going home Thursday to set up a separate committee to handle an investigation of the other nine state colleges. It lacks only senate passage before becoming effective.

On the tax front, Gov. Earl Long has started his big push to increase the wine tax to $1 a gallon—500 per cent above the present level.

The administration, happy and confident over its long - sought victory in the gas gathering tax hike, is mobilizing for a floor fight on the wine tax this week—probably in the house.

More Money Needed

Long says the state "badly needs" the $3 to $4 million the measure will bring for trade schools, fairs and supplemental pay for city policemen.

"Don't forget the gas gathering tax was cut from two to one cents," Long told the house ways and means committee, which approved the bill and set it up for final action.

Anti-tax forces say that the administration earlier contended that the gas gathering tax would be the only one it would fight for.

Wants Only Doubled Tax

The wine industry has agreed not to oppose the measure if the tax is just doubled—from 21 cents a gallon to 42 cents. But the administration has flatly refused to reduce the proposed hike.

It has the support of the state's municipal policemen, who expect abut $1.1 million of the new revenue.

Two other important pieces of legislation are expected to come up this week, but neither is expected to cause much trouble.

A wide-reaching plan for reorganizing the state's appellate court system, to take some of the work load off the Supreme Court, is due for house action.

Over in the senate, a package of eight segregation bills—the same ones that touched off the explosion last week when two LSU professors opposed them in front of the house education committee, will get committee action in the upper chamber.

Their passage through the committee and the senate, probably early the following week, is expected to be without friction.

Companies Begin Fight This Week

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Twenty nine oil companies indicted in Alexandria, Va., last month on charges of conspiring in 1956-57 to raise and fix crude oil and gasoline prices began their fight for vindication this week.

Preliminary legal maneuvering indicated the fight, like the long-pending anti-trust cartel suit in New York, could last for years.

Attorneys for the accused quickly won from Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan postponement of formal arraignments until September. They also advised the court they will demand bills of particulars on all the charges; will challenge the legality of the grand jury which voted the indictment; will demand surrender of all company documents impounded by the court after the grand jury finished with them

Raised Crude Prices

The indictment aroused industrywide ire. Its resentment was epitomized by General Counsel Russell B. Brown of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. He said it was "inconceivable" the industry's price structure should be expected to remain static over the past five years while production costs had tripled.

The industry raised crude oil field prices an average of 25 cents a barrel in January, 1957, after Humble Oil and Refining Co., a Standard Oil of New Jersey subsidiary—both among the indicted —broke the ice. Gasoline prices also were raised. It was the first crude oil jump in four years and was defended as "an economic necessity."

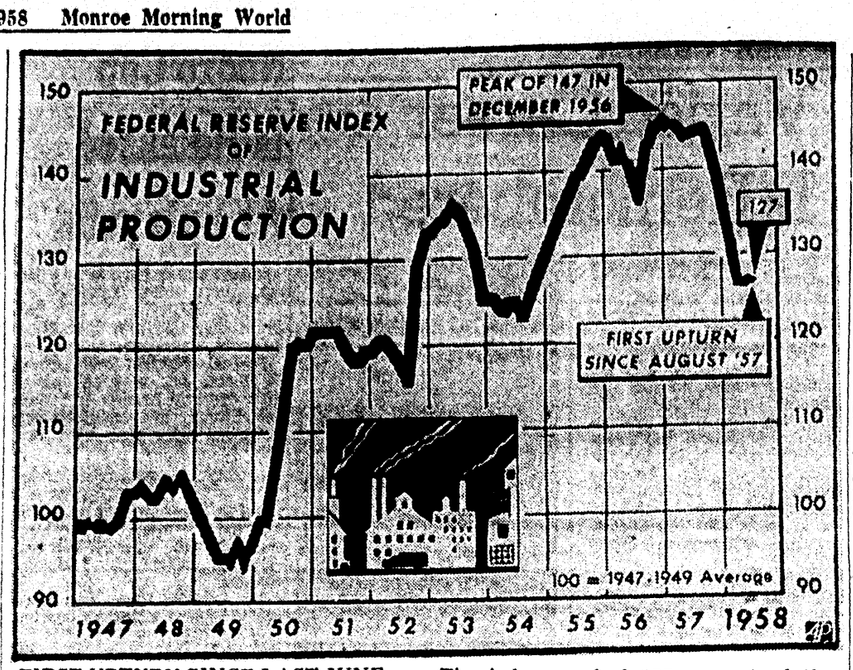

The indictment said this added up to collusion, in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, "the effect of which was to increase, fix, and stabilize prices, and suppress competition."

Increase Necessary

"The charges are flimsy and vague," said Brown. "The price increase in crude was necessary, long overdue, and inevitable. Between June, 1953, and January, 1957, while crude prices remained unchanged, steel tubular goods prices increased six times; wages rose on five occasions. New wage scales are now being negotiated. Another steel price increase is expected in July. The industry continues to absorb these rising costs."

Similar statements were issued by some of the defendants but none was as strong as Brown's.

"It is shocking and unfortunate," he said, "that an industry which has rendered such great service; at so little cost, could be subjected to harassment and misleading and damaging publicity as a result of charges, which, at best, are anemic and unjustifiable."

FIRST UPTURN SINCE LAST JUNE—Chart shows the nation's industrial production is up one point in May over April for first upturn since June, 1957. It is based on government's Federal Reserve Board index announced in Washington. The index reached 127 percent of the 1947-49 average, but still was 18 points below the level of last August and 20 points below all-time high of 147 in December, 1956. (AP Wirephoto)

Cotton Market Mixed

NEW YORK (AP)—The cotton futures market charted an irregular course this week and closed with mixed net changes.

Active contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange finished at prices ranging from 60 cents a bale lower to $1.75 a bale higher.

Price fixing and short covering buoyed the market, as did buying of distant deliveries in the belief that no new farm legislation would be passed at the current session of Congress.

Prices were depressed by moderate hedge selling and favorable weather reports. The nearby July contract was adversely affected by the transferring of long positions forward.

A flurry of selling Friday followed reports that the House Agriculture Committee had approved an omnibus farm bill. Many traders felt, however, that there was but scant chance the bill would pass in the House and Senate in its present form.

Of considerable interest to traders were reports that the commodity credit corp. sold only 700 bales of cotton for unrestricted use at its June 9 action. At the same time the CCC disposed of 63,000 bales for sale under its export program this season plus 98,000 bales for export next season.

The agency has now sold a total of 5,822,000 bales for export this season, all of which must be exported by July 31 if the holders wish to avoid a penalty.

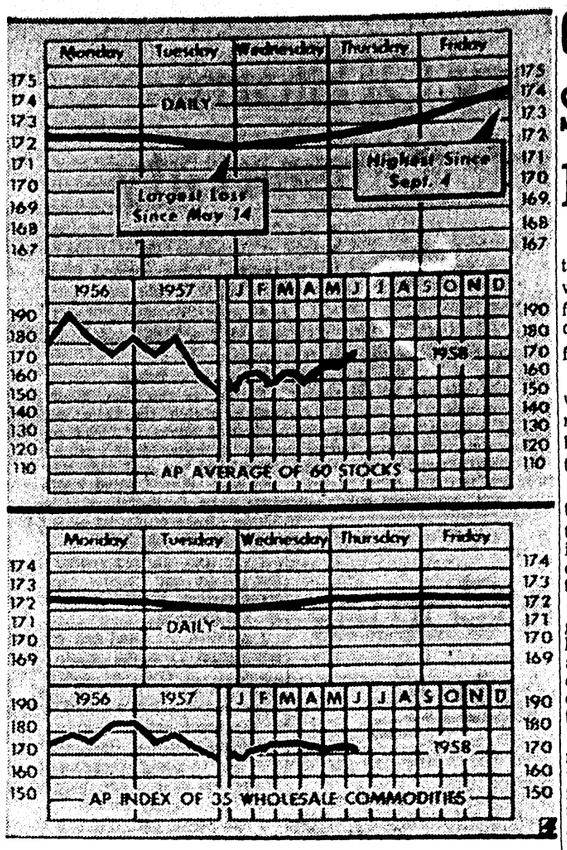

Actual exports of U. S. Cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 108,000 bales vs. 93,000 the previous week and 112,000 in the like 1957 week.

For the season through June 10 exports were estimated at 5,059,000 bales vs. 6,796,000 at approximately the same time last year.

Trade sources noted that government economists now predict exports for the entire season will total about 5,700,000 bales as compared to 7,600,000 bales last season.

DURING WEEK

Stock Market Hits New Highs

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made a slow start this week but finished with a sprint to new peaks for 1958.

It was the market's fourth straight weekly advance and its best in three weeks.

Trading, while heavy, was a bit below the previous week. A total of 13,205,380 shares changed hands, making a daily average of 2,641,076, well above par for this year.

The advance brought the market through a difficult resistance area, represented by the level of 470 in the Dow, Jones average. By the end of the week this average stood at a new 1958 high of 474.77.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was at a fresh peak for this year of $174.30, having risen $1.20. The AP average was at its highest point since last Sept. 4.

The market was helped along by an assortment of favorable news which affected, in turn, the coppers, rails, oils and tobaccos. Steels and shipbuilding issues had less encouraging news to reckon with and didn't do so well.

As the trading week ended, the stock market had some fine economic news to look at. The nation's industrial production index had its first upturn since June 1957. Housing starts went past the one million annual rate for the first time since January. Freight carloadings were at their best since early December.

Nuclear Blasts Are Reported

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government announced two more nuclear detonations took place Saturday in the mid-Pacific test series.

The latest shots would make the sixth and seventh announced.

A joint announcement by the Atomic Energy Commission and the Defense Department said:

"A nuclear test detonation took place at 5:30 a.m., June 15, 1958, Eniwetok time (1:30 p.m., June 14, 1958, EDT) at the Bikini atoll. Another nuclear test detonation took place at 6:30 a.m., June 15, 1958, Eniwetok time (2:30 p. m., June 14, 1958, EDT) at the Eniwetok atoll. The tests are part of the Hardtack nuclear weapons test series."

Cattle Disease Report Is Given By County Agent

WINNSBORO (Special) —G. A. Luno, Franklin parish county agent said Saturday there had been no anthrax reported in Franklin parish. He said there had been none in the parish since he came here 12 years ago.

He said cattlemen had reported two ailments of animals -leptospirosis commonly known as "red water disease," and anaplosmosis, are killing some animals, with losses on the increase.

Luno said if cattle are lost to disease a correct diagnosis should be made by a veterinarian. He advised against vaccinating for anthrax when there is no threat in the community because of the hazards involved.

Grain Is Slow For Past Week

CHICAGO (AP) — Continued tightening commercial supplies of wheat and corn keynoted grain futures trading this week with dealers inclined to back away from heavy short selling.

The already skimpy supplies of wheat and corn in Chicago commercial positions were dwindling by the day and receipts slowing to a dribble.

Although the wheat harvest in the southwest is nearing completion little of the grain has found its way into dealer hands. Sales of corn by producers still ran less than market requirements.

Early in the week there was a general feeling that as the wheat harvest neared the peak large amounts of the grain would be channeled into commercial trade, especially if local storage facilities should become clogged.

But on Thursday, the Department of Agriculture announced it would grant price support benefits temporarily to producers even through they have no storage available and are compelled to pile their grain on the ground.

At week's end, most dealers were convinced, therefore, that prices somehow must rise to or above the government loan figure to bring good supplies to market.

While prices of all grains generally were firm there were no usually wide swings.

At the end of the week, wheat was 3⅜-3⅛ cents a bushel higher than a week ago, corn was 2¾ higher to 1 cent lower, oats unchanged to ⅜ lower, rye 2¼-2½ higher, soybeans 1-2⅛ higher, and lard 5 to 17 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Companies Begin Fight This Week

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Twenty nine oil companies indicted in Alexandria, Va., last month on charges of conspiring in 1956-57 to raise and fix crude oil and gasoline prices began their fight for vindication this week.

Preliminary legal maneuvering indicated the fight, like the long-pending anti-trust cartel suit in New York, could last for years.

Attorneys for the accused quickly won from Federal Judge Albert V. Bryan postponement of formal arraignments until September. They also advised the court they will demand bills of particulars on all the charges; will challenge the legality of the grand jury which voted the indictment; will demand surrender of all company documents impounded by the court after the grand jury finished with them

Raised Crude Prices

The indictment aroused industrywide ire. Its resentment was epitomized by General Counsel Russell B. Brown of the Independent Petroleum Association of America. He said it was "inconceivable" the industry's price structure should be expected to remain static over the past five years while production costs had tripled.

The industry raised crude oil field prices an average of 25 cents a barrel in January, 1957, after Humble Oil and Refining Co., a Standard Oil of New Jersey subsidiary—both among the indicted —broke the ice. Gasoline prices also were raised. It was the first crude oil jump in four years and was defended as "an economic necessity."

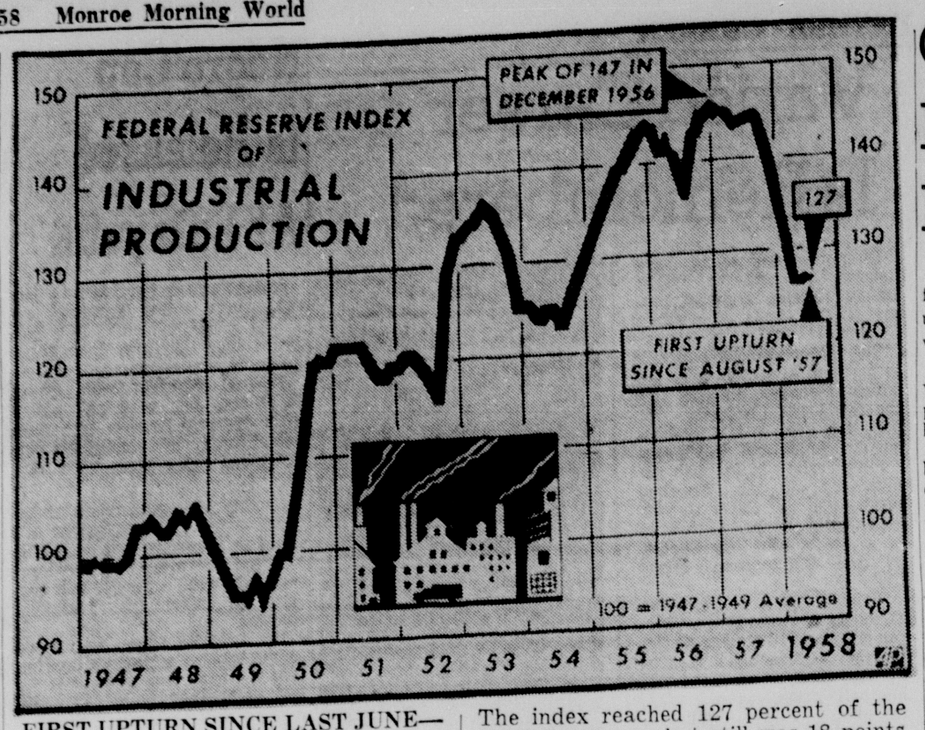

The indictment said this added up to collusion, in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, "the effect of which was to increase, fix, and stabilize prices, and suppress competition."

Increase Necessary

"The charges are flimsy and vague," said Brown. "The price increase in crude was necessary, long overdue, and inevitable. Between June, 1953, and January, 1957, while crude prices remained unchanged, steel tubular goods prices increased six times; wages rose on five occasions. New wage scales are now being negotiated. Another steel price increase is expected in July. The industry continues to absorb these rising costs."

Similar statements were issued by some of the defendants but none was as strong as Brown's.

"It is shocking and unfortunate," he said, "that an industry which has rendered such great service; at so little cost, could be subjected to harassment and misleading and damaging publicity as a result of charges, which, at best, are anemic and unjustifiable."

FIRST UPTURN SINCE LAST JUNE— Chart shows the nation's industrial production is up one point in May over April for first upturn since June, 1957. It is based on government's Federal Reserve Board index announced in Washington. The index reached 127 percent of the 1947-49 average, but still was 18 points below the level of last August and 20 points below all-time high of 147 in December, 1956. (AP Wirephoto)

Several Barns Hit By Storm

MACON, Ill. (AP)—Reports on the central Illinois windstorm late Friday noted that it destroyed several barns.

This is what it meant to the Edward Stombaugh family whose barn was strewn more than a mile around:

The barn — metal-walled on a wood frame — was completed 10 minutes before the storm struck. It replaced one which burned to the ground after lightning struck it.

A barn-raising party and square dance set for Saturday night was canceled.

Bond Market Shows Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The corporate bond markets staged a general advance this week in brisk trading. U. S. government bonds drifted lower in light transactions.

Rails led the corporate rally, establishing new 1958 highs on three successive days. The carriers finished the week strong as indications mounted that Congress apparently is about to aid the industry.

Utilities and industrials also posted solid gains. Investment quality issues and foreign dollar bonds inched higher.

Trading for the week amount to $27,753,500 par value on the New York Stock Exchange. Last week volume was $29,727,500 and a year ago it was $21.269,000.

Cotton Market Mixed

NEW YORK (AP)—The cotton futures market charted an irregular course this week and closed with mixed net changes.

Active contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange finished at prices ranging from 60 cents a bale lower to $1.75 a bale higher.

Price fixing and short covering buoyed the market, as did buying of distant deliveries in the belief that no new farm legislation would be passed at the current session of Congress.

Prices were depressed by moderate hedge selling and favorable weather reports. The nearby July contract was adversely affected by the transferring of long positions forward.

A flurry of selling Friday followed reports that the House Agriculture Committee had approved an omnibus farm bill. Many traders felt, however, that there was but scant chance the bill would pass in the House and Senate in its present form.

Of considerable interest to traders were reports that the commodity credit corp. sold only 700 bales of cotton for unrestricted use at its June 9 action. At the same time the CCC disposed of 63,000 bales for sale under its export program this season plus 98,000 bales for export next season.

The agency has now sold a total of 5,822,000 bales for export this season, all of which must be exported by July 31 if the holders wish to avoid a penalty.

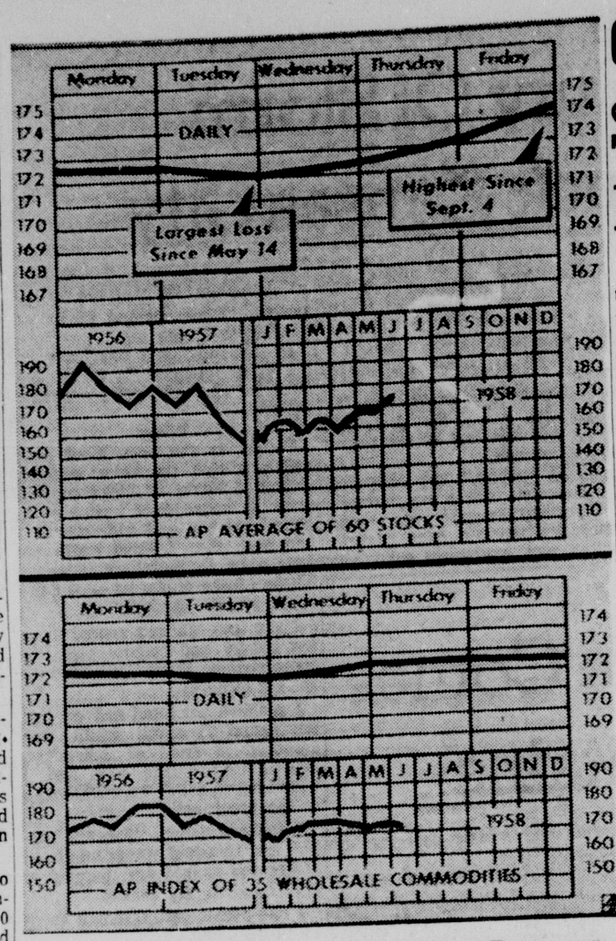

Actual exports of U. S. Cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 108,000 bales vs. 93,000 the previous week and 112,000 in the like 1957 week.

For the season through June 10 exports were estimated at 5,059,000 bales vs. 6,796,000 at approximately the same time last year.

Trade sources noted that government economists now predict exports for the entire season will total about 5,700,000 bales as compared to 7,600,000 bales last season.

DURING WEEK

Stock Market Hits New Highs

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market made a slow start this week but finished with a sprint to new peaks for 1958.

It was the market's fourth straight weekly advance and its best in three weeks.

Trading, while heavy, was a bit below the previous week. A total of 13,205,380 shares changed hands, making a daily average of 2,641,076, well above par for this year.

The advance brought the market through a difficult resistance area, represented by the level of 470 in the Dow, Jones average. By the end of the week this average stood at a new 1958 high of 474.77.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was at a fresh peak for this year of $174.30, having risen $1.20. The AP average was at its highest point since last Sept. 4.

The market was helped along by an assortment of favorable news which affected, in turn, the coppers, rails, oils and tobaccos. Steels and shipbuilding issues had less encouraging news to reckon with and didn't do so well.

As the trading week ended, the stock market had some fine economic news to look at. The nation's industrial production index had its first upturn since June 1957. Housing starts went past the one million annual rate for the first time since January. Freight carloadings were at their best since early December.

Cattle Disease Report Is Given By County Agent

WINNSBORO (Special) —G. A. Luno, Franklin parish county agent said Saturday there had been no anthrax reported in Franklin parish. He said there had been none in the parish since he came here 12 years ago.

He said cattlemen had reported two ailments of animals -leptospirosis commonly known as "red water disease," and anaplosmosis, are killing some animals, with losses on the increase.

Luno said if cattle are lost to disease a correct diagnosis should be made by a veterinarian. He advised against vaccinating for anthrax when there is no threat in the community because of the hazards involved.

Grain Is Slow For Past Week

CHICAGO (AP) — Continued tightening commercial supplies of wheat and corn keynoted grain futures trading this week with dealers inclined to back away from heavy short selling.

The already skimpy supplies of wheat and corn in Chicago commercial positions were dwindling by the day and receipts slowing to a dribble.

Although the wheat harvest in the southwest is nearing completion little of the grain has found its way into dealer hands. Sales of corn by producers still ran less than market requirements.

Early in the week there was a general feeling that as the wheat harvest neared the peak large amounts of the grain would be channeled into commercial trade, especially if local storage facilities should become clogged.

But on Thursday, the Department of Agriculture announced it would grant price support benefits temporarily to producers even through they have no storage available and are compelled to pile their grain on the ground.

At week's end, most dealers were convinced, therefore, that prices somehow must rise to or above the government loan figure to bring good supplies to market.

While prices of all grains generally were firm there were no usually wide swings.

At the end of the week, wheat was 3⅜-3⅛ cents a bushel higher than a week ago, corn was 2¾ higher to 1 cent lower, oats unchanged to ⅜ lower, rye 2¼-2½ higher, soybeans 1-2⅛ higher, and lard 5 to 17 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Miss. Planter Dies In Tenn.

MEMPHIS (AP) — Benjamin William Sturdivant, prominent Mississippi planter, died at a hospital here Saturday. He was 55.

Sturdivant was the son of the late Mike P. Sturdivant who was at one time believed to be the eargest cotton grower in the world.

Sturdivant was born in Greenville, Miss., but lived in Glendora, Miss. most of his life. He attended Memphis University School and was a graduate of the University of the South at Sewanee. He was a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Sturdivant was active in community projects and development at Glendora.

Monroe Man's Father Dies; Funeral Set

IN ALGERIA

Hold Tightened By De Gaulle

PARIS (AP)—Charles de Gaulle finished 14 days as Premier Saturday by tightening his hold on rebellious Algeria in his determined drive for French unity.

With the political finesse of a professional politician, the old soldier politely but firmly subdued his old aide, Jacques Soustelle. Soustelle, the political power behind the French army revolt in Algeria, obediently answered De Gaulle's summons to a meeting and emerged with nothing more for his pains than vague permission to keep talking.

Supporters of Soustelle, a member of the junta in Algeria and a former governor general there, had wanted a Cabinet post for him. His opponents had wanted his scalp. De Gaulle heeded neither side.

De Gaulle asked Soustelle to give members of the Cabinet his ideas on the 3½-year-old rebellion of Algerian nationalists against French rule. Soustelle agreed and canceled plans to return immediately to Algiers.

Gen. Raoul Salan, whom De Gaulle has put in charge in Algeria, told an interviewer in Algiers that De Gaulle's television speech Friday night and the junta's motion supporting it "have solved all the problems."

In that speech, De Gaulle pledged a campaign of pacification in Algeria and called for all Frenchmen to support a bond drive to help France out of its financial troubles.

Salan said the 400,000 troops in Algeria now can get back to fighting the Algerian nationalists.

De Gaulle's performance with Soustelle was typical of his first two weeks. He listened, then softly, but firmly imposed his own will.

The general's easy, almost fatherly, approach has been deceptive. In two weeks he has sped France through dangers the man in the street saw only fleetingly.

The All-Algeria Public Safety Committee, the junta that seized power in Algeria May 10, at first balked at De Gaulle's insistence on maintaining many old political figures in his Cabinet. But De Gaulle cracked the whip and pointedly told Salan the committee was under the control of Salan as his delegate general for Algeria. The committee then fell in line behind De Gaulle.

Within an hour a wood frog can change the color of his body from dark green to light tan to blend with his surroundings.

IN ALGERIA

Hold Tightened By De Gaulle

PARIS (AP)—Charles de Gaulle finished 14 days as Premier Saturday by tightening his hold on rebellious Algeria in his determined drive for French unity.

With the political finesse of a professional politician, the old soldier politely but firmly subdued his old aide, Jacques Soustelle. Soustelle, the political power behind the French army revolt in Algeria, obediently answered De Gaulle's summons to a meeting and emerged with nothing more for his pains than vague permission to keep talking.

Supporters of Soustelle, a member of the junta in Algeria and a former governor general there, had wanted a Cabinet post for him. His opponents had wanted his scalp. De Gaulle heeded neither side.

De Gaulle asked Soustelle to give members of the Cabinet his ideas on the 3½-year-old rebellion of Algerian nationalists against French rule. Soustelle agreed and canceled plans to return immediately to Algiers.

Gen. Raoul Salan, whom De Gaulle has put in charge in Algeria, told an interviewer in Algiers that De Gaulle's television speech Friday night and the junta's motion supporting it "have solved all the problems."

In that speech, De Gaulle pledged a campaign of pacification in Algeria and called for all Frenchmen to support a bond drive to help France out of its financial troubles.

Salan said the 400,000 troops in Algeria now can get back to fighting the Algerian nationalists.

De Gaulle's performance with Soustelle was typical of his first two weeks. He listened, then softly but firmly imposed his own will.

The general's easy, almost fatherly, approach has been deceptive. In two weeks he has sped France through dangers the man in the street saw only fleetingly.

The All-Algeria Public Safety Committee, the junta that seized power in Algeria May 10, at first balked at De Gaulle's insistence on maintaining many old political figures in his Cabinet. But De Gaulle cracked the whip and pointedly told Salan the committee was under the control of Salan as his delegate general for Algeria. The committee then fell in line behind De Gaulle.

Within an hour a wood frog can change the color of his body from dark green to light tan to blend with his surroundings.
